

The WREN in Business

It is characteristic of the Wren that it will sneak in and occupy the nest made by another bird, in preference to building one of its own. This same trait is often seen in business. It is shown by the imitators of

COTTLENE

No sooner has the wonderful merit of this new vegetable shortening, so much better than lard, created for it a remarkable sale and popularity, than the business wrens are ready to move upon the market with many worthless counterfeits. A y housekeeper can be easily and cheaply convinced of the value of COTTLENE by simply giving it a trial. They will then be unwilling to go back to lard, or go down to fraudulent imitations.

JUDGE PHELPS DEAD.

The Ex-Minister's Long Suffering Finally Ended.

HIS CAREER AS A DIPLOMATIST.

The signal service he rendered the Government in securing the abolition of Germany's embargo on our pork—his End Calm and Peaceful.

ENOLEWOOD, N. J., June 18.—Ex-Minister William Walter Phelps died shortly before 2 o'clock yesterday morning at his home at Teaneck, N. J. He had been ill for a long time past and quite recently went south in the hope that his condition would be improved. He derived but little benefit from his southern trip, however, and but a short time ago was so prostrated that his physician ordered absolute quiet and rest. Gradually he grew worse, and for the past few days his death had been looked for at almost any moment. His physicians paid their last visit at 10:15 Saturday night.

The exact nature of Mr. Phelps' ailment was never definitely stated, but his illness was primarily from typhoid fever, which was followed by meningitis and other complications. He was not naturally of a robust constitution, and he inherited pulmonary troubles.

Mr. Phelps' end was peaceful, calm as though falling into a slumber. Mrs. Phelps is prostrated, the result of long watching by her husband's bedside.

All of the members of his family were at the dying man's bedside, including Baroness de Rotenburg, who had made a flying trip from Germany to fulfill a wish of her father, who said he wished to gaze on her face once more before he died. But her trip was made in vain, for while the ex-minister saw his daughter, he failed to recognize her voice or features.

William Walter Phelps was born in New York city Aug. 24, 1839. He was early sent to Yale college, and he stood second in his class at his graduation in 1860. In the Columbia law school he secured the valedictory in 1863. He was elected to the house of representatives in 1872, and took high rank as a debater almost at once. He became noted as one of the few men to whom the house would always listen. He was an ardent supporter of James G. Blaine in the presidential conventions of 1876, 1880 and 1884. In 1881 President Garfield sent him as United States minister to Austria. On the change of administration he at once tendered his resignation, and finally retired in August, 1882. He was immediately elected to congress in March, 1889. Mr. Phelps was appointed one of the three commissioners on special envoys to the Berlin conference on affairs in the Samoan islands. On Sept. 20 of the same year he presented his credentials, by appointment of President Harrison, as envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to Germany to Emperor William at Berlin. Mr. Phelps established an enviable reputation while at Berlin, one of his important diplomatic acts being the securing of the removal of the embargo on American pork.

Mr. Phelps during his official residence in Berlin was a great favorite in the society of the German capital. He was always on friendly terms with the two Bismarcks, father and son, and yet found it possible to get on comfortably with the emperor and with his present chancellor. On June 1, 1884, the day after his return over the legation to his stevedores, his daughter was married to Dr. Franz von Rotenburg, a distinguished German official who had long been in close relations to Prince Bismarck. This daughter arrived from Germany on Friday last.

In January, 1893, while Mr. Phelps was still on duty at Berlin, Governor Werts appointed him a lay judge of the court of errors and appeals of New Jersey, and he was promptly and unanimously confirmed by the senate. On June 20, 1893, immediately after his return from Berlin, Judge Phelps took his seat on the bench and discharged the duties of his position until prostrated by illness.

The President's Obit.
NORFOLK, Va., June 18.—The lighthouse tender Maple, with the President's party, arrived at Old Point Comfort Saturday night and remained for a short while. After taking on some supplies the Maple took in her lines and headed for Thimble light, five miles up the bay, where she remained until midnight. The president is enjoying the salt air of the bay, but still shows somewhat the effects of his recent indisposition. When the Maple left Thimble light her prow was pointed up the bay towards the mouth of the Potomac. It is likely that yesterday was spent among the islands on the Cape Charles side of the bay, or it is even possible that she is now on her way to Washington.

THE SUGAR INVESTIGATION

Senator Brice Declares He Has Not Indulged in Speculation.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—Mr. Theodore Havemeyer, vice president of the sugar trust, who was before the senate investigating committee yesterday, disposed of the stories about the efforts of the trust so far as he was concerned to control tariff legislation during the pendency of the present tariff bill, by saying that he had not been in Washington for seventeen months previous to his present visit. He confirmed in a general way the statement of his brother, H. O. Havemeyer, and Mr. Searles, that his company had made contributions to political parties in state campaigns. He said, however, that no money had been spent to secure or defeat legislation or to aid in securing the election of a United States senator.

The committee has decided to summon every member of the senate before it. The committee began its examination of senators by having the five members composing it—Messrs. Gray, Lindsay, Davis, Lodge and Allen—take the oath and give testimony. Each answered that he had nothing to do with sugar speculation or with the many attempts of the sugar trust to have the sugar schedule modified. Then the other members were called in alphabetical order.

Senator Brice was detained longer before the committee by any other of the senators. He declared, "Since entering the senate I have not been concerned in any way, directly or indirectly, in any property, securities, stocks, investments or speculations in anything that is mentioned in the tariff bill, from the first line to the end of the free list, with the exception of some local manufacturing establishments in Ohio." Mr. Brice also denied in general terms the allegations regarding the alleged conference at the Arlington hotel.

NO DUTY ON RAW WOOL
Democrats in the Senate Defeat Efforts for a Tariff.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Although the senate made no actual progress on the woolen schedule yesterday a series of amendments looking to the restoration of a duty on raw wool were voted upon, but all of them suffered defeat by majorities ranging from two to eight. The three Populists voted against the restoration of the McKinley duty on wool, but in favor of Mr. Peffer's amendment to scale the duty down 50 per cent. This amendment commanded the largest vote of the day, being defeated by only two votes. The Democratic senators voting solidly against every attempt to place a duty on wool, except in one instance, when Mr. Hill of New York, declined to vote at all on the Peffer amendment. Just before adjournment Mr. Peffer offered an amendment to place all manufactures of wool on the free list, which was not acted upon.

The dullness of the day's proceedings in the house were in marked contrast to the excitement of Thursday's session. An event somewhat out of the ordinary was a personal explanation by Mr. Richardson in reply to allegations made in a Washington newspaper that he had been using his position as a member of the committee on the District of Columbia to further the interest of an overhead trolley syndicate to which he (Richardson) had sold real estate indirectly. He denied the charge in toto. An evening session was held, devoted to pension bills.
