In these days of keen competition in every line, when the business man is compelled to bend his intellect and every energy to the success of his business; the clerk, book-keeper, professional man and lab ver, to drive themselves at a terrific rate, there can be to compelled an explicitly which is be but one result—an explosion, which if not resulting in immediate death, leaves them with shattered brains and bodies. They are running at too high pressure. The strain is too great. Something must and does give way. This is equally true of women. This condition is growing worse every day. The rapidity of its increase is awful to contemplate. Our homes, hospitals, and insone asylums are full of these unfortunates, and are being crowded still further. There is but one solution of the matter. Recognize the importance of the situation at once, and take the necessary measures to over-cume it. ## COUGHLIN ACQUITTED.

The Alleged Cronin Murder Conspirator Now at Liberty.

EXCITING SCENE IN THE COURT.

The Announcement of the Verdict Reecived with Thunderons Applause - An Affecting Meeting Between the Liberated Man and His Devoted Wife.

CHICAGO, March 2.-The trial of ex-Detective Dan Coughlin, which has been in progress for weaks for alleged complicity in the murder of Dr. Croniu, was ended at 4:35 yesterday afternoon. As the jury filed into court Coughlin, who sat just in front of the jury seats, turned deathly pale, and then with apparent effort straightened up in his sent.

"Has the jury reached a verdict!" asked the court.

"We have," responded Juror Holsman who had been made foreman. The fateful document was handed to the clerk, and he read: "We, the jury, find the defendant Daniel Coughlin, not guilty."

DAN COUGHLIN.

As these words were heard a great shout went up from the crowd in the court room. Hats were thrown high in the air, handkerchiefs were waved, and cheer after cheer broke upon the stiff and stately court room, and a mad rush was made for court room, and a mad rush was made for the door by those anxious to tell the news to the crowds without. Judge Tuthill, his face affame at the breach of court eti-quette, demanded silence, and bailiffs vigprously pounded for order, but it took a orously pounded for order, but it took a considerable time for the enthusiasm of the crowd to subside.

Coughlin half rose in his chair, and was the next instant pushed back by Attorney David, the law partner of Mr. Donaboe, who has so stoutly defended him throughout the long trial. Then it was a push that almost swept the happy man off his feet. Newspaper men, old time friends of the prisoner before his troubles, came upon him in a body, and nearly wrung his hands off, "It's all right, boys, all right," gasped Coughlin. "It's all right boys, I won't forget you. You treated me all right."

Then the prisoner worked his way up to the jury box and shook hands with as many of the men as he could reach, but the crowd was too much for him, and yelling and cheering to show its delight, pushed him away from the box. He gave up the effort to greet the men who have given him freedom, and in company with the bailiffs started to leave the room, pas ing behind Judge Tuthill's chair. Just as he was directly behind the judge a cry of "Make way there; open up a passage; make way" was heard and two stalwart batliffs pushed through the crowd, and close behind them, gasping with solse that choked her, came Mrs. Coughlin.

"Dan, come back here and see your wife," called fifty voices, and Coughlin retraced his steps. Just at the foot of the little flight of stairs leading up to the judge's restrum he met his wife. The veman gave an incoherent erg, her arms went up, fastened themselves around her husband's neck, and then gave away ut-terly. She only said: "Dan, oh. Dan!" Coughlin bent his big blonds head until his mustache swept her cheek, and then the two rocked to and fro until the woman was able to stiffe her emotion, and then both were led away by Coughlin's father. Attorney Daniel Donahoe, who had, with ex-Judge Wing, defended the prisoner, was the recipient of a shower of congratu-surprised if the jurors had remained eighteen or twenty hours. But it is just as well that they decided when they did, for they could have reached no other conclusion if they had been out a week."

Neither Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Bottom per Associate Prosecutor Scaplan would express an opinion as to the ver-diet. "It was a surprise," they both asseried, but further than that they declined to talk to interviewers. An attempt to interview the jury in the court room was no productive of good results. "I can't tell a thing," said Juror Sharp pleasantly. "We agreed not to talk or give any names, and I cannot say anything."
"That's right," broke in Foreman Hols-

man. "We have agreed that we would not say a word to the papers. It would not be a fair thing. I will say one thing, though," said the foreman with a broad grin. "I am just about as happy to get away from this thing as Daniel Coughlin

"That's what," said Sharp emphatically.

The jury was at once taken into the office of the county clerk, where warrants for their pay were given them, and the Cronin trial was out of court and into history for good.

Secretary Gresham Preparing an Answer to the Morgan Resolution.

WASHINGTON, March 9.-The president WARRINGTON, March 2.—The president has turned over to the secretary of state the preparation of an answer to the Morgan resolution calling for information relative to the landing of British troops at Bluefields, Nicaragua. The matter is already under way, and when the answer is complete it will be submitted to the predicated and carefully considered by himself. dent and carefully considered by himself and Secretary Gresham. One difficulty experienced is that the resolution seems to call for an expression of opinion from the executive as to the right of the British to land the troops. To express such an opinion might be rather embarrassing at this time, as it will require patient study of the voluminous correspondence, run ning back in its references into the sixteenth century. It might also have the unpleasant effect of acquainting other na-tions with our purposes before it is timely to declare them. Therefore, it may be found that in answer to this part of the resolution the correspondence will be al-resolution the correspondence will be allowed to speak for itself.

No additional advices from Nicaragua were given out at the state department yesterday, but there is reason to believe that the president is preparing for a vigerous and unmistakable assertion of the rights of the United States in Central America and that the correspondence will include matters of later date than the brief report from Minister Baker, of the landing of British troops. It is still hoped that the conditions have been misstated, and that the troops were landed solely to protect the lives and property of British subjects, instead of for the purpose of interfering between Nicaragua and the Mos-quito government. But there is no dispoquito government. But there is no dispe-eition to disguise the real gravity of the incident, for although the licitish often have talked of their rights of protectorate, and even threatened, it has never in this century come to the pass that British troops were actually landed in Central America, since the assertion of the Monroe doctrine to assert a protecturate. doctrine to assert a protectorate.

In the rear were tables at which clustered the correspandents for the newspapers of several cities, and filling the rest of the court room a mixed audience, friends of the litigants, lawyers interested from profeional motives and such outsiders as could persuade the doorkeepers to admit them.

The blue grass congressman, who is accused by Miss Pollard with being the
