"Lactated food saved my baby's life. At the age of five week's I put him on artificial food. Not being successful with the first brand I discontinued that and tried condensed milk. That did not seem to contain nourishment enough, and at the age of five months he was so poor and sickly that I had no idea I would raise Reading of lactated food I gave it a trial. He began to improve within a few days and has continued to do so. We have not given him a drop of medicin since using lactated food. I consider that it saved his life, and whenever my boy is praised for his bright, healthy looks I never fail to tell his admirers that he is a Liciated food baby.

STREET WHISPERINGS.

To the people of Shenandoah it should be a source of much pride that they have a nobly provided for the education of the could of all classes. The commences entered schools reflects much credit upon our corps of instructors, and shows that grade of our schools reflects much credit upon our cope of instructors, and shows that grade of our schools to be in excellent condition. The High school exercises this evening will no doubt show a similar standard of efficiency.

There is no just reason why the attendance at the schools should not be much larger. There is a want of proper appreciation on the part of some in the use of what is so abundantly supplied. Our teachers will tell you that there are many children who attend school very irregularly, and others not at all. Our Board of Directors have furnished the required number of buildings, hired able and efficient teachers, and now supply books and other supplies free, and still, with all these inducements to get an education, some parents are utterly indifferent and remult their children to grow up in ignorance and not unfrequently victous. Wasteful of opportunities themselves, they have done the supplies free posterity, who to day are given the advantage of greater privileges than what they could possible have enjoyed. No parent can, in justice to his offspring and the community at large, allow his children suffer in years to come for the want of proper sducation. What is less to-day in this respect can never be regained in future years.

To remedy this every resident of the duty and privilege of every resident of the town. Something can and should be done. Let every man who has the welfare of his fellow man at heart, if he has a neighbor who is indifferent about the education of his children, draw his attention in a friendly manner to his duty in this matter. In many cases it is the want of a proper appreciation of the duty of the parent relative to the education of the young that so many children are allowed to remain away from school.

If you employ help in your business, see that every one in your employ having shildren of school age, go to school. Let the churches of the exert their influence in this respect, and see that those belonging to their religious organizations having children old enough to attend school does. It these agencies were put into active operation, the result would be a larger envolument, while the regular attendance would be greatly increased. Education is an important matter inser our form of government, for the better the people are Superfluons flesh is a disease. Fat women are seldom ragged or long lived. Obesity may be simmered down to two ranses—laziness and self-indulgence. It is pleasant to lell about in hammocks, rocking chairs and conches, and to indulge every whim of the appetite. The very dishes that delight the senses of the woman inclined to obesity are the very ones they should not eat. The first step towards a cure for "lazy" matter is self-sacrifice. It was petting that plied up the billows, and only the severe lines of something approaching asceticism will scatter them. Fat girls who leave college and go into active business or professional life, and great wives of the men who meet with reverses of fortune, necessitating self-help from every member of the family, lose flesh in a year under the new order of things, proving that evercise of the right sort is demolishing as well as ennobling.

So the much-talked of sait against Commissioner Charles F. Allen has at last come to an end, and the $5,000 syndicate is in mourning. What a fall was there, my countrymen! The fond hopes of revenge that have been nursed in the losom of my friend, the "affidavit editor," have been cast asunder by the "twelve men, tried and true." Many sleepless nights has this same purifier of Schuylkill county journalisms in in a mad course for revenge against the man who was instrumental in saving the mapayers of the county over $6,000 in one contract, and at the same time reduced the exchequer of the aforesaid editor and his brother scribilers at the county seat a corresponding amount. But fortunately their scheme was nipoed in the bud, and mainly through the instrumentality of Charles F. Allen. The people, the court and the jury saw through their veil of hypocrisy with which the prosecution tried to seel nde their dishonest motive, and to-day the Commissioner stands vindicated, while his persecutors, at least some of them, have dug a political pit for themselves.

Then Baby was nich, we gave her Castoria, Then she was a Child, she cried for Castoria, Then she became Miss, she clung to Castoria. Then she had Children, she gave them Castoria.
