PATRONIZE HOME INDUSTRY.

A Good Citizen Spends His Money Among the Local Tradesmen.

The member of a community who habitually ignores his home merchant, mechanic or tradesman and makes his purchases and spends his money in other towns does not deserve the name of a good citizen, and should not be countenanced by those who have the best interests of their own locality at heart. That it pays to trade near home is a well established fact, and no town or city ever prospered whose citizens, enticed by the alluring baits held out by the merchant in the big cities, spend their money with them.

The local merchant and mechanic are interested in the progress and development of the town and country in which they live, and every dollar that they amass is reinvested and remains in the neighborhood. As they prosper their taxes increase, and just so much of those others are lightened. They assist in keeping up your schools, churches and other public institutions and charities. But the person who spends his money in some distant city puts it beyond assisting in any local enterprise. The man in the city upon whom you bestow your custom has no further interest in you or your surroundings than the cash he receives from you. It is no concern of his whether you are as devoid of social, church or educational privileges as the inhabitants of Borrioboola-Gia, or whether your streets or highways are well made or an aboriginal Indian trail. The surplus money which he has to bestow will go to enrich the exchequer of institutions from which you will never receive any benefit and to add to the wealth of communities in which you have no financial interest.

And, further, there is no good reason for this impolitic and unbusinesslike diversion of trade. The business men in the smaller cities and towns can and do sell goods year in and year out as cheaply as do those of the larger places. The lower expenses, cheaper rent and immunity from the exorbitant municipal taxes which prevail in the great cities enable them to do so and still make a living profit. But the shrewd city merchants, by advertising certain goods at ridiculously low prices, manage to attract gullible patrons to their places of business, with the knowledge that they will succeed in selling them other goods at advanced prices to reimburse themselves for the loss on the "baiter" and leave themselves a handsome profit.

The home merchant is established here and expects to pursue his business among us indefinitely. The continuance of his trade is dependent upon this fair and uniform treatment of his customers and the quality of his goods. His field is limited, and should he resort to shady methods or foist dishonest wares upon his patrons his reputation would be gone and his trade consequently lost. But the metropolitan merchant has a wide and an almost unlimited field. His patrons are from all parts of the country, and if he can be so fortunate as to get one "good deal" from each one he does not expect them to return. The ideal community is that in which there is a reciprocity of good feeling among merchants in all branches of trade, mechanics, professional men, workmen and farmers, each availing himself as far as possible of the other's services, buying his goods or employing his labors.

Co-operation in Town Building.

There is no village, town or city but that has an ambition to develop into a manufacturing center. There are but few that realize their ambition. In this day of sharp competition that cheap commodity called "cheap music" goes but a short distance in attracting capital and inducing the location of manufacturing industries. A location must possess extraordinary natural advantages in the way of power, fuel supply, transportation facilities or supply of raw material to induce a manufacturing concern to seek it without some effort on the part of its citizens. In most cases a cash bonus, subscription of stock or donation of site is required to secure this end, and generally the most liberal offer secures the enterprise.

The demands of the promoters of these enterprises are often so exorbitant that they cannot be profitably met. Thousands have been donated to corporations by towns throughout the west, and in a great many cases the benefit has been individual. The remedy for this is in co-operative manufacturing investment. Every community has sufficient idle capital among its people to equip and maintain manufacturing plants which will be both profitable to the investor and advantageous to the community.

For instance, the people determine that a paper mill, cannery, starch factory or any of the hundreds of different branches of manufacture now carried on in the United States could be successfully maintained in their town. A meeting should be called, an incorporation formed, the cost of the plant ascertained and bonds for the subscription of stock opened. The price of shares should be placed sufficiently low to allow persons of moderate means to become stockholders, as often this class of persons are the most progressive citizens a community affords. Only those in whom the community has the fullest confidence should be put at the head of the movement. When all the stock is sold and the venture established, it will only require good business methods to make it a success—financially and otherwise. After one industry is established and made a success others will follow. The only matter to be decided is the nature of the industry that is adapted to the locality, and when this is done go to work and establish it.

It is good policy to patronize the merchant or mechanic who is the most liberal in his efforts to assist in building up the community.

HETTY GREEN'S PROMPTNESS.

He Pleased the Tax Collectors, and They Let Her Off Cheap.

HENNSTRAD, N. Y., Feb. 24.—People are chuckling over the readiness with which the tax assessors placed a small assessment on the property of Mrs. Hetty Green, who is the richest woman in America, as well as one of the most pious. She resided here last summer. It appears that her eagerness to secure her tax bills, her fear lest she should be overlooked when the assessments were levied and her promptness in paying her taxes so pleased the assessors and tax collector that it did not occur to them to inquire too particularly into Mrs. Green's affairs. Then Mrs. Green insisted upon her husband and her daughter being taxed. They had their legal home where she resided. Therefore all three were assessed $2,500 each. The assessors thought Mrs. Green an exceptionally liberal woman, and when she paid her $750.50 as soon as she received her bill the tax collector was charmed with her promptness. Now that the tax assessors realize how very rich Mrs. Green is it occurs to them that they might just as well have assessed her personal property at a very much higher valuation. As Mrs. Green's tax bills are paid for this year, the assessors will have to wait until next year before Mrs. Green's assessment can be raised.

THE EFFORT TO SAVE M'KANE.

Judge Cullen Will Decide His Application for a Stay on Monday.

BROOKLYN, Feb. 24.—John Y. McKane pleaded "not guilty" to the charge of conspiracy. The gravest "Boss" was escorted before Judge Cullen, in the court of oyer and terminer, by Sheriff Bulltong. He had secured the services of Colonel K. James as his counsel, who read the law relating to the granting of a certificate of reasonable doubt. He declared that he had been on the case only since the verdict had been rendered, and looked at the matter from a purely legal standpoint. Colonel James claimed that it was impossible that during the three weeks' trial of the defendant no errors had been made, and argued at length for a stay.

Justice Cullen took the papers on the application for reasonable doubt, as well as a copy of the testimony taken at the McKane trial. He said that he would render his decision Monday. McKane was then taken back to jail.

Eight Sailors Washed Overboard.

LONDON, Feb. 24.—A dispatch from Fayal, one of the Azore Islands, says that the British bark Montgomery Castle, bound from New York to Anjar, Java, for orders, has reached Fayal after experiencing fearful weather. All the bark's boats were washed away, her cabin stove in, everything movable on her decks washed overboard and she was leaking. During the storm eight of her crew, including all the officers, were washed overboard and drowned, leaving nobody on board the ship capable of navigating her.

A Democratic Senatorial Caucus.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—Senator Gorman has issued a call for a Democratic caucus of the senate to convene Monday morning at 10 o'clock. It cannot be ascertained whether the caucus will have other subjects than the tariff under consideration, and it is even asserted by some that the tariff will not be considered at all. There is no doubt, however, that the original purpose of requesting the issuance of the call was that of comparing notes and trying to reconcile differences on the subject of the tariff.

Alleged Crooked Bankers Indicted.

ATLANTIC, N. J., Feb. 24.—The grand jury returned indictments against officials of the broken Cass County bank. President J. C. Yezer and Cashier A. W. Dickerson are indicted on three counts each on the charge of fraudulent banking, bail being fixed at $9,000 in each case. Vice President Dickerson, it is understood, has been indicted on only one count. The accused parties have been given until Monday to plead.

Penal Servitude for Life.

PARIS, Feb. 24.—Leo Lauthier, the anarchist, who on Nov. 13 last stabbed the Serbian minister to France, M. K. Georgevitch, in the Boulevard Duval restaurant, was yesterday sentenced to penal servitude for life. The prisoner coolly answered all the questions put to him and said that he had no spite against M. Georgevitch, and that he only wanted to kill a few bourgeois.

Fifteen Vessels Looted.

LAYVILLE, N. Y., Feb. 24.—Great South Bay pirates broke into the cabins of about fifteen boats anchored in Brown's river last night and carried away druggies, ropes, tackling, bedding and everything movable they could make off with. The systemmen think the robbery was the work of an organized gang. The thieves came by boat shortly after midnight and left at day-break.

The "Bargain Counter" and the Nervous and Muscular Strain on Women That Comes from Buying for the Household—The Preserver Against Poverty of Blood and Nervous Energy.

For indigestion, languidness, drowsy, liver and kidney complaint, and other signs of enfeebled nervous power, Paine's celery compound has a reputation that is established in thousands of households throughout the United States and Canada, in every village and town where there is a good physician.

Paine's celery compound is the marvellous preserver that has saved so many thousand men and women struggling for existence against poverty of blood and nervous energy. It makes people well. Read the experience of Mrs. E. M. Abbott, of Chelsea, Mass., who gives the following voluntary testimony:

"I have taken Paine's celery compound, and it is all that it is recommended to be. My mother and father have also taken it; it has given them new life. They take it every spring or whenever they do not feel just right. Mother was all run down last spring, and after taking a few doses of the compound she gained new strength. We would not be without Paine's celery compound as a family medicine."
