VERY TIMELY RESCUE.

Disastrous Accident at a Funeral Narrowly Averted.

A HORSE BECOMES UNRULY

Mr. P. J. Ferguson hastens to the scene of Trouble and Makes a Gallant Rescue. The Discovery He Made After the Danger Had Passed.

Mr. P. J. Ferguson, of Shenandoah, figured prominently in a very thrilling and romantic event while attending a funeral at Mahanoy City, yesterday. He performed an act which won the applause of all that witnessed and experienced one of the greatest yet most agreeable surprises of his life. The thrilling scene of a hero jumping into the sea and rescuing a woman from the pitiless breakers so frequently introduced in dramas by companies which visit this region is henceforth an insignificant picture of true heroism and must give way to the piece of realism enacted upon a street of Mahanoy City, yesterday.

The story is this: A funeral was on its way to one of the cemeteries and in the line of carriages was one occupied by Mr. Ferguson and his friend, J. R. Coyle, Esq., also of Shenandoah.

As the road at the foot of the mountain upon which the cemetery is located was reached Mr. Coyle observed that a horse in the advanced part of the line was trying to get away. It pranced madly backwards and oris of alarm arose from all parts of the line of carriages, as it was seen that the occupants of the carriage drawn by the unmanageable horse were an elderly gentleman and a handsome young lady and that they were in great danger.

"Good gracious!" exclaimed Lawyer Coyle, "that young lady may be killed! I wonder who she is."

"Hold the lines!" shouted Mr. Ferguson, as he turned the care of his lamp-lighter over to the lawyer, sprang from his carriage and with the fleetness of a deer ran to the scene of trouble.

Up to this time few people in the line, Mr. Ferguson especially, seemed to know who the couple in danger were, but that "cut no ice" with the sandy-haired capitalist of Shenandoah and in no wise diminished the speed of his flight.

Meanwhile the unruly horse had plunged backwards upon its haunches and in its desperate efforts to regain its feet threatened to upset the carriage and hurl the occupants to the ground. Mr. Ferguson sprang to the side of the carriage and in an instant had the young lady out of the vehicle and away from the maddening crowd, as a popular novelist put it. The young lady's escort also escaped safely from the carriage just as the horse fell over upon its side, when Phil Coyle sprang upon the animal's neck and held it down until assistance arrived.

The romantic and surprising feature of the case comes in the part where Mr. Ferguson discovered in making the rescue that the young lady who had been in such great danger was none other than Miss Dillon, of Mahanoy City, who, rumor has it, is to become Mrs. P. J. Ferguson, and her escort was her father.

When approached on the subject to-day Mr. Ferguson very modestly declined to talk, but finally admitted that he had seen a thrilling occurrence at Mahanoy City yesterday.

REVIVAL SERVICES.

The Blind Evangelist Continues to Do Good Work.

Mr. Maize is still holding services in the Methodist Episcopal church. On Thurs day night his subject was: "A man without a fault." The text was Pilate's verdict concerning Jesus, "I find in Him no fault at all."

Last night his topic was "Living Witnesses." After making the assertion that religion was a reality, and that it was experimental, the speaker talked a few minutes, then called for Christian testimonies as witnesses to the truth of his statement made at the outset. When quite a number had testified, Mr. Maize said, "Now I leave you who are unconverted to render the verdict to God." The whole talk was logical and the service impressive. Three persons went forward as penitents.

To-night the evangelist will give a talk intended especially for young converts, though any others will be welcome. To-morrow morning, at 10:30 o'clock, the sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered by the pastor. At the evening service, commencing at 8:00 o'clock, Mr. Maize will speak on "White Lies." There is a possibility of this being the last night of this series of meetings.

REGULAR CLEAN OUT

Burglars Are at Work in Town Again.

A WHOLESALER STEALING

Boots and Shoes Carried Off by the Cases and Several Trunks Taken in Which to Pack Loose Goods—Nearly $1,000 Worth Gone.

One of the boldest robberies committed in this town for some time was one perpetrated at the warehouse of Max Sipowitz, the East Centre street merchant, last night. Mr. Sipowitz places his loss at from $800 to $1,000.

The case is one of "clean out" and the burglars must have had a team and wagon to help them to carry away all the goods missing, yet the people of the neighborhood say they heard no tramping of horses during the night or early in the morning.

Mr. Sipowitz's store is on Centre street and the warehouse in which he kept his stock is on the Raspberry alley end of the lot. At about eleven o'clock last night Mr. Sipowitz's son locked the doors of the warehouse and retired for the night. At 9 o'clock this morning the father went to the warehouse with a customer and all the doors were broken open and almost the entire stock missing. An investigation showed that the burglars had entered the second loft of the warehouse by means of a ladder placed in the yard.

Thus far Mr. Sipowitz has made but a partial recapitulation of his losses. There are as follows: 20 cases of gum boots, twelve pairs to the case; half a dozen cases of shoes, half a dozen trunks, five dozen mining shoes and fifty or seventy pounds of geese feathers valued at 75 cents per pound.
