Last June, Dick Crawford brought his twelve months old child, suffering from infantise diarrhoes, to me. It had been weaned at four months old and being sickly everything ran through it like water through a sieve. I gave it the menal treatment in such cases but without benefit. The child kept growing thinner until it weighed but little more than when born, or perhaps ten pounds, then started the father to giving Chamberlain's Colle, Cholera and Diarrhosa Reinedy. Before one bottle of the 13 cent size had been used a marked in provement was seen and its continued use cured the child. Its weakness and puny constitution disappeared and its father and myself believe the child's life and street by this remove. It. T. Markey M. H. Bachman,

What is Beauty?

Replied Aristotle. But Mrs. Sherwood says that it is "dynamite" in her article which opens the interesting pages of the July Cosmopolitan. Beauty is always a fascinating subject, and Mrs. Sherwood's discussion is an especially interesting one. That the July Cosmopolitan is a mid-summer number is shown in many directions. Three short stories, including one of spert and adventure, two travel articles, and other light matter, make up 125 pages of charming summer reading. The July Cosmopolitan marks the close of the first year since the revolutionary announcement was made that the price of that magazine, already low, had been cut to one half of three dollars a year. All sorts of predictions have come to be unfulfilled during the year—it would be impossible to maintain the rate—the quality would be lowered—the size would be decreased. But even severe critics admit that with each succeeding number there has been a betterment in the quality of articles and illustrations, and the size has remained unchanged, except the always growing advertising pages. The magazine printed, for the six months embraced in Volume Xvi. one million four bundred and nincteen thousand copies, an entirely mapproached record, and has doubled its already large plant of presses and bluding machinery. The wails of the magazine's new home are rapidly rising attrivington on-the Hudson. Artisacially designed by McKim, Mesd & White, the new building, with its eight great portices, will be 21% feet long by w feet wide, and one of the most perfectly lighted buildings in the world, having 100 large windows, each nearly double the size of the ordinary window opening.
