THE SPECIAL TARIFF BILLS.

Speculation as to the Senate's Action Regarding Them.

LETTER FROM CARLISLE.

He Declares That the Passage of the Free Sugar Bill Will Cause a Treasury Deficiency Next Year.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—For five hours yesterday afternoon the senate debated the question of proceeding immediately to the consideration of the house bill placing sugar, raw and refined, on the free list. Secretary Carlisle's letter stating that the free entry of sugar would deprive the treasury during the next fiscal year of $40,000,000 revenue and cause a deficit of $30,000,000, which was read in the senate, was made the justification of Mr. Harris' motion to refer the bill to the committee on finance, but Mr. Berry, a Democratic senator from Arkansas, wanted the bill considered at once on the ground that the question was thoroughly understood and that its reference to the committee would mean its death.

The letter of Secretary Carlisle to Senator Harris reviewed the condition of the treasury and the estimated revenues of the government for the next fiscal year. The figures showed that under the tariff bill just sent to the president the revenues would exceed the expenditures for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1895, $15,000,000. The revenues from the sugar duty Mr. Carlisle placed at $40,000,000, and from coal, iron ore and barbed wire at $1,000,000. If the house bills were passed there would, Mr. Carlisle said, be a deficiency next year of $29,000,000.

The debate was marked by one of the most sensational speeches of the session. Senator Vest, of Missouri, turned on the calcium light in a speech of two hours and a half. Always eloquent, the Missouri senator, smarting under what he believed to be unjust criticisms and slanders heaped upon himself, railed with fine frenzy against the president and all those who had assailed him (Vest), his associates on the committee on finance or their motives. He gave a complete history of the struggles in conference and justified the action of the senate conferees throughout. Upon the question of referring the sugar bill Mr. Vest unequivocally maintained that its reference to the finance committee meant its death. He was in favor of considering it immediately, and of either placing sugar on the free list or at least striking out the differential in favor of the tariff.

Mr. Vilas defended the administration against the aspersions put upon it by the senator, and also favored immediate action, as did Mr. Mills, who challenged Mr. Carlisle's statement that the tariff bill would not yield sufficient revenue if sugar went on the free list. Mr. Jones, of the finance committee, offered an amendment to place a duty of 30 per cent. "flat" on raw and refined sugar, with no differential. The pending motion to refer had not been acted upon when the senate adjourned.

The conference report on the sundry civil bill was agreed to. The events of the day did not make clearer the probable result of the effort on the part of the senate to follow the lead of the house in trying to secure the passage of the supplemental tariff bills. The first supposition after Senator Harris offered his motion to refer the bills to the finance committee was that he was acting for a united party; but it was proven that the Democratic senators were very much divided upon this question. It appears that the Republicans will also divide upon the motion, but a majority of them will oppose it.

The situation may be still further complicated by the withdrawal of the Harris motion. Whether the bills go to the committee or are considered on their merits without reference they will be bitterly fought. There is no purpose on the part of the senators who are opposing them to allow a vote to be taken. When the fight begins in earnest the bills will be resisted by every means known to parliamentary tactics—by long speeches, amendments and dilatory motions of all kinds. Senator Hill's example to amend by repealing the income tax was followed yesterday by Senator Quay with amendments which included the entire McKinley law. Others of a like nature will follow. The conservative will move indefinite postponement. They will try to prevent the senators from the western mining states from voting for free sugar by amending the bill so as to provide for free lead ore.

It is thought that the resort to these tactics for a few days will convince all of the inutility at this late day of the effort to pass the bills, and that it may be abandoned. They also count upon the speedy disappearance of the quorum. A number of Republican senators have left the city, and others will follow tonight. Some of the Democratic senators are also preparing to go. Consequently it is predicted that after tomorrow there will not be a sufficient number of senators in the city to transact business. In that event it is not believed that any effort would be made to compel attendance, but all business except that done by general consent would cease.

The tariff bill was delivered to Private Secretary Thibber at the executive mansion at 12:30 p. m. yesterday by Representative Pearson, chairman of the house committee on enrolled bills.

In the house yesterday one more of the appropriation bills was finally disposed of by the adoption of the report of the conferees on the sundry civil bill. The report on the general deficiency bill was also made. All of the report was also made to the Southern Pacific railroad item, which gave rise to a prolonged debate. The discussion was not finished. This is now the only appropriation bill which awaits final action by congress. The only bill of any importance passed by the house was to provide a penalty for infraction of the meat inspection act.

AMNESTY FOR CRIMINALS.

The Beltschoff Conspirators Among Those Pardoned by Prince Ferdinand.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Aug. 16.—Upon the occasion of the annual celebration of the accession of Prince Ferdinand, of Saxe-Coburg, to the principality of Bulgaria the prince has granted amnesty to all political offenders, including those who were connected with the Pantiza conspiracy and Beltschoff murder, with the exception of Karaveloff, who refused to sue for clemency. In addition, 245 common law criminals were set at liberty.

After the abdication of Prince Alexander of Bulgaria in September, 1886, Prince Waldemar of Denmark was elected Prince of Bulgaria, but he eventually declined the honor. Considerable trouble followed. Sofia was in a state of siege, there were military revolts in various parts of the country, and a Russian fleet anchored off Varna. Eventually Prince Ferdinand of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha was elected Prince of Bulgaria by the Sobrajze on July 7, 1887. About July 14 the prince arrived at Tirnova, signed the constitution, and on Aug. 14, 1887, issued his first proclamation, against which the Russian government protested.

Magnar Pantiza and fourteen others, in February, 1890, conspired to overthrow the government and assassinate Prince Ferdinand and his ministers. Magnar Pantiza was shot at Sofia on June 28, 1890, while his fellow conspirators, just liberated, were sentenced to various terms of imprisonment.

M. Beltschoff, Bulgarian minister of finance, was assassinated in the street on March 28, 1891, in the presence of M. Stambouloff, then premier, for whom, it was thought, he was taken.

Murder Revealed by a Dream.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 16.—A local attorney has completed some depositions in a remarkable case. Years ago two sons and one daughter of a Mrs. Kieszowsky, a resident of Posen, came to this country. Several years ago the mother mysteriously disappeared from her home in Posen and word was sent here that her estate had been nearly dissipated and that what little was left was in the possession of Brockart Gardner, a son-in-law of the missing woman. A year ago Mrs. Gardner dreamed that she saw Gardner kill her mother and bury her. She made inquiries by letter and started an investigation that resulted in the placing of suspicion on Gardner. There was no tangible evidence until a few weeks ago, when workmen engaged in excavating for a new building came upon a body which was identified as that of Mrs. Kieszowsky, and Gardner was arrested.

"General" Coxy Nearly Mobbed.

HYATTSVILLE, Md., Aug. 16.—General Coxy came nearly being mobbed at Camp Lost Liberty. He came for the purpose of taking away seven of his horses, and when he was questioned about the movement by one of his men became angry and said he was done with the scheme. This greatly incensed the five men left by the Baltimore police to take care of the camp property, and Coxy was obliged to beat a hasty retreat on one of the horses. The other horses were driven around a bank road, and in this way he got possession of the property. The men gave chase to Coxy, but he escaped.

MISSIONARIES UNDISMAYED.

Foreigners at Seoul, Corea, Are in No Immediate Danger.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—J. P. Underwood has received a letter from Seoul, Corea, which gives some interesting news concerning the affairs of that country. It is from Rev. H. G. Underwood, of the board of foreign missions of the Presbyterian church, and is dated July 12. Mr. Underwood writes:

"There is no immediate danger for us. The Japanese troops have infested the city, and just as long as the Japanese are here there will be no trouble for foreigners. Japan insists on Corea's independence and some radical changes for Corea in her internal government. These suggestions are for Corea's advantage if she can only see it. Japan says she will force Corea to make these changes at the muzzle of guns, if necessary. The American troops are here, and we all feel safe."

PITTSBURG, Aug. 16.—Ex-Councilman David Morgan was found dead at the foot of the bluff overlooking the Monongahela river. His hat and money were missing, and from the character of his injuries it is believed he was murdered by a footpad.

BEATEN IN THE ELEVENTH.

King Kelley's Allentown Peanuts Started Out Strong.

BUT RECEIVED A CHECK.

The Coal Diggers Put up an Excellent Fielding Game and Splendidly Counteracted Terrific Batting.

The Trotting park was thronged yesterday afternoon by some of the most enthusiastic people ever seen at a base ball game and a better satisfied audience never left the grounds. The contest between King Kelley's nine and the home club was a hummer and after the third inning the outbursts of cheers and applause followed each other in rapid succession. Fully two thousand people witnessed the game.

Only those who were in attendance can fully appreciate the merits of the contest and realize that, notwithstanding the poor showing it has made in the state league thus far, the Shenandoah club is a good one. Yesterday the Allentowns batted like fiends, but the home club kept down the runs by superb fielding. The peanut men put in their strongest battery and it did well. It also distinguished itself by kicking on several of the umpire's decisions, but so far, and that part of the game is concerned, the Shenandoahs also suffered from the judgment of Mr. John X. Dalton, and on that score the teams were about quits.

The game started well, Ashenbach, Myers and Gill being retired in rapid succession on a fly to McCooch, one to Sweeney and a throw by Wise to first. It was very pretty done and many of the spectators remarked that Shenandoah would be squelched. But the latter team put up just as good a sample of ball in the start. Wood, Wise and McCooch went out in short order on two throws by Musser to first and one to the same place by Welkert. Sentiment changed a little and some of the skeptics allowed themselves to believe that the Shenandoahs might put up a good game, after all. The last Allentown was here, July 1st, they won by a score of 16 to 4.

In the second inning the Shenandoahs went out on a fly to Costello and a double play by Wise and Donahoe. On the other hand the Allentowns scored two runs on a bunt on balls and two hits. The third inning passed very inconspicuously for the home club, Ross, Messitt and Yeager striking out in succession. George Wood started the Allentown half with a single and Wise added two runs to the score by a terrific home run drive over the centre field fence. The dazzling effect of this was somewhat marred by McCooch going out on a clever stop and throw to first base, but Mulvey followed with a two-bagger and was advanced to third by Milligan getting to first on Gill dropping his fly. A few moments later Gill made a reputation for this error by bugging Costello's high fly and throwing Mulvey out at the home plate, completing a double play and retiring the side.

The work of the Shenandoahs excited admiration, but the Allentowns have struck hard evidence in the ability of the coal diggers to win. In their half of the fourth inning, however, they created an enthusiasm which almost lifted the half-completed roof off the grand stand. Two bases on balls, two singles and two errors by Musser tied the score. The cheers and applause lasted fully half a minute, and it was renewed when the Allentowns retired in their half of the inning without a run, notwithstanding the costly error by O'Hara.

In the succeeding three innings it was nip and tuck, with no gain on either side. During one inning Shenandoah managed to get three men on bases through two bases on balls and a failure of Wise to complete a double play to first, but no man got beyond the second bag. The Allentowns failed to get a man to first during any of the three innings. Six of them were retired by foul and fair flies captured by Messitt, Ashenbach, Gill and Welkert, and the other three men went out on throws to first by Ross and Musser.

After Myers had been retired in the eighth inning by Sweeney's throw, Donahoe, Gill made a hit, stole to second and was brought home on Welkert's two-bagger over Mulvey's head. Again the enthusiasm burst forth like lava from a disturbed volcano. After three sharp strikes the Shenandoahs and succeeded in tying the score. The side was retired on Musser going out by Donahoe's toss to Kilroy at first and McCooch bugging O'Hara's fly. The score stood 5 to 4 in favor of the home team. In the Allentown half McCooch made a two-bagger after Wise went out on a fly to Gill and after Mulvey flew out to O'Hara, Milligan brought McCooch home by a good single. Costello and the side went out on a fly to Welkert, leaving the score 5 to 5.

In the ninth inning both sides failed to score, although the Allentowns secured a splendid opening to end the game. It was Wood's carelessness that spoiled the opening. After two men had been retired, Sweeney and Donahoe, on throws by Musser and Ross to first, Kilroy made a hit. Wood followed with a strong, low drive to left field, which Gill stopped neatly. Kilroy had reached third base and Wood was doing an enthusiastic act at first base when he went out by Myers catching Gill's throw-in and clapping the ball on the merry Wood, while the latter was unconscious, off the bag, evidently expecting a throw to the plate. The Allentowns were retired after a big kick and the score remained a tie.

In the tenth inning the Shenandoahs again took the lead by Gill getting his base on balls and being brought home on a splendid two-bagger by Musser, but when the Allentowns went to the plate the advantage was lost by a failure of Ashenbach to cover a grounder. Wise went out on a foul fly caught by Messitt, who made the capture after breaking through the crowd. McCooch got his first on a hit and Mulvey went out on a fly to Myers. Milligan then sent the ball to centre field. The sphere wiggled about Ashenbach's feet until it got past them and went rolling to the fence, McCooch getting home in the meantime and Milligan remaining on first. The side was retired on Costello going out on a fly to O'Hara, the catch being a brilliant and unexpected one, and the score again remained tied.

In the eleventh inning the home team did not last long. Ross got to first on Kilroy's fumble of the ball, but Messitt struck out and Yeager and Ashenbach went out on flies to Mulvey and McCooch. The Allentowns then captured the winning run easily. Sweeney started out with a two-base hit and was brought home on a good safe hit by Kilroy.

It was a hard-fought victory and the spectators were as loud in their praises of the vanquished as of the victors when leaving the grounds. For the home team it was an uphill fight against the strongest battery and, in fact, team in the league, and batters who knock the ball about like fiends. Score:
