The Cause and Its Lesson.

Why did he commit suicide? Oh! for Why did he commit suicide? Oh! for the same reason that thousands of others are on the verge of the same sin, or in immediate danger of insunity, paralysis, invery, or some other equally unfortunate result of any nervous affection. He knew he was afflicted with a nervous disorder, but was careless, apparently indifferent to the outcome; or he may have lessened his chances for recovery by treating with physicians who had little or no knowledge of such affections, or by deluging himself with worthless so-called remedies. His case was a sad one, but no worse than that of any other one, but no worse than that of any other nervous sufferer, who has nervous or headache, biliousness, dizamess, irritability, melancholy, failing memory, hot flishes fainting, sleeplessness, nervous dyapopaia, sexual debility, epilepsy, etc. The same or similar consequences are likely to result to any one who has any of these advance symptoms of an awful end. She Has Made No Definite Arrangements for the Future.

WILL NOT BECOME AN ACTRESS.

Flattering Offers from Theatrical Managers Will Receive No Attention from Breekinridge's Victim, Who Received a Verdict for Fifteen Thousand Dollars.

WASHINGTON, April 16.-The jury in the Pollard-Breckinridge breach of promise suit, after a deliberation of an hour and a half, brought in a verdict for Miss Pol-lard and awarded her damages of $15,000 late Saturday afternoon. The amount of damages was decided by the usual method of striking an average of the twelve indi-vidual estimates. Several of the jurymen were in favor of awarding Miss Pollard no damages at all, only a vertict. There were others who estimated the damage to her life and opportunities at the full limit claimed, $50,000.

The scene in the court when the verdict was rendered was one not to be forgotten.
Miss Pollard was not there, nor was her doughty champion, ex-Judge Wilson.
Calderon Carlisle, alone of all her coun-was why Mr. Wilson and the majority of the lawyers on both sides were not present when the verdiet was rendered.

The jury, however, agreed unexpectedly early and there was a great flocking to the aid women who have been wronged. It is court room. Colonel Breckinridge was of course, an outgrowth of the Pollardcourt room. Colonel Breckinridge was the first of the principal actors in the legal drams to appear. He came in with a vited Judge Jere Wilson to become gen-flushed face and an expectant and earnest eral counsel of the league, but the attormanner. He was followed closely by his ney has not yet responded to the invitaon Desha and by Colonel Thompson. Colonel Breckinridge took the blow with marvellous composure. He did not change his easy posture by a hair's breadth. He only clasped his hands the closer and grew only clasped his hands the closer and grew redder behind his white hair and beard. He did not even turn his head. Neither did his counsel change countenance or make the slightest demonstration.

Mr. Carlisle's face alone underwent a decided change. He did not shift his po-sition or show his emotions by any ges-ture or setion, but his serious face broke out into a broad smile, which, however, he repressed before he turned about in his Then Colonel Breckinridge struggled to his feet. He leaned both hands on the desk before him and addressed the judge. His bearing was self possessed and his voice clear. He said: "When, your honor, will opportunity be afforded me to make a motion for a new trial? "On Monday or thereafter," replied

Judge Bradley.

Then the judge turned to the jury and said it was perfectly evident that they had performed the duty required of them under the prompting of a high sense of duty. He discharged them and adjourned the train was ditched half a

Miss Madeline Pollard is the most talked of person in Washington today, since the outcome of her long breach of promise suit against Congressman Breckinridge. As might have been expected with a woof the trial culminated in a nervous collapse, and today Miss Pollard is suffer-ing from nervous prostration. She was taken Saturday night to the Providence hospital, a Catholic institution in a quiet part of the city, where she is attended by the sisters of charity. The attending physicians say that when she has recovered from the immediate effects of her collapse following the high mental tension at which she has been kept for weeks she will be able to leave the hospital. do not anticipate any serious effects from her illness.

Sister Ellis, of the Episcopal House of Refuge, who was the constant attendant of Miss Pollard during the trial, and to whom Judge Wilson paid a beautiful tribute in his plea, was her companion part of the day. Her brother, Mr. J. D. Pollard, of Lexington, Ky., was also with her. The victor in the great case has been more than ever in demand to appear be-fore the footlights since the verdict was secured. During the trial several commu nications came to Miss Pollard and to her lawyers from managers of theatrical and opera companies, offering high salaries if she would appear in almost any capacity under their auspices. Acting under the advice of her lawyers she has paid no attention to any of these communications.

Both Miss Poliard and her attorneys state that she has never sought newspaper notoriety. She has made but one newspaper statement, Judge Jers Wilson said, and that was when a representative of a New York paper came to her last summer with clippings from a hundred papers giving denials from Colonel Breekinridge and his friends of the truth of her charges. Then she determined to present to the public a circumstantial account of her first acquaintance with the silver tongued orator.

Since the verdict was rendered the theatrical managers have redoubled their importantities and several telegrams have come to Miss Pollard effering her astonishing sums to go upon the stage at once. Her friends decline to give the names of the theatrical managers or to discuss their offers, saying that no attention will be paid to any of them.

An Associated Press representative called at the Providence hospital, and being told that Miss Pollard was unable to receive callers, sent to her a note inquiring about her plans for the future. The noise was answered in person by her brother, Mr. J. D. Pollard, a young man of about 25 years.

"My sister has made no plans for the future," he said, "and we cannot tell yet what she intends to do. She is in a very mervous condition, but the physicians do not anticipate any serious illness. It is just the result of the long strain to which she has been subjected. She saks me to say to you, most emphatically, that she never has entertained any intention of going on the stage. Nothing could be far-ther from her thoughts or intentions. It is absurd. It is true that telegrams on the subject have come to her, but no at-tention will be paid to them. All sheasks now is for rest and quiet."

"Will Miss Pollard continue to live in Washington or return to Kentucky?" the reporter inquired.

"That has not been decided yet," wa the reply. "She will remain in Washington for a time, of course, but has no settied plans."

Judge Jere Wilson said today that he was not surprised that his client had broken down after the trial.

"It would have been impossible to have No. 126 South Jardin street, Shenandonb, Ps the arguments, especially during the attacks made upon her character by the defendant's attorneys." he said. "No one tan imagine the nervous strain to which the has been subjected."

Prominent Washington Wenner Demand That Breckingings be Investigated.

Washisoron, April 16.—Hardly had the werdlet in the Polland-Breekingthe case en rendered when a meeting of pronnent Washington women was called to take action regarding the case of Colonel Breckinridge, Representives of several female organizations met at Willard's tel, and after an interesting conference adopted resolutions calling upon congress to consider the qualifications of Represcutative Breckingidge for membership in

The resolutions adopted declare tha "we do not believe musculinity to be a license for uncleanness," and demand "chastity for chastity, under one rule of right, bearing as rigidly in its application upon one sex as the other." The resolu-tions have been sent to the house commit-tee on the judiciary for action. The women say that it is not right that Colonel Breck-luridge should retain his seat in congress, while Mise Pellard is ostracized, as she undoubtedly will be, from society.

This meeting was the last of a series which prominent women of Washington have been holding since Good Friday, and which crystalized into the formation of an sel, set in his accustomed place.

Every one thought the case would go ive league. The object of the league will be to combat the text uttered on the witness stand by Colonel Breckinridge that social sins injure a man, but destroy a women. The league will endeavor to secure equal rights for both sexes, and to Breckinridge trial. The ladies have in-

> Miss Pollard Will Become a Writer. GISCINNATI, April 16.—"You may say positively that Miss Pollard will not go on the stage," said Mrs. McClellan Brown. While Miss Pollard was a pupil Mrs. Brown was, with her husband, in charge of the Wesleyan Woman's college. She has just returned from Washington, where she testified in the Breckluridge-Pollard case. She said Miss Pollard had theatrical offers from $500 to $600 per week. She was tempted only by lecture bureau offers, but tempted only by lecture bitreau offers, but would not accept them because they all wished her to give the atory of her life, and that she will not do. "She has a young brother in Washington," said Mrs. Brown to a reporter, "and it is her wish to live modestly in a flat or a little house with her brother and write, and her offers in her brother and write, and her offers in this line have been as good, accordingly, as the other ones.
