

THE LITTLE ONES.

Dr. Grinnell Recommends Lactated Food.

Cholera Infantum is Reaping a Harvest.

Lactated Food is the Surest Preventive.

It Has Saved Thousands of Infant Lives.

Every Parent Should Now be Supplied With It.

"After using lactated food for five years in cases of children suffering from cholera infantum, and in debilitating or wasting diseases, during which time it never failed me, I have pleasure in calling the attention of physicians to it, and in recommending its use."

So says A. P. Grinnell, M. D., the dean of the medical faculty of the University of Vermont, and the statement is published in the Ladies' Home Journal.

The statement is of inestimable value to mothers.

More than a fifth of all the babies born in Pennsylvania die before they have lived a year. And two-thirds of these die in summer of cholera infantum and kindred diseases.

High temperature makes it difficult for baby's stomach to digest its usual food. It is then that unusual precautions must be taken or the weak, sickly babies fall victims to cholera infantum.

During hot weather strength must somehow be kept up, and yet without burdening and overtaxing the delicate digestive organs. It is just here that mothers and physicians find lactated food necessary. The explanation of the great success of this food in keeping babies strong through the summer is that in its composition nature's food for babies has been the model. It is pleasant to the taste, and is taken by babies with relish, and is easily digested and assimilated.

It is what physicians term a pre-digested food, and is especially valuable in all weak conditions of the digestive organs, not only for infants, but for invalids and aged persons.

Mother's milk may stop worrying about their babies after they have once been put on a diet of lactated food.

Trained nurses keep lactated food on hand even when baby is fed on mother's milk. In cases of failure of the natural milk, or when weaning or during any possible illness of the mother, lactated food best takes the place of the natural food. Try it. It saves babies' lives.

OMAHA'S STRIKING BUTCHERS.

Cases of Intimidation and Violence Growing More Frequent.

OMAHA, Aug. 8.—The situation at South Omaha is more serious today than at any time since the butchers' strike began, and Adjutant General Gage is closely watching the angry strikers. All the packing houses are surrounded by strikers, most of whom are armed, and persons desiring to enter the plants must satisfy the guards of strikers who are located every few yards. The trade in revolvers has been rushing here for the last week. Permits have been issued to many of the men to carry guns, and each day the situation grows more serious.

Anthony Franks, a man employed at Cudahy's, was pursued by strikers last evening and fired at five times.

The executive committee of the strikers disclaim any knowledge of assaults committed by the union men. They claim all the men who went out are given strict orders not to create any disturbance whatever. The company has chosen fifteen citizens and will ask Mayor Johnson to swear them in as special policemen. The packers still claim that many more of their old men want to go back to work, but are afraid they will be assaulted.

The strikers claim none of the old men have gone to work, but that on the other hand several of the men came out on Monday because they would not work for $1.20 a day.

New men are being put to work as they are needed, and the packers say that by the end of the week they will be running a full force. The hog butchers held a meeting last night, and agreed to stay out until the packers paid them the scale submitted. Warrants were issued for the arrest of C. S. Pelach, accused of the Hammond plant of destroying property, and Herman Thiel, of destroying property at the same plant by throwing stones through a window.

Cases of intimidation are being reported daily at police headquarters, and the chief's attention has been called to several cases where men have gone to the homes of those who were at work and compelled their wives to go after their husbands and take them from their work, or if they could not do that, to suffer the consequences.

Fatally Struck by His Son.

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—Henry Whitmann, the victim of his sons' assault, is lying at the county hospital in a dying condition. The two boys, one aged 16 and the other 22, were taken to the hospital and identified by the dying father as his assailants. The boys, Walter and Harry, returned home after spending the night at a dance. Mr. Whitmann upbraided them for staying out so late, and the boys retaliated with angry words. From words they resorted to blows, and the father was chastising the boys in a wholesome manner when one of them plunged a knife into the old man's stomach, producing a frightful wound.

TERRORS OF THE ARCTIC

Details of the Loss of the Steamer Ragnvald Jarl.

BOTTOLFSEN'S PERILOUS TRAMP.

He and Two Companions Traveled Two Hundred and Thirty Miles, Dragging an Aluminum Boat Behind Them, to Bring News of Walter Wellman's Expedition.

TROMSØ, Norway, Aug. 8.—Captain Bottolfson, who brought to this place the news of the loss of the Wellman Polar expedition steamer Ragnvald Jarl, gives, in an interview, further details of the adventures of the Wellman party. He says that the expedition reached Walden Island on May 17, when the pack ice was becoming troublesome. Mr. Wellman and his party started north on sledges on May 24. On May 28 the screwing of the ice commenced in real earnest. Near the steamer were icebergs which towered as high as the yard arms of the vessel's masts. While the crew were drinking their afternoon cup of coffee on that day the steamer was suddenly crushed by the ice as if it were a match box. The water rushed in with terrific force, and in a few minutes the vessel was a complete wreck. The crew in the meantime had escaped to the shore.

The crew had been occupied for several days previous in bringing provisions and the aluminum boats ashore. They were now obliged to take shelter in a great dog kennel until they were able to build a hut from the wreckage of the steamer. Through a hole which had been made in the side of the wrecked vessel the party were enabled to save a quantity of coal and other useful articles. An express party was sent after Mr. Wellman, and overtook him and his companions at Marten Island. Wellman, Dodge and two others returned to Walden Island and held a council. Captain Bottolfson, Wedfeldt and a sailor volunteered to go and seek for sealing vessels to the southward.

Mr. Wellman resumed his journey northward on May 31, but Bottolfson and his party were unable to start on their trip, owing to the heavy pack ice, and were still detained at the island on June 23, when Sandø, Iversen, Winslip and Heyerdahl returned to Mr. Wellman, owing to lack of provisions and to troubles in regard to ice and water. On June 27 Captain Bottolfson and his party started southward in search of sealers, hauling behind them a twelve foot aluminum boat. They passed four terrible weeks of storm and heavy snow, sometimes hauling their boat, and sailing or rowing where there was open water. In this way they traveled 230 miles along the Spitzbergen islands. They were compelled to throw away nearly all their extra clothing and much of their equipment, as the boat was overloaded. Their passage across Hølenøst was particularly difficult and dangerous. All of the party were wet to the skin, and the cold being intense, their sufferings were most severe. The cold on the nights of July 10 and 12 was simply awful.

In a hut at Mowset Bay they found and repaired an old gig. On July 13 they tried to cross Wjids bay, but were obliged to return, owing to the fog and ice. They made another start on the 15th, but the ice proved to be dense, and they were obliged to leave the gig and proceed, hauling the aluminum boat. Seven Norwegian sealers were seen east of the Norse islands, but failed to respond to the party's signals. As Norse bay lay open, Nordenskjöld's hut, where a provision depot was maintained by a Tromsø skipper named Scaron. The party had to take their boat around Welcome Point. On July 19 they were taken aboard the steamer Mallegne, Captain Pedersen. Heyerdahl was landed at Dane's Island to join Professor Oym, who was well, but still declined to leave the island.

Captain Bottolfson says that during the journey along the coast his party were able to shoot a few Polar bears and reindeer. He says that Captain Pedersen proved a splendid icebreaker. Bottolfson is high in his praise of aluminum boats. The dogs he had with him proved useless, becoming sorefooted, and had to be shot. He says that Sandø and his companions left Wellman June 17, six miles east of Platen, on his way to Ribes Island. All his party were well. He says it is probable that the two engineers and a stocker who were left at Walden Island will be rescued by sealers as soon as the ice and weather becomes favorable enough for them to proceed eastward.

THE RAILROAD MAN, THE CLERGYMAN, THE BUSINESS MAN, and all other men who have to look neat while at work, should know about "CELLULOID" COLLARS and COFFEES. They look exactly like linen, wear well and being waterproof do not wilt down with heat and moisture. They do not soil easily and can be cleaned in a moment by simply wiping off with a wet sponge or cloth. Do not confuse these in your mind with composition goods. Every piece of the genuine is stamped like this:

TRADE MARK. CELLULOID

Ask for these and refuse anything else if you wish satisfaction. Remember that goods so marked are the only waterproof goods made by coating a linen collar with waterproof "Celluloid," thus giving strength and durability. If your dealer should not have the "Celluloid" send amount direct to us and we will mail you sample post-paid. Collars 25c each. Cuffs, 50c pair. State size and whether stand-up or turned-down collar is wanted.
