Notice!

Hereafter all political advertisements, etc., MUST BE PAID FOR IN ADVANCE. This is imperative, as the management has experienced long enough and finds that collections for this kind of work are more easily made at the time the contracts are made than at any other time.

A private sure way to commit political suicide is to accept a Democratic nomination in these days.

Perhaps the Democratic Administration wants some more "vindication." Well, it will get it.

AGAINST the Communism of Pelf, Mr. Cleveland opposes the Conservation of Self. Now stand back, everybody, and look at the greatest hard-glove fight ever put up in this or any other country.

All cuckoo statesmen agree that it was bad enough of Senator A. Perfidious Gorman to put the Democratic party in pawn with the Sugar Trust, but their chief grievance against him is that he afterward deliberately destroyed the ticket for it. If the owners of the goods ever get their property back again they will probably spike it to the floor whenever they see Gorman coming.

EVERYBODY WILL snub and sit upon the President's nobles who oppose his agrarian policy. He points out to them that their line of duty is his will, which is in consonance with Hohenzollern traditions, and to which after a little experience of the superintendant imperial pressure, they will no doubt smilingly succumb, no other comfortable course being open to them except to resign their titles and territories and emigrate, and even that extreme expedient having its drawbacks and inconveniences. After a little reflection they will very likely adopt the Emperor's view of the Prussian peasant and the legislation suited to his needs and situation, and vote and act accordingly, as an obedient nobility with a high hereditary boss over them ought to do.

OHIO DEMOCRATS have prepared for defeat by adopting a mixed platform and nominating a state ticket. Senator Brice was scored by the speakers and, indirectly, in the platform, but no resolutions of censure were passed. The platform starts out with a hearty commendation of the efficient, economical and honest Administration of President Cleveland, but afterwards dissects, from his treatment of silver, and demands free coinage at the ratio of 16 to 1. Protection is again denounced as a fraud, the party taking advanced ground on the subject of tariff reform.

The result will surely be the alienation from their party of Democrats who believe in protection, and there will be very few recruits to take their place. When Hamlet's mother told him that he had cleft her heart in twain, he replied: "Oh, throw away the worse part of it, and live the purer with the other half!" The Democrats appear to have adopted a similar remedy. They are endeavoring to drive out of the party the worse part, and when they have accomplished that they may live the purer, being out of office.

POLITICAL AMENITIES.

Bloodshed Arising from the Owens-Breckinridge Campaign.

A MURDER NARROWLY AVERTED.

Desha Breckinridge, Son of the Defeated Congressman, Attacks James D. Livingston with a Knife—Judge Kinkead Insulted by a Breckinridge Partisan.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Sept. 22.—Desha Breckinridge had a sensational altercation with James Duane Livingston, formerly of New York City, in the Phoenix hotel last evening. Livingston was standing at the news and cigar stand reading an afternoon paper when Desha Breckinridge came in and bought a package of cigarettes. Livingston spoke to Desha and extended his hand, saying: "It is all over now, and we ought to be friends, Shake hands."

Breckinridge, with an angry look on his face, replied: "No; you one-horse scoundrel, I will not shake your hand. You profess to be a man's friend and then stab him in the back!"

Livingston replied to this by saying that he had done nothing of the kind. Then Breckinridge called him a liar. Livingston then struck at Desha and knocked his glasses off, following this up with a blow on the neck. Desha reached for his hip pocket, and instantly there flashed in the air the long bright blade of a big dirk. Livingston, in a moment of desperation, grabbed at the glittering blade, which Breckinridge had aimed at his heart. The knife went between the second and third fingers of Livingston's right hand, cutting the third finger to the bone. The cold steel sent a shudder through Livingston's frame, and he grasped his right hand with his left in order to stop the terrible flow of blood that was dyeing the floor of the lobby. Then Breckinridge seemed to desire no more blood, and gave Livingston two strong kicks.

The hotel clerk and several bystanders rushed in and seized Breckinridge, and at the same instant Matt Lane, a strong Breckinridge man, ran up and said he would take a hand in helping Desha. Two witnesses say that Lane also flourished a big knife, but Lane denies this. A friend then took Livingston home in a buggy, and Desha Breckinridge went to his rooms across the street.

Just before the trouble occurred with Livingston, Desha and Lane, who were walking up Main street in front of Breckinridge headquarters, met Judge George B. Kinkead, who made several speeches during the campaign denouncing Colonel Breckinridge in the most scathing terms.

Desha Breckinridge said to Judge Kinkead that the election was over and he wanted to tell him that he was a liar. He also applied several other vile epithets to the judge, who replied that he was unarmed, and did not want to have any difficulty in the open streets. Desha told him to go and arm himself and he would meet him anywhere or at any time. He repeated this several times.

Then Lane, who is a comparative stranger in Lexington, having recently come here from Mount Sterling, said, addressing the judge: "So this is Judge Kinkead, is it? When you said that decent people would not entertain Colonel Breckinridge, you lied. My sister entertained him in Woodford county, and I say to you that you are a liar."

Judge Kinkead again said that he wanted no trouble on the street and that he was not armed, when Lane threw his coat and said he was not armed either, and then repeated the language that he had previously used to the judge. Kinkead then walked on out the street toward his home.

When seen by your correspondent Lane said: "Yes, I called him a liar, and I will fight him any way he wants to fight, and what is more, if any of his friends want to take it up I will fight them, too."

By this time a number of strong Owensmen, at least one of whom has already killed his man, began to crowd into the lobby of the hotel. One of Colonel Breckinridge's friends, fearing that there would be trouble with Lane, got J. Breckinridge Willey, a strong Breckinridge supporter, to go in and persuade Lane to leave the hotel.

Then the Owensmen began to talk and one of them, who has the reputation of not knowing what fear is, said: "If Desha Breckinridge and his friends intend to exterminate all the men who worked for Owens, as they seem to want to do, they will have to enlarge the cemetery. This sort of thing won't do, no matter how sore they are. They may just as well take their medicine."

J. Duane Livingston is a man of about 30 years, and is the financial agent of J. Kennedy Toole, owner of the Kentucky Union railroad. He was a strong Owensman, and worked night and day for the victorious candidate. When word by your correspondent while his wound was being dressed he said: "I took Desha's abuse and made no attempt to resent it until he called me a liar. Then I had to hit him. I think I saved myself from a fatal stab by grabbing his knife."

Judge Kinkead is a great grandson of Isaac Shelby, the first governor of Kentucky, and is the first cousin of John T. Shelby, Breckinridge's law partner, who slapped a corner Johnson in the face during the famous Hollar trial. Judge Kinkead is about 42 years old. He has always been considered a man of the highest physical courage, and everybody expects that more blood will be shed before this trouble is over.

Indicted for Libeling Mr. Powderly.
SHENANDOAH, Pa., Sept. 22.—The grand jury returned an indictment against H. B. Martin, member of the general executive committee of the Knights of Labor, for libeling T. V. Powderly, ex-general master workman of that order. When Mr. Martin was in this city some time ago investigating the charges made against a local assembly he gave an interview to the Shenandoah Times in which he said that Mr. Powderly was discharged from the order for insubordination in not giving up the property of the order in his possession.

Terrible Duel Between Octorons.
SWIFT, Ala., Sept. 22.—Edmonia Anderson and Irene Washington, two octorons, fought a duel to the death Thursday night with knives. The cause of the duel was a white man, Mr. Ben Olson, whose affections both claimed. The two fought like tigresses until the Washington woman fell dying with twenty-five stab wounds. The Anderson woman, whom Olson discarded, then stabbed herself to the heart. Olson has fled.

NORRISTOWNS, Pa., Sept. 22.—J. Bowman, Jr., the 9-year-old son of Bentley Bowman, of Philadelphia, was crushed to death in the Keyser grist mill, at Evansbury.

THE YALU NAVAL ENGAGEMENT.

Latest Reports Indicate the Loss of Four Japanese Vessels.

LONDON, Sept. 22.—A dispatch from Shanghai says: There was a most serious loss of Chinese officers in the battle of the Yalu. In addition to those who perished on the Chin Yuen, the captains of four men-of-war, which have reached Port Arthur, are reported to have been killed while fighting their ships.

Admiral Ting directed the operations of the Chinese fleet with great coolness. He was twice wounded, the first time on the cheek by a fragment of shell, and then in the leg. His wounds were dressed on deck. Five Chinese transports reported missing are safe. It has been persistently rumored that three other transports were either sunk or captured by the Japanese, but this is mere hearsay.

The officers of the Chinese northern squadron, now at Port Arthur, still insist that at least three Japanese warships were sunk in the battle. They also assert that it was not the Japanese cruiser Yuhino, but a smaller vessel, the Hi Yui, which was damaged and rendered hors du combat. It is now generally admitted that not a single Chinese battleship escaped without great damage.

The Japanese losses are uncertain. Nobody was able to see the whole action, but from a comparison of the testimony it seems certain that four Japanese ships were destroyed and the remainder of the fleet badly maimed.

A Tokio dispatch says that all the messages over the Japanese field telegraphs to Fusan, except official dispatches, have again been stopped. This indicates that important movements are developing.

The emperor of Japan has telegraphed his congratulations to the admiral and officers and men of the fleet for the victory they have won, and also to the field marshal and General Nodas for the Ping-Yang victory.

His Antipathy to Low Church Doctrine.
CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—By the will of Isaac Clarence Marsh, the late son of C. V. Marsh, a wealthy Chicago broker, the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Ascension is given the entire income of the estate, amounting to $150,000. His sister, Carrie Marsh, is named as a life beneficiary, and upon her death the church is to receive the income as long as it remains what is known as a "high church." The will forbids that any of the money shall be used for the promulgation of low church doctrine, "for," declares the testator, "if any of the money should be used in the teaching of what I have considered rank heresy while living, I should return in vengeance from my grave."

Deliberate Wife Murderer in New York.
NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—Murder was done early in the morning in a house adjoining police headquarters in Mott street. Pietro Romano, an Italian employe of the street cleaning department, shot and killed his young wife Annie under circumstances that would make the motive appear to be jealousy, but some of the neighbors declare the wife was long threatened, and that the incident which gave point to the idea of jealousy was purposely brought about by the deliberate arrangements of the murderer in order to enable him to marry another woman. The murderer has not yet been captured.

Cotton Reaches Its Lowest Point.
NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—A new low price record was made for cotton yesterday, when October contracts sold at 6.37 and further sold off to 6.24. The lowest previous record was in 1892, when March contracts sold at 6.28. In ante-bellum days still lower prices were occasionally current under slave labor, but never before in the history of the Cotton Exchange has the price of the staple touched the low figure now current.

Hood's Saved My Life

I Can Honestly Say This
"For years I was in a very serious condition with catarrh of the stomach, bowels and bladder. I suffered intensely from dyspepsia, and in fact was a miserable wreck, merely a skeleton. I seemed to go from bad to worse. I really wished I was dead. I had no rest day or night. I did not know what to do. I had taken so much medicine of the wrong kind that it had poisoned me, and my finger nails began to turn black and come off. I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. I had faith in the medicine, and it did more for me than all prescriptions. I have gradually regained perfect health, am entirely free from catarrh of the bowels, and pain in my back. My recovery is simply marvelous." W. R. YOUNG, Potter's Mills, Pa.
