DIGGING KAURI GUM, A Curious but Important Industry Peculiar

to New Zealand,

Kauri gum digging is an industry pe-culiar to New Zealand, though copal gum, the product of an African forest tree, is produced in a very similar manner. The gum is the hardened sup or restin of the kanri pine and is found imbedded in the earth of mooriands, where the soil is light and clayer. Such soil contains pieces of hardened goin, varying from mere frag-ments to blocks as large as a man's body. It is just below the surface of the ground, or at a depth of from 6 to 19 fest. The land which contains it is usually poor and land which contains it is usually poor and black, though the gum sometimes occurs in growing kauri forests, especially around the roots of old or dead kauris. Curious-ly, the sap or reain of the living trees is not of any false, being too soft. It must be burbed underground for many years be-fore it acquires the hardness necessary to fit it for the market. The same as it is done on its in a same

The gum, as it is dug up, is in a semi-fosallized condition and is found wherever in past ages kauri forests grew, and of course the existing kauri forests are mak-ing deposits which will be neeful in years to come. It is very like amber in appear-ance and in general qualities, though it is not so beautiful or valuable. Clear or protilly marked polces are often made into brooches, earrings or other small orna-ments, but they are too brittle to be of much value. In color the gum varies from a pale yellow to a brown or even jot black, and, like amber, is clear or clouded. Naturally enough, a substance so like amber is often fraudulently passed off as am-ber or used in the various compositions made to consterfeit that beautiful product. The cleaver it is the more highly it is es-teemed. Small insects, bugs and files are sometimes found imbedded in it.

Keuri gram came bito the market in the years 1840 and 1841, when New Zeatand was first octomer by the British. The Maoris used to collect it and sell it to the storekeepers at $25 to $30 a ton. For many years the amount exported was very small, not more than 100 tons per amum. Most of the gum that is produced is sold to the United States, New York and Boston buy-ing two-thirds of the whole annual out-nt. The gum digging industry employs sout 2,000 men, though this number is constantly fluctuating, and at times as many as 4,000 people have been engaged in it. In the three years from 1870 to 1875 inclusive, the amount exported was very large, being about 15,000 tons, valued at $2,500,000. From 1858 to 1880 inclusive the total output was about 70,000 tons valued at more than $10,000,000. Th price of gum varies considerably, accord-ing to its density, clearness, hardness and other qualities, but the average price is about $215 a ton. The land, which is now covered with ferns, was once clothed with kauri forests. terns, was once clothed with knucl foresta but how long ago the forests died, and how old they were when they died is very hard to tell. The work of gum digging is ar-dinous, and the hours of labor, especially in summer, are long.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Forty Acres.of Lumber Wiped Out by the Flames.

THE LOSS WILL REACH $2,000,000.

Sudden Change of the Wind Drives the Finmes Upon the Firemen, Who are Compelled to Fice-Two People Dead and Another Fatally Isjured.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—The lumber district of Chicago was last night visited by one of the most disastrons fires in its history, and the loss will probably foot up between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000, although it will be twenty-four hours before the damage can be estimated with accuracy. The can be estimated with accuracy. The burned district is about six squares from east to west, and about three from north to south. The greatest portion of the district bounded by Blue Island avenue, Lincoln street, the river and Ashind avenue was burned over, and forty acres of lumber yards are nothing but smoking embers.

The fire was discovered by a watchman. He saw a blaze on the outside of the fence on the east side of Lincoln street, near a shingle shed belonging to S. K. Martin & Co. He turned in an alarro, but before the first engines arrives the shingle shed was a mass of flames, which had communicated to the surrounding had communicated to the surrounding lumber piles. The wind drove the flamos so ficrely that the first engines were ut-tarly helpless, and call for additional help was made until fifty engines and three fireboats were at work on the fire.

The course of the flames was southeast and east for the first forty-flye minutes, and they literally licked up everything in their path. Files of lumber, lath shingles their path. Files of lumber, lath, shingles and cedar posts were swallowed up with an appalling rapidity. The wind sud-denly changed at 9:80 o'clock and began to blow from the south, and with much less violence than before. The flames started rapidly north sgain, and burned back to a line level with its starting point. The sudden change in the direction of the flames caucht nevers the flames caught several origine compan-ies unprepared and the men were com-pelled to run for their lives. Two engines were abandoned. The fireboat Yosemite was at work in one of the slips when the was at work in one of the slips when the fire changed and the long tongues of finmes which shot over hor mide it neces-sary that she be removed at once. Her steam was so low that the boat could not be moved with any rapidity, and the men frantically pushed her off with poles and boards. She finally escaped with no more damage than a severe scorching in sev-eral places.

eral places. The fireboat Geyser ran through the fames which leaped out over the slip and escaped unharmed. Two of her men, John McCann and Thomas Freeding, were badly burned while fighting the fire. Both were knocked over the side of the boat upon a pile of burning cedar poles. Their injuries are not fatal. Peter Phelan, a pipeman, inhaled hot air and was badly burned.

In addition the firemen injured the following casualties occurred: Otto Rafter fell off a lumber pile, back broken and will die; unknown man struck on the head by a flying cap from a fire cogine, knocked into the river and drowned; unknown boy pushed into the river by the crowd and drowned.
