Lloyd Brown is the youthful, quiet and unassuming son of Al. Brown, a well known and respected resident of Lost Creek. The boy, notwithstanding his tender years, is showing a disposition to be quite a wit—one of those natural wits who do not borrow from the almanacs and practice patience-robbing impositions upon the people. In almost every case in which he springs his wit it is unpremeditated and he frequently fails to realize that he has said anything to make his hearers smile. It was one of these spontaneous outbursts that caused me to pen this reference to him. A neighboring family of the Browns have a son who was unfortunate enough to lose one of his eyes. The other day Lloyd met the neighbor's boy and said, "Johnny, ain't it funny you have only one eye and I have two, yet you can see twice as much as I can?" "Aw, whatcher givin' me!" exclaimed Johnny. "Yes, truly," persisted Lloyd. "When I look at you I can only see one eye, but when you look at me you see two eyes."

It is claimed that the city of Baltimore has solved the tramp problem, and that the solution has been found in the one word "Work." The tramp problem has always been a serious one, but much more so during the present year, when the tramps discovered how much more effectively they could ply their trade of intimidation by marching through the country in organized bodies than by trampng separately or in groups of twos and threes. Under the old plan they secured only households, especially when the men were away from home, into giving them food, shelter, or money; under the new plan, they terrorize law-abiding citizens, and even the police. The idea is a good one, and the city of Baltimore has realized it by making the price of its hospitality to tramps compensating labor. To every tramp who applies at the city for food and shelter, they are given, not only meals, but also clothing, and their demands. They have done so successfully that one of the prominent leaders of the Coxyites has publicly expressed his surprise that it was not thought of earlier.

To the unemployed residents who sought aid the organization offered employment as stone breakers; it bought and sold at regular market rates, paying price rates for labor. Fifty cents was the rate for four hours work; $1 for eight hours work, and no applicant could receive more than that on any one day. In January the applicant given the eight-hour task was obliged to have not less than four persons dependent upon his earnings, 6,990 persons were employed, and 7,000 tons of stone broken. The total for 1893 was $110,000, only $8,000 had to be raised by subscription. The result of the winter's effect was entirely satisfactory, citizens testifying that street and house-to-house begging had almost ceased, and the relief starting that tramps and vagrants are now existing in few in Baltimore. The secret of success was in obliging those who sought aid to pay a just price for it, to pay for it with their own labor.

SUGAR SCHEDULE CHANGES

Senator Blanchard, of Louisiana, is the Only Objector. WASHINGTON, June 29.—The amended sugar schedule, which will probably be offered when the tariff bill is taken up in the senate, has been put into shape by Senator Jones. It was accepted by all to whom it was shown except Senator Blanchard. The amendment as prepared changes the date when the sugar schedule shall go into effect from the first day of January to the time of the passage of the bill, and provides for a continuation of a part of the bounty for the present year, giving nine-tenths of a cent bounty per pound on sugar testing above 90 degrees by the polariscope, and eight-tenths of a cent on sugar testing below 90 degrees and above 80 degrees. The secretary of the treasury is also authorized to refrain from imposing the additional duty of one-tenth of a cent upon sugar imported from countries paying an export bounty where it is demonstrated to his satisfaction that the producer has not received the bounty.

Senator Blanchard's objection is understood to be based upon the ground that a part of the bounty of two cents for the present year is withdrawn; but the aim of the framers of the bill is to avoid giving double protection to this article, and they agree that if the duty is to go into effect immediately the bounty should be abated to the extent of the protection afforded by the 40 per cent duty which the sugar schedule as at present arranged will afford. There are one or two Democratic members of the finance committee to whom the amendment has not yet been submitted. The developments of the day confirm the report of the conference between Senator Irbly and the three Populist senators, Allen, Kyle and Peffer. They will oppose the differential duty of one-third of a cent a pound on refined sugar, and may carry their opposition to the extent of antagonizing any duty at all on sugar.

ATTEMPT TO WRECK A TRAIN. OTTAWA, Ont., June 29.—An attempt was made to wreck the west-bound Canadian Central train from Montreal. A few miles this side of Buckingham, about twenty miles from Ottawa, a large stick of timber, which would take several men to lift, was planted in a culvert. Had the culvert not given way the train would certainly have been wrecked. As it was, the locomotive was raised several feet in the air, and it is miraculous that it and the cars were not derailed. There were a large number of passengers on the train. Two tramps are in custody on suspicion.

A brakeman was badly injured. Seven cars were wrecked and much damage done.
