CONFERRERS SUSPENDED.

It is Caused by a Resolution by Senator Hill.

THE BILL STILL IN DOUBT.

The Resolution Calls Upon the Senate Conferrees to Report the Existing Difficulties to the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Yesterday was the first day in the senate since the tariff bill was sent a second time to conference that there was any unusual interest in the proceedings. Senator Hill, who has been the central figure in several dramatic scenes during the tariff debate, was again in the van of the fray. His resolution directing the tariff conferrees to report the difficulties and cause of the failure to agree was a sensation. It was almost adopted before the senators fully realized its importance. The conferrees were aware of it, and were willing it should be adopted. By parliamentary tactics a vote was prevented on the resolution either as presented by Senator Hill or in the form urged by Senator Aldrich.

Enough was developed, however, to show the temper of the senate conferrees. Senator Vassar hoped that it would pass so that "the calcium light might be turned on," and he be given an opportunity to "refute the infamous lies that have been told about the conferrees on the part of the senate." Senator Harris was willing that the conferrees should have an airing, but wanted it done in a strictly parliamentary way. Senators Vilas, Gray, Pasco and others desired that action be postponed.

The conservative senators were anxious that the conferrees should tell all, and upon this point they for a time followed the lead of Mr. Hill. By skillful management those who did not want a rupture at once prevented the impending conflict. The resolution finally went over, and the Republican managers, who were assisting to make trouble, saw that the Democrats were uniting to prevent the storm and would not risk another vote in order to keep the resolution before the senate.

The remainder of the session was devoted to the consideration of the Chinese treaty. The senate adjourned at 4:30 p. m. today, although the peace-makers endeavored to have no session until Monday.

When the tariff conference closed last night it was with the understanding that the meetings would be postponed for the present. No time was set for reassembling the conferrees, and it was felt that no further sessions might be necessary in case the senate acted favorably today on Senator Hill's resolution, directing the senate conferrees to report the condition of affairs. What was of most importance was the feeling expressed by the house conferrees at the close of the conference that in case the Hill resolution passed—and they believed it would—the conference would practically be relieved of its work, and it would remain only for the house to accept the senate bill as a lesser evil, as they believe, than the McKinley law.

These conclusions were reached after a day of intense excitement among the tariff leaders. The day opened with the senate proposition for free sugar still pending before the conference. Chairman Wilson and his house associates were satisfied that the tender of free sugar was not made in good faith, and they had therefore requested the senate conferrees to furnish a poll of the senate showing that if the proposition were accepted it would be adopted by the senate and the bill passed. The poll was considered as soon as the conferrees convened. It disclosed that in the event of the acceptance of the free sugar amendment the bill as a whole would be voted against by thirty-eight Republicans and by Senators Kyle, Allen and Peffer, Populists, and Caffery and Blanchard, Democrats, a total of forty-three votes, or sufficient to defeat the bill.

This poll was made on the best judgment of the senate conferrees. The house men accepted it as showing conclusively that the tender of the free sugar amendment, while made in good faith by the senate conferrees, was a means adopted by the conservative senators for the purpose of defeating the tariff legislation and leaving the McKinley law in force.

The discussion brought out for the first time the statement that the defensive alliance between certain senators had proceeded further than mutual co-operation and understanding, and was now reduced to a signed agreement. While members of the conference did not claim to have seen the agreement, they stated as a fact that Senators Kyle, Allen, Peffer, Blanchard and Caffery had reduced their understanding to black and white, and had voted it, to the effect that they would vote against any bill which did not contain a bounty clause for sugar. As free sugar would eliminate the bounty provision, the signed agreement was regarded as showing that the five senators, combined with the Republicans would defeat the bill.

It was while animated comments were being made on the foregoing conditions that word reached the conference of Senator Hill's coup d'etat in the senate. The conference hastily adjourned, the senators going on the floor to take part in the debate. Mr. Wilson was not disposed to attack much weight to Senator Hill's move at the outset, and said that it would be futile, as the senate could not act while the bill was in conference. This feeling was shared to a large extent early in the day by house leaders, who characterized it as one of the "bluffs" which had been made of late to demoralize the house conferrees and force them to yield. Later in the day, however, this feeling gave way to one of profound concern over the situation and the future of the bill.

At 2 o'clock the conference, or a remnant, again assembled with the Hill resolution and the existing debate thereon as the main topic among them. All of the house men were present, but Senator Jones was the only senate conferree in attendance for any length of time. Little or no attempt was made to take up items or schedules, and no progress was made up to 5 o'clock, when the conference separated without fixing a time for reassembling.

The house conferrees no longer disguised the deep concern they felt over the future of the bill. They had made a rough estimate of the vote on the Hill resolution and they felt it would pass. Under these circumstances, they said, nothing could be done until the resolution was disposed of. If through some hopeful turn it was defeated, they said, it would practically discontinue the conference. In that event the house men stated that they would be able to avert the complete defeat of all tariff legislation by having the house agree to the senate bill.

SAVED FROM A LIVING TOMB.

Two Men Taken from the Collapsed Mines at Scranton.

SCRANTON, Pa., Aug. 11.—When the cave in occurred at Hampton and Fellows streets Thursday afternoon it was announced that there were no men in the mines of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western company, the roof of which fell. It was subsequently learned, however, that John Morowsky and Frank Rogelsky had been entombed by the falling roof. Four men were at work in one of the new chambers at the time the cave in occurred, and all started for the foot of the shaft together. The two unfortunate men turned back to get their tools, and before they could get back to their companions the gangway had become filled with fallen rock.

A large gang of rescuers at once went into the mine and began to bore an entrance through a thirty foot wall of solid coal to the entombed men. At the same time a drill was set up, and a hole was begun from the surface to where the laborers were confined. Last evening the hole through the wall of coal was completed to the chamber where the men were confined, and the laborers were found and carried out in a furnished coffin. They said that what was once a five foot gangway is now scarcely two feet high, and the men were forced to lie down during their imprisonment.

It opened and she descended safely until she was about seventy-five feet from the ground, when the parachute drifted into a tree with such force that she was thrown against a limb and her hold broken loose. She fell to the ground and died soon after.

DEAL ON THE SCHOOL BOARD

The Republicans Succeed in Overcoming the Democratic Majority.

NEW TEACHERS ELECTED!

Four of the Seven Vacancies Filled by Selections Made by the Republican Directors—The Modus Operandi.

It did not take a close observer to notice on approaching the place of meeting of the School Board last night that there was something unusual in the wind. Groups of three and four Directors were scattered along the pavement conversing in undertones and each group sufficiently distant from each other so the conversations could not be overheard.

There was cause for this commencing, especially among the Democrats, as one of the number had decided to go over to the Republican side of the board and give that side the privilege of filling four of the seven vacancies to be filled in the corps of teachers. This was an exceedingly important move, as the political complexion of the board stood eight Democrats to seven Republicans, and had the former stood together they could have filled the vacancies to their own liking.

But a deal was made and it went through. Had the Republicans seen fit to do so they could have made a much better deal. About twenty minutes before the board met a moderate Democratic member went word to the Republicans that if they would give him one teacher he would vote with them and give them six of the seven vacancies. The Republicans decided to leave well enough alone, however, and stood by the original deal.

When President Conry called the meeting to order in the Directors' room of the West street school building the fifteen Directors were present, including Mr. William T. Freize, who was in attendance for the first time since his extended western trip, which covered a period of three months.

The committee on teachers and salaries reported that there were twenty-three vacancies for the seven vacancies in the corps of teachers.

But one ballot was required to fill the vacancies. President Conry voted with the Republicans and giving four of the seven vacancies.

The result of the ballot was as follows: Julia Donohue, 15; Edgert Flynn, 15; M. L. Leber, 14; Herbert C. Hooks, 14; Jennie Gunter, 10; Lizzie Belle, 9; Mary Monaghan, 8; Margaret Coughlin, 6; Onna E. McNeill, 6; Mary Whalen, 5; Hannah Scanlan, 2; Mary C. Hassler, 1. The first named seven applicants were declared elected.

The board then took up the question of making promotions in the corps of teachers. Three members of the committee on teachers and salaries had recommended that the promotions be left in the hands of the Superintendent. The following extensions of the rules were read in support of the recommendation: "The Superintendent shall be, ex-officio, a member of this committee, and shall have sole power to place and transfer teachers to suspend them and to make temporary appointments in case of vacancies occurring from sickness or other circumstances; but such action shall be reported to the Board for its final decision at its next regular meeting."

Messrs. Davenport and Morgan were the dissenting members of the committee and argued that the filling of vacancies rested with the Board and it should be done by a vote of the Board.

President Conry said that he had the rule referred to incorporated in the general rules and knew what it meant. It was enacted so as to authorize the Superintendent to fill vacancies occurring during a school month, but gave him no power to fill vacancies at the beginning of a term. That power rests solely with the board.

Mr. Davenport nominated James R. Lewis to fill the position of second assistant in the High school, made vacant by the resignation of M. F. Conry, and Mr. Devitt nominated Michael H. Britt, Superintendent Whitaker said he thought the rules covered promotions of all kinds, but he was disposed to meet the board half way by naming his preferences for promotions and then let the board confirm or reject by vote. He recommended the promotion of Mr. Britt, as first choice, and Miss Lizzie M. O'Connell as second choice.

A vote was taken and Mr. Lewis was promoted to the High school by a vote of 9 to 6.

Nominations were then made to fill the vacancy in the first grade grammar department made vacant by the promotion of Mr. Lewis and to fill the school in the second grade grammar department of the new addition to the Union street school. Joseph W. Burke, John B. Scheuing and Misses Jane T. Lambert, Minnie C. Harnett and Hattie I. Hess were named.

On the first ballot the vote was Burke, 15; Scheuing, 6; Hess, 5; Lambert, 3; Harnett, 3.

Mr. Burke was declared elected to fill the school vacated by Mr. Lewis.

On the second ballot the vote was Scheuing, 8; Hess, 7; and Mr. Scheuing was declared elected to fill the other vacancy.

Richard A. McHale was then elected by acclamation to fill the vacancy in the Coal street school caused by the promotion of Mr. Burke.

of Mr. Neisewenter. The contract was awarded to Mr. Brennan.

Mr. A. J. Gallagher, agent for school supplies, appeared before the Board and complained that he did not think he had received a fair deal in the bidding to supply desks and blackboards. He said 5:30 p. m. was the time fixed for bids to be submitted, but O'Neill Bros' record, made by the committee, put their bid in after eight o'clock. Mr. Gallagher said that he put his bid in before 7:30 and upon leaving the building he met one of the O'Neill Brothers and, supposing all the bids were in, he gave Mr. O'Neill his figures. Mr. O'Neill put his bid in later. Mr. Gallagher admitted he was given a chance to put in a second bid. The committee stated to the Board that after Mr. O'Neill's bid was received Mr. Gallagher was given another chance and Mr. O'Neill was the lowest bidder. The board gave the contract to the O'Neills.

The Board has decided to purchase the property at the northwest corner of Jardin and Cherry streets as a site for a new school building. The price is $4,000, William Langfield, of Bloomsburg, the owner of the property, has concluded to sell at that figure.

It is worth the price of admission to see Terryson in a game. He will play second base for Reading to-morrow.
