SOME of those sassy little Central Americans who are bothering citizens of the United States and of Great Britain are in danger of getting spanked.

THERE is talk of a steamer rate of 20 50 to Liverpool, but there are a lot of dissatisfied people in this country who could not leave if the rate was nothing and a chromo a premium.

ONE or two more victories like that which the tariff reformers gained in the infamous Bill of Sale will cost the poor old Democracy its life. It was the sort of triumph that eliminates in a coffin.

AMONG the Republican campaign documents sent out this year there should be two notably effective papers. The first, the President's letter to Representative Wilson, ought to be entitled "Duty," and the second, his letter to Mr. Catchings, entitled, "How to Dodge It."

ABOUT the only industrial revival so far discoverable in this country is the desperate activity of Democratic Congressmen in explaining their conduct and seeking reelection. There is the liveliest of men trying to get out of the way of a landslide.

DURING one of the unhappiest hours of the recent tariff controversy Mr. Cleveland was said to have angrily called Mr. Vilas an ass. If Vilas had any desire to get even he would not ignore the present opportunity to indicate the classification in natural history to which he would assign his maligner.

AN EDITOR was recently pommagated by the Vatican conveying to the priests the Pontiff's permission to make use of the bicycle in the performance of their parish duties. In consequence of this several of the Italian bishops have issued pastoral letters recommending the clergy of their dioceses to learn to ride with a view to their being able to convey more speedily than by other means spiritual consolation and assistance to the sick and dying.

THE belief was generally entertained a few months ago that Asiatic cholera in Europe was growing less virulent, and that in this, its third consecutive year of prevalence, it would be almost or entirely stamped out, and cease to be a public menace. Grounds for this were found in the actually diminished death-rate among cholera patients, and in the increase of professional knowledge of the disease and consequent increase of ability to deal with it. Unfortunately, however, that belief has not been justified by events. On the contrary, the plague has during the last month or two shown extraordinary powers of recrudescence and a great increase of virulence, and has spread more widely throughout the Continent than in either of the two preceding years. There is, therefore, among physicians and sanitarians in all European countries a feeling of intense anxiety; if not, in some degree, of discouragement at the apparent failure of their efforts to suppress the epidemic.

AN ALSATIAN LEGEND.

A Peasant of Alsace Explains a Peculiarity to a Prussian Officer.

There is an anecdote related in a French provincial paper, which, if true, reflects credit on the smartness of the Alsatian peasants, or, at all events, of the particular one whose name replies to a Prussian interlocutor is recorded therein. It appears that in the church of Wintzenheim, a village in Alsace, there is to be seen an enormous silver mouse suspended near the altar. Recently the church was visited by a Prussian officer, who, puzzled to understand the significance attached to the mouse, sought an explanation from a villager present in the building. The latter explained the legend thus: More than a century ago the whole of the countryside was overrun with mice, which invaded the houses, the fields, even the beds of the inhabitants, who were unable to sleep, owing to the attacks made upon them by these unwelcome intruders. Little children were especially tormented, and the village schoolmaster, pained at seeing numbers of disgraced faces round him, had what, according to the legend, turned out to be a happy inspiration. He called to mind the Israelites, the serpents whose bites were deadly and the means taken by Moses to deliver them from the reptiles. Reflecting on this, he conceived the idea of endeavoring to rid the locality of the plague of mice by casting a huge mouse in silver, the sum required for the purpose being raised by taxing the inhabitants according to their means. When a sufficient sum of money had been obtained, the project being carried out, the silver mouse was suspended to the wall of the church, and from that day not a mouse was to be met with in field or house.

The Prussian officer, when the peasant concluded, indulged in a hearty laugh at the expense of the simple villager and inquired with amusement whether it was possible that in the present enlightened age there were to be found people to believe implicitly in such superstitious nonsense. "Ah, sir," returned his companion, "we are far from believing implicitly in theory, for if we thought such a miracle had really taken place we should long before now have given our last son to make a German in gold and should have hung him up in the church in order to get rid of all the rest."

South Fifth avenue is distinguished among New York streets because its numbers, instead of running from south to north as in other New York thoroughfares, run from north to south.

Affection can withstand very severe storms of rigor, but not a long polar frost of downright indifference. Love will persist on wonderfully little hope, but not altogether without it.

The Seat of Melancholia.

Dr. Richardson of London notices that all diseases occurring below the diaphragm are attended by depression of spirits, and that diseases of the thoracic cavity are not thus attended, the result of his observations is expressed in the discovery, as claimed, that the seat of the trouble is the solar plexus—that is, there is an obstructed flow of blood to the solar plexus, and a consequent imperfect nourishment of this ganglion.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

An Out of the Way Island.

The island of Tristan d'Aunha, the principal of a group of islets in the south Atlantic, is located in latitude 37 south, longitude 12 west. The population of this remote island is considerably under 100 and consists principally of shipwrecked mariners who located there years ago. They are claimed by Great Britain, and a British garrison was there located during the residence of Napoleon at St. Helena.—Philadelphia Press.

Two Madstones.

Mr. T. L. Morris of this place has a madstone which has been in use fully 100 years. It was brought from the upper part of the state and has been used on hundreds of occasions, and no one who has used it has ever experienced any further trouble. This and the Edinburgh stone are, so far as we know, the only two madstones in existence in this section.—Glasgow (Ky.) Times.

A French physician who accompanied a detachment of 200 soldiers for six months for the purpose of making observations on their manner of sleeping found that 37 per cent habitually slept on the right side, 53 per cent on the left and 9 per cent on the back.

LOSS OF POWER and vital force follow loss of flesh, or emaciation. These come from impoverished blood. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery enriches the blood, stops the waste of strength and tissue, and builds up healthy flesh. Nears Old Liver Oil adds fat, but not fatness, and builds up the whole system. An appealing, restorative tonic, it sets at work all the processes of digestion and nutrition, rouses every organ into natural action, and brings back health and strength. If it doesn't benefit or cure, in every case, you have your money back.

BURYING THE DEAD.

Sad Work in Wisconsin's Flame Swept Towns.

STILL RECOVERING DEAD BODIES.

Five Bodies Found in One Place So Badly Burned That It Was Impossible to Determine Their Sex—The Dead Now Number 370.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 5.—A Pine City (Minn.) special to the Pioneer Press says: The death roll at Sandstone has probably reached its limit, and presents the awful total of sixty-seven. This is not an estimate nor a guess, but an accurate account of the bodies interred. All were from the little village, a few having been brought in from the immediate vicinity. There are here immense quarries, employing in a busy time a considerable number of men when actively operated. For some time work has been light, and for this reason it is impossible to get an accurate estimate of the population of the place, but a fair figure is probably 350. Many took refuge in the quarries and some in Kettle river, just below, in a deep ravine, where the Eastern Minnesota crosses a bridge 300 feet long and 200 feet high.

Many of those who were burned were caught on their way to this refuge, and others were caught in the village streets. In one well four persons died a death that must have been a mixture of drowning, suffocation and burning. Yesterday the well was utilized as a grave, and nine other bodies were placed in it and all covered with earth. Two rescuing parties were organized in Pine City yesterday. One party found two bodies of men unrecognizably burned. Today two other parties have gone out in other directions. The country west of here is very heavily wooded, with few clearings and water. No report whatever has been heard from the settlers, and it is feared that all have perished. The Duluth right of way and the country within a considerable distance on both sides up as far as Skunk Lake has been scoured pretty thoroughly. Careful search was made and revealed twenty-eight dead bodies. They were in an awful condition and could not be handled with any care. Five children of the Groundfield family were so badly burned that all were put in a box designed to contain an adult. The mother and father were in Hinckley and were saved, but their family and home is wiped out of existence.

The bodies of the Robertson family of five persons, three of whom are adults, were brought in, as were those of Mrs. John McNamara and her son, who were refugees from Hinckley and who made their way further up the track than their neighbors. Near Mrs. McNamara's body was a satchel containing $500 in currency and $4,000 in checks. Not far away were the bodies of two unknown boys, presumably from Hinckley. In a cellar half a mile west of Skunk Lake were found bodies which were identified as those of Mrs. Westland and her two babies. A Finnish woman named Sophie Wanki, her baby, Mrs. Westland's sister and Mrs. Lind and her five children. This number, added to thirty-one brought in from Duluth tracks on Sunday, and the body of Otto Rowley, general freight and passenger agent of the Duluth and Winnipeg railroad, swells the total of the loss of life along this track to upwards of sixty.

The work at the cemetery yesterday was in charge of Mr. F. G. Webber. It met with one peculiarly sad interruption. On Monday T. K. Webster, the mayor of Hinckley, thought he recognized his wife in the horrid heap of dead. During his temporary absence the body he hoped to claim for a more formal and sacred burial was thrown into a pit and covered up. When he learned of it he was half crazed with sorrow. A portion of the track where some men remembered to have placed the body was dug up, but neither the body he sought was not the one uncovered or the handling it had received had destroyed the scanty marks of identification, and Webster was forced to admit that the shapeless corpse was probably not that of his wife, and the loose sand was again thrown into the pit.

There is one point where an indefinite number of bodies may be found. It is west of the Duluth bridge across the Grindstone and at the northwest edge of the town, where there was a mill pond of considerable depth and probably 400 feet wide. On the bank nearest the town stood the plant of the Hyman Lumber company and its yard, with about 500,000 feet of sawed lumber. A considerable number of persons were seen making their way to the water of the pond down the ways between the piles of burning lumber. There is absolutely no basis for an accurate approximation of how many there were. One thing is certain, no one who went into it ever came back to give an account of himself or his companions. To the intense heat of the burning lumber and the suffocating volume of smoke which it alone furnished was added that which went up from the sawdust and edgings through which the fire ran to the very water's edge. The water was deep, and those who were there probably chose death by drowning to suffocation or burning.

The pond is still unapproachable. The sawdust bank is still full of fire and as treacherous as quicksand. The smoke is so dense that not even a sight of the pond can be had from a point near the place where the bodies are supposed to be, and it may be some days before an attempt at recovery can be made. The Hinckley horror is dwarfing in its awful magnitude. There are now lying in the desolate cemetery, under a shallow covering of sand, or in rough boxes which take the places of caskets, 216 bodies. Four trenches in all have been opened, separated by about four feet.

The foreman of the construction train reported to Coroner Cowan that on the hill at the north end of the bridge across the Grindstone were nine bodies so completely incinerated that the sex could not be distinguished. The revised list of dead, as far as known, is as follows: Buried at Hinckley and vicinity, 295; at Sandstone, 67; at Potosi, 28; at Miller, 12; estimated dead not found, 60; total, 370.

PENNSYLVANIA'S FOREST FIRES.

No Loss of Life, but Great Destruction of Property.

BRADFORD, Pa., Sept. 5.—The forest fires are still burning in this vicinity, and considerable damage has resulted. Doyle's mills yesterday called on Bradford for aid in suppressing the fires. It was reported that the flames were creeping down on the town from the direction of Mount Jewett, and the inhabitants had all de-sorted their homes. An engine was at once sent forward, but as all telephone wires are down no particulars have been received. It is feared that Camp Halsey will be destroyed. Fire is raging all along the Erie line from Hurlstons to the outskirts of Mount Jewett, and as the wind is rising it may get beyond control again. McAmbly's mills, near Mount Jewett are in danger. So far 400,000 feet of logs have been destroyed there. A large force of men are fighting the flames and hope to prevent further loss.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Sept. 5.—It is reported here that English Center, a small hamlet in Lycoming county of 300 inhabitants has been destroyed by forest fire, but all the wires are down and the report cannot be confirmed. Reports from Pine Creek lumber region indicate the loss of thousands of dollars' worth of property. Bark and lumber valued at $4,000 belonging to Cummings & Hellman, of this city, has been destroyed, together with other large lumber piles belonging to dealers in this locality. It is also reported that destructive fires are raging near Kane, and that the losses are very heavy. Thus far no loss of life has been reported.

Fredonia Threatened with Destruction.

DUNKIRK, N. Y., Sept. 5.—Forest fires raging south of here threaten destruction to Fredonia, which village is practically without protection, the water in the public reservoir having been nearly exhausted by the long drought. Thousands of dollars' worth of property has gone up in smoke.

Another Town Wiped Out.

MASON CITY, Ia., Sept. 5.—The town of Dows, in Wright county, population 1,000, was wiped out by fire Monday night, only two business houses remaining, and a good share of the residences being also consumed.

The Keata Extradition Case.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 5.—General Antonio Keata and his four fellow refugees from San Salvador were brought into the United States district court for examination on extradition. Judge Beatty sat with Judge Morrow. Counsel for the defense at once raised the question of the court's jurisdiction. Judge Morrow declared that for the purpose of the present proceeding the men were fully within its jurisdiction. The taking of testimony on behalf of the government of San Salvador was then ordered to proceed. Nearly all the afternoon was consumed in wrangling over a deposition in which Keata and Juan Cienfuegos are charged with the murder of Thomas Canas, a steamer.

Frazer's Alleged Murders Released.

SEBAN, Kan., Sept. 5.—The six men who were arrested two weeks ago, charged with complicity in the famous murder in 1890 of John G. Frazer, a heavy stock dealer, have been set at liberty. Their arrest caused a sensation at the time, as the men were all prominent citizens of this and surrounding counties. John New, a convict now serving a term in the state penitentiary, was to have been the prosecution's strongest witness, but at the last moment he refused to appear, and the cases against the six men were dismissed.

Vermont's Republican Majority.

BRATTLEBORO, Vt., Sept. 5.—Returns from the northern portion of Vermont indicate increased Republican majorities over two years ago and a solid Republican delegation from this section for the legislature. The total vote is about one-fifth less than two years ago. The returns indicate that the Republicans have carried the state by from 20,000 to 25,000, the largest ever given a governor in an off year, and the largest ever given with the exception of Governor Dillingham in the year of Garfield's election.

Boys Cause a Big Shutdown.

SPRING VALLEY, Ill., Sept. 5.—Another strike is on in Spring Valley. This time it is the "trappers," and while they only number about 100 boys, nevertheless 1,800 men will be idle until they resume work. The cause of the strike is a reduction of wages. General Manager Dalzell wants to cut the boys five cents a day, and the little fellows say they will not stand it. The drivers held a meeting and voted to stand by the boys.

Kocelis Saved from the Gallows.

TRENTON, Sept. 5.—The court of pardons, by a unanimous vote, commuted to imprisonment for life the sentence of John Kocelis, who two years ago shot and killed his mistress, Mary Magolia. There were numerous extenuating features in the case. The court of pardons did not take up the case of Bernard Altenberger, the Jersey City murderer, and he must die tomorrow.

The Strike Against Swept Shops.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—There are 6,000 cloak and clothing operatives on strike on the east side of the city. It is estimated that 400 shops have closed, and the men declared that if their demands are not acceded to all hands, in every branch of the trade in this city, Brooklyn and Jersey City, will go out on a sympathy strike.

Four Drowned in a Swollen Stream.

GENESEE, O., Sept. 5.—A waterspout caused Skelton creek to overflow its banks, flooding the surrounding country for quite a distance. While endeavoring to cross the stream at a point near here in a buggy, the occupants, Mrs. John McPhee, her two children and Miss Mabel Hill, were thrown into the water and drowned.

No News of a Battle at Ping Yang.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—The officials of the Japanese legation continue to assert their belief that there has been no serious collision between the Chinese and Japanese forces at Ping Yang, near the Korean border. Telegrams are to the effect that no information of a battle has been received.

Left a Warning to Young Men.

SCHASTON, Pa., Sept. 5.—E. J. Safford, a shoe cutter, formerly of Greenwich, N. Y., aged 45, committed suicide last night by taking laudanum. He left a letter warning all young men against the use of liquor and the evils of gambling, which he said had caused his ruin.

The New Jersey Judiciary.

TRENTON, Sept. 5.—The commission to revise the system of judicial and legal jurisdiction in this state did not meet yesterday, the committee having in charge the drafting into the shape of constitutional amendments the work done by the commission not being ready to report.

Seven Persons Shot in Hayti.

KINSAULT, Jamaica, Sept. 5.—Seven persons were summarily shot in Hayti on Saturday for alleged conspiracy against the life of Mrs. Gauthier, the favorite daughter of President Hipolite. The press censorship is rigidly enforced in Hayti.
