AN OPEN COUNT.

The action of the Grand Jury of Allegheny county emphasizes one of the best features of the Baker ballot law, and one which is not as widely known as it might be. On the evening of the last election, three citizens of McKeesport came to their polling place and demanded to be let in after the polls were closed, that they might see the count. When they were refused they broken open the door, and were returned by the constable on a tharge of interfering with an election.

The grand jury ignored the bill, being properly instructed that these men were acting within their right as citizens to be present, outside the guard rail, and in sight and hearing of the election officers while the ballots were being counted. This right is clearly conveyed in the law. and should be exercised wherever there is any reason to believe that it will add a final safeguard to the honesty of the election. A free, fair and secret ballot is an empty phrase without an honest count at the end of it.

There is another provision of the law which is even less generally observed. It is not only the right of a qualified voter, but it is the prescribed duty of "the police officers, constables and deputy constables now required by law to be present at the polls, to remain within the voting room, but outside the guard rail, while the votes are being counted, and to preserve order therein." Election officers should acquaint themselves with such details as these, that no virtue of the law may lose him its effect.

MR. BRECKINRIDGE'S MARRIAGE.

Secret Union of the Hentucky Congressman with Mrs. Wlog May Constitute a New Legal Factor in the Case. The Colonel to Testify.

WASHINGTON, March 17 .- Two distinct mensations were furnished yesterday in the Pollard Breckinridge breach of promiss trial. The foremost was the appearance of the siender plaintiff on the stand as a witness in her own behalf, but or to contradict it. His counsel and law partner, Colonel Shelly, however, con-firmed the report, as did Attorney Stoll. The latter said, when inquiry was made whether the defense would be based on this carlier marriage. "It would not be proper to forecast our case at this stage, but I will say that Colonel Breckmridge is to take the stand were would be will all benefit the stand very soon, and it will all be made known. Until then neither Colonel Breckinvolge nor his counsel would be wise to discuss the case. As for the marriage cer-tificate filed by Dr. Paxton, of course that speaks for itself." Judge Jere Wilson, of Miss Pollard's connect, seemed much pleased by the re-port from New York. "That helps our case decidedly," he said. "I hope they will bring that matter into the trial. If furnishes no defense whatever against the breach of promise. All the authorities agree upon that." It is probable, on a review of testimony, that this secret marriage will constitute a new legal factor in the case, for while it occurred on the 29th of April, the presentations which Colonel Breckinridge made to Mrs. Blackburn that Miss Pollard was his flance were made prior to the secret marriage, the promises made in the pres-ence of Major Moore, the chief of police. being those which were subsequent to the secret ceremony.

As for the testimony of Miss Madeline Pollard, which was stretched through the entire day, and will be continued on Mor day, it speaks for itself as given in detail, better than any attempt at review could describe it. The young woman was de cidedly nervous at first, but notwithstand ing the strain under which she labored was remarkably self possessed and careful in hor choice of words. She looked di-rectly toward Colonel Breckharidge, sel-dom lifting her eyes from his face as he from the house of reduces stand about fifteen feet away. While she sat in the witness stand her companion, Mrs. Ellis, from the house of reduce, occupied a chair but an arm's length away, keeping a waichful eye upon her charge. The white haired congressman shifted unensity in his chair at certain stages of the testimony and sunk his head on his brenst, sinding his eyes with one hand, while the other fumbled almiessly among the paraphernalia on the table in front of meeting at police headquarters McKane's friends were chasing about the Brooklyn banks endeavoring to trace the bonds and stand as a witness in her own behalf, but the one of greatest interest in legal directs was the corroboration of the rumor which has been for several days afloat that Colousl Breckinridge was secretly married to Mrs. Louise Wing in New York has April, three months before the public ceremony in Chichmati. When Colonel Breckinridge was shownjthe despatch from New York he refused to admit its truth, or to contradict it. WASHINGTON, March 17 .- Mr. Enloe's washiveron, march 17.---mr. Ennoge second amendment aimed at the const and genderic survey, providing for the investi-gation of that bureau and a determination of the advisibility of its transfer to the navy and interior departments, was de feated yesterday in the house by a major ity of twenty-three votes. No amend ments at all to this paragraph were adopted except on changing the verbiage in the clause requiring the secretary of the treasury to reduce the office force of the bureau to bring it within $125,000, so as to prevent the paragraph from interfering with the civil service law in so far as it applied to the coast and geodetic survey. The latter part of the afternoon was de-voted to a discussion of the appropriation of $750,000 for the Missouri river commis-sion. No action was had, however, upon the amendments offered. The evening

THE business man advertises because he wants custom, not because he has it. The more he wants it the more he must advertise. These have been trying times to the business men. Money has been sightand trade dull. The ordinary advertisements that paid well enough when business was brisker have not brought in the same returns. What is necessary ? The abandonment of advertising ! By no means. Greater efforts in that direction must be made. Competition in advertising must accompany competition in softing. Work harder to eatch the eye of the purchaser. Just now abundant success awaits the man who spares no effort to eatch the trade there is to get. The hold advertiser is the man who will get it.
