The WREN in Business

It is characteristic of the Wren that it will sneak in and occupy the nest made by another bird, in preference to building one of its own. This same trait is often seen in business. It is shown by the imitators of

COTTOLENE

No sooner has the wonderful merit of this new vegetable shortening, so much better than lard, created for it a remarkable sale and popularity, than the business wrens are ready to move upon the market with many worthless counterfeits. Any housekeeper can be easily and cheaply convinced of the value of COTTOLENE by simply giving it a trial. They will then be unwilling to go back to lard, or go down to fraudulent imitations.

VETERANS OF THE WAR

Their Twenty-Eighth Annual Encampment at Pittsburg.

CITY ALIVE WITH ENTHUSIASM.

Never Before Has Pittsburg Enjoyed Such a Scene of Animation—Many Prominent Figures in Attendance—The Fight for the Office of Commander.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 11. — The twenty-eighth national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic is now in session. Taken all together, Pittsburg has never before enjoyed such a scene of animation. The sidewalks are inadequate to accommodate the crowds that throng them and the roadways are used along the main streets. Street cars and vehicles are almost blockaded.

One of the features of the first days of the encampment was the performance of Fred N. Innes' new composition of "War and Peace" at the exposition last night. This musical spectacle, dedicated to the encampment, was given by the Thirteenth Regiment band, of New York, a grand chorus of 400 voices (local singers), a company from the Pennsylvania National Guard, Ransom Post, No. 80, G. A. R., of St. Louis, and a battery of artillery, all under the direction of the composer. There were about 2,000 people present, including Commander-in-chief J. B. Adams and staff and others of note.

Governor McKinley, of Ohio, arrived here and has since been holding an informal, but none the less enthusiastic, levee, at the residence of C. L. Magee, whose guest he is.

All the national Grand Army of the Republic officers are here, and all the national and state department headquarters are open and crowded with visitors.

Mrs. Nettie E. Gunlock, the only candidate for the national presidency of the Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic, is here with the Illinois department.

Ex-Governor F. H. Pierpont, the war governor of West Virginia and governor of Old Virginia before the state was divided, has arrived in the city, and is the guest of his daughter, Mrs. W. H. Siviter, of Dithridge street. He will be the only war governor of the few surviving executives of the loyal states in attendance at the twenty-eighth Grand Army of the Republic encampment.

The parade of naval veterans took place yesterday. Over 1,000 men, under command of Rear Admiral J. B. Osborn, were in line. The old salts were cheered all along the line of march, which extended through the principal down town streets along Fifth avenue and Smithfield streets and over to Allegheny. In the parade were carried many historic relics of naval warfare, among them the torn and time stained banner which flew over the good old Kearsarge. The naval veterans went into their annual convention late in the afternoon, thirty-four associations being represented. Resolutions were presented asking congress to establish a college for the education of the daughters of soldiers and sailors.

Rear Admiral Osborn's annual report showed a very encouraging condition of affairs, notwithstanding the defalcation of the fleet paymaster last year. When the Indianapolis convention adjourned there was not a dollar in the treasury and the association was heavily in debt. During the past year all the old accounts have been settled, as well as all bills of the present administration. In closing, Rear Admiral Osborn stated that having served four terms he would like to be relieved of the duties of his office. National Secretary Bostwick's report showed that charters had been issued to seven local associations during the year in the cities of Pittsburg, Philadelphia, Bath, Me.; Boston, Annapolis, Lowell and Rockford, Ill.

After the reading of reports and the presentation of a large number of resolutions, which were referred, F. B. Allen, of Hartford, Conn., was elected commander.

Canvassing has been going on briskly already in all directions in connection with G. A. R. politics. Of the four candidates for the office of commander-in-chief each has a pretty strong backing among the delegates to the encampment. Judge Long, of Michigan, has an enthusiastic following, but the friends of Colonel Lawler, of Illinois, claim to have almost all the northwestern states behind him, while the supporters of Colonel Walker, of Indiana, assert that they have promises enough to carry him through. The Texas aspirant, John D. Bigger, also has plenty of friends, who are confident of his ability to win.

Louisville and St. Paul are making a strong fight between them for the next encampment. The Louisville delegation, however, claim to have promises enough from the various departments to result in a majority of the national delegates voting in favor of that city. Kansas City is also pushing her claims for recognition.

Swift & Co.'s Coopers on Strike.

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 11.—All the coopers employed in Swift & Co.'s packing house, at South Omaha, struck yesterday because the manager refused to discharge two non-union men who were employed during the recent strike of the butchers. The strikers announced that if the two men are not discharged by them, all the coopers in their houses in South Omaha will strike.

A Noted Outlaw Killed by a Mob.

MINDEN, La., Sept. 11.—Limka Wagoner, the noted outlaw and murderer, was killed in jail here by a mob of armed men, who forced their way in. He showed pluck to the last and faced the crowd, cursing them with his last breath. He was shot thirteen times. Wagoner was accused of half a dozen murders.

Chinese Transport Wrecked.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 11.—The Chinese transport Cheun, while proceeding to Formosa with 1,400 troops on board, was wrecked in the Che Tung pass. A panic occurred on board when the steamer went ashore, but all the soldiers and the crew of the Cheun were safely landed in her boats.

A Man and Wife Suffocated.

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—J. A. Rawlins and his wife were found dead in bed at their home in Ravenswood. Gas had leaked into the sleeping rooms from an open gas jet.

Robbed of $70,000.

CLARION, Pa., Sept. 11.—W. F. Collner & Co., general storekeepers at St. Petersburg, were robbed of $70,000 in bonds, notes and cash.

IS LIFE WORTH LIVING?

Solomon Once Said It Was Not, But Afterwards Changed His Mind.

Cheer for the Despondent.

The Rev. Dr. Talmage, who is now touring in Australia, considered this question of sufficient importance to make it the subject of a recent sermon. Happiness is not a question of bank accounts or material prosperity, but rather of health, and this can only be enjoyed where the digestive organs are performing their proper functions.

Were the question addressed to a chronic dyspeptic, a negative answer would probably be returned.

Dr. J. Milner Fothergill, of London, whose name is a household word in England, says of this dread yet prevalent disease, "More distressing than the actual pain is the sense of misery experienced by many, the mental discomfort, the sense of wretchedness, of utter unfitness for work, the mental attitude of gloom, distress and incapacity, the physical discomfort, tends to cause the sufferer to have misgivings that the malady is something more than mere indigestion. A haunting fear that the brain is the seat of the disease, where there is headache, the heart, where there is palpitation or irregular action tortures the unhappy sufferer. The remembrance of this impression hangs like a dark cloud over the intervals of comparative health. Not only does the brain seem exhausted, but the whole system appears languid and weak, instead of the man being able for a twenty or thirty mile walk, one or two miles produce fatigue, and sometimes an intense languor is felt without any exertion at all. When he goes to his medical attendant to describe his case, he says "I take all sorts of strengthening things, and yet I feel so weak." If instead of using these words he were to say, "because I take all sorts of things I feel so weak," he would express a part at least of the truth.

Mal-products of digestion are positive depressent poisons. Strong food does not necessarily involve strength, rather the opposite when the digestion is impaired. A little, well digested, feeds the blood, and from it again the tissues, better than a large meal of which none, or very little indeed, is properly digested. In this condition, the more a person eats, the worse he thrives, because he digests little or none, and unless he is restricted to proper meals, he virtually eats himself to death, and he dies of hunger — of actual starvation, in the midst of unlimited food and everlasting eating. To eat and digest, then, is not one and the same thing.

Dr. Fothergill speaks of artificially digested starch in the following unmistakable terms:

"As the cooking of starchy foods involves their partial digestion, we see that intuitively and without the light of science, man commenced the artificial digestion of starch when only a savage and long before the dawn of history. We at the present, are emerging out of the early darkness and stepping forward by morning light on the path to the artificial digestion of starch, by so doing, economizing the body energy which would otherwise be consumed in preparing such food for absorption."

Paskola is such a food, being a pre-digested starch combined with organic ferments, possessing the property of digesting other foods in the stomach, thus virtually resting the diseased digestive organs and yet insuring strength and nourishment to the body.

Paskola has passed beyond the experimental stage, and is now being employed with the greatest success and satisfaction by thousands of sufferers. Many the man and woman who would have answered the question "Is life worth living?" with an emphatic "No!" now comes forward to sound the praises of Paskola and tell how it has rescued them from a living death.

Mr. L. W. Crisp, agent of the Southern Railway Company, Fort Hill, S. C., writes as follows under date of July 29th, 1894:

"Just five years ago I quit the farm to take up office work. I was in perfect health and for two years following continued to be robust and strong. At the expiration of that time, which was three years ago, I began to be troubled with dyspepsia, but gave the matter little attention thinking I would soon come around all right. Instead, things went from bad to worse, and in the last six months I have suffered frightfully. It has been necessary to call a doctor a number of times. My appetite has been good all this while, while my digestive organs have been absolutely unable to digest any food. I have tried everything that has been recommended, without experiencing any benefit. I have used the medicine of some of the best physicians in this country. They would sometimes help me for three or four days, then I would be just as bad off as I was before consulting them.

"I have lost flesh until I do not look like the same person, only weighing 132 lbs., making a loss of 38 lbs. in six months.

"I had begun to think that I had better look around for a coffin and a place to put it, when just four weeks ago I came across a little pamphlet describing Paskola. I read every word of it and was inspired with such confidence that it was decided to give it a trial. I began taking the product early in July, and by the time the first bottle was half gone, I ordered three more, as I found it was doing me much good. I ceased to lose flesh, had no further headaches, nor did I vomit after eating as previously. In fact I did not feel as though I had anything the matter with me at all. I have now taken two and a-half bottles and am still using it, everybody having noticed that I am improving and my complexion being better than it has been for two years.

"Paskola has done me more good in the past twenty days than any medicine I have ever taken. In fact it is the only thing that has ever done me any good. I sleep well at night, do not dream as I did before using it and awake in the morning fully refreshed and ready for my work."

Such statements as these are incontrovertable.

If you are suffering, if an emaciated form and general lack of strength shows that you are not being properly nourished, send for a pamphlet on food and digestion, which will be mailed free upon application to The Pre-Digested Food Co., No. 30 Reade street, New York City. Paskola is for sale by all druggists.

The Pope for Peace.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—A special dispatch received here from Rome says that the pope is reported to have expressed a wish to arrange the troubles between China and Japan, but was prevented by France, who feared that the intervention of the church would undo the work which France was carrying on in the east.

A Farm Hand Hangs Himself.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Sept. 11.—David Swager, a German farm hand, was found hanging by a horse halter in a barn at Collegeville yesterday afternoon, having committed suicide while despondent over having no employment. He was 55 years of age, and was employed about the neighborhood sometimes.

A Septuagenarian Ground to Bits.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 11. — Mrs. Eleanor Scott, 70 years old, of Marysville, Mo., accidently stepped off the Pullman vestibule of an incoming train yesterday and was ground to pieces. It was her daughter's bridal tour and the party was coming to the city to see the encampment and visit relatives.

THE INQUIRY RESUMED.

The Lexow Committee Again at Work in New York.

TRYING TO SHOW BRIBE TAKING.

Headquarters Detective Hanley Questioned As to Certain Transactions in Watch's and Methods of Recovering Stolen Goods from Pawnbrokers.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Investigation of the police department was resumed yesterday by the Lexow committee of the state senate. Mr. Goff was, as prior to the adjournment two months ago, the inquisitor-in-chief. He first stretched Detective Sergeant Charles A. Hanley upon the rack.

A handsome gold watch which Hanley carried served as a text for Mr. Goff's interrogations, which were directed toward showing that the police were upon too friendly terms with the pawnbrokers for the good of the public; that persons who had been robbed and whose property found its way to the pawnshops were obliged to pay the keepers of those places all the money advanced before they would be permitted to reclaim that which had been stolen, and that it was not an uncommon thing for a pawnbroker to sell officers valuable articles at ridiculously low prices.

The watch carried by Detective Hanley, for example, had been bought for $60, which, it was intimated, was but a fraction of its actual value. Mr. Goff also questioned Hanley as to his relations with one Jimmy McNally, known as "the green goods king," the interrogation implying that the thief taker had accepted gifts at the hands of a man whom he denominated a thief.

Detective Hanley was asked if he had ever received money from McNally, and made an unequivocal denial, which was followed by the question if he had not received from McNally two handsome banquet lamps. "I don't know anything about the lamps; my wife got them," was the detective's reply.

Mrs. Hanley was then placed upon the stand. She claimed that she bought the lamps for $20.

Alonzo Sloan, who admitted, after some hesitation, that he had been for eight years connected with McNally, the alleged king of the green goods men, was the next important witness. Sloan acknowledged that he had been confined in the Sunke Hill penitentiary for a year for swindling a green goods victim in New Jersey. He explained that he worked with McNally because "the king" had money and he could borrow when broke.

Some letters addressed to "Dear Jim" were shown him. He acknowledged that they were sent him by McNally. One of them was read to the committee by Mr. Goff. In the letter Sloan complained that he was not well treated by McNally, although he had received twenty-four telegrams from "guys" in answer to green goods circulars he had sent out. He kept a pool room open in different parts of the city and explained the methods adopted by friendly policemen to warn him of approaching trouble.

William Applegate, a former clerk employed by McNally, testified that the so called "king of the green goods" men is now in Paris, accompanied by Miss Lulu Applegate, sister of the witness. Young Applegate was employed to fold circulars at the folding office, corner Elizabeth and Broome streets.

Joseph M. Rothschriber was placed on the stand. He denied having ever done any printing for McNally. But the prosecution produced a damning letter that he sent McNally. He broke down and confessed that he had told a falsehood. Chairman Lexow said he would be compelled to call the attention of the grand jury to the perjury of Rothschriber.

Young Applegate again resumed the stand, and said that as confidential man for McNally he had paid money for protection to the different police captains and wardmen. Boxes and packages of "dummies" were produced and attracted much attention.
