THE NEGRO WILLIAMS LYNCHED.

Dragged Through the Streets with a Rope Around His Neck.

UPPER MERIDON, Md., Oct. 22.—Steve Williams, the colored man who attacked Mrs. Albert Hardesty last Wednesday, but who was driven away by a bull dog, was taken from jail here Saturday by a mob of fifty masked men, and hanged from the bridges leading into the town.

The lynching was not unexpected, so the jailer left the prison in charge of the attendant, locked the doors from without and took the keys with him. The mob was provided with hattering rams, sledge hammers and crowbars, and proceeded to force an entrance. The double iron door was soon forced open, and then the brick was torn out. It took nearly an hour to do this. Williams, who was on the second tier, heard the mob and from his cell continually shouted murder. The other prisoners called on him to pray, that his end was near, and this made the negro frantic.

When finally the last obstruction to the interior gave way with a crash, a ladder was lifted to the victim's cell window. With one blow the lock of the cell door was broken and Williams was dragged from under the mattress. A rope was thrown over his head and he was dragged through the streets to the bridge.

Some of the citizens wanted to go to the man's assistance, but the lynchers, all of whom were provided with pistols, threatened to shoot any one who interfered. The crowd's fury decided that Williams came to his death at the hands of parties unknown to them.

County Treasurer Murdered.

GRAND RAPIDS, N. D., Oct. 22.—As yet nothing has transpired to fix the identity of the murderers of Robert Copes, county treasurer, on Saturday. It is probable that not less than three parties were concerned in the murder and robbery. Both shots were fired by the same party from ambush. Mr. Cope's satchel was found some distance off in a swamp. This satchel contained what money was stolen. The amount of money that is missing will hardly exceed $75. Circumstances indicate that white men did the work. The murderers took everything the treasurer had except what was contained in his left hand trousers pocket. Thus they missed their plunder. The victim had the bulk of the money, $550 in greenbacks, in that pocket. If captured the assassins will meet a fearful death without a trial.

Mr. Gerlach's refusal was based on an engagement in his Sunday school and the neglect of Schroth to attend church. He refused to resign or apologize to the family. He attempted to resign last summer, but his congregation refused to permit him.

TREASURER OF NEW YORK STATE.

He Gives More Evidence of the Unequalled Worth of Paine's Celery Compound.

Mr. Colvin Had Suffered from a Nervous Complaint With which Many Are Afflicted--He Tried the Remedy That Makes People Well, and His Experience Was Like That of Thousands of Others.

fact, since having taken the compound, I have not been called upon to use any other remedy for that difficulty. Very sincerely yours,

A. B. COLVIN,
"State Treasurer."

Every hard-working person should heed this truth, that the most cruel taskmaster the world is a man's self when he is ambitious and, moreover, successful.

No eight-hour or ten-hour laws have ever been advised to protect such hard-worked, overworked men against themselves.

Very many are tied to their office desks over books and papers for hours, in utter defiance of the simplest requirements of health. The steady drain on the store of a nervous energy at length shows itself in repeated headaches, neuralgia twinges, rheumatic pains, unrefreshing sleep and a lowness of spirits and strength.

In all these cases there is urgent need of restoring the nervous vigor that has been heedlessly squandered. Just why the great body of really capable physicians have had the greatest confidence from the first in ordering Paine's celery compound in these cases of reduced nerve vigor and bodily strength is not only because of the immediate good results that follow, but because this great modern remedy is prepared from the formula of the ablest reputed scientist and practitioner in medicine, Prof. Edward E. Phelps, M. D., LL. D., of Dartmouth college.

There are hundreds of men and women successful in their work for every one who is successful in keeping well. In many instances a fraction of the care and earnestness with which they attend to their business if devoted to getting well would make them strong and well.

To quickly fill the shrunken arteries and veins with ruddy blood and to refresh the exhausted nerves is the task that Paine's celery compound at one sets at work to accomplish. It takes but a short time with a careful employment of this great nerve food to call a halt to

Mr. Colvin, the treasurer of New York state, holds the highest position of purely financial responsibility to which it is possible for a citizen of this country to be elected.

In many respects the office is second only to that of the great United States official whose secretary himself has just publicly recommended Paine's celery compound.

Now there comes a letter of the same character from Treasurer Colvin.

In the history of the most remarkable remedy this century has yet seen the fact that the ablest and most influential persons in the country and the most progressive physicians, were the first to perceive the extraordinary worth of Paine's celery compound, is very significant.

The fact that to-day this remedy is more widely recommended, by grateful people in every walk of life, than all the other remedies in the world together, is not astonishing. It makes people well!

There have appeared recently published testimonials of Mr. Carlisle's private secretary, of ex-Minister to Austria Francis, of Mayor McShane, of Montreal, of Miss Mabel Jenness, of President Cook, of the National teachers' association, of Gen. Macanley and of scores of other equally responsible women and men. The "plain people" by thousands in every state in the union have testified to the merits of the compound.

Hon. Addison B. Colvin, whose likeness is given above, who was elected treasurer of New York state last fall, was born in 1828 in Ghens Falls, N. Y., where he was educated in the public schools, and where he has since resided. His successful career is known to all well-informed persons.

Writing to the proprietors of Paine's celery compound on July 12 last he said: "I beg to advise you that three or four years ago, when I was suffering severely with a nervous difficulty, caused by too close attention to business, I took several bottles of Paine's celery compound, and the benefit to me was considerable: in wasting diseases and to disorders of the important organs of the body; to dyspepsia, liver, kidney and heart difficulties and to nervous weakness.

It is, perhaps, vague to most persons' minds just what "regulating and strengthening the nerves" really means. No parts of the body undergo such rapid changes as the nervous tissues. After exertion the brain and nerves demand the promptest repair possible. The proper material must be speedily and richly brought by the blood to ensure the healthy working of these delicate parts. It is when the vigor of the body is so reduced that the nervous tissues cannot extract these needed elements from the blood, and when the pale, watery blood can furnish but a scanty strength fails, sleep becomes broken and unrefreshing, depression seizes the mind and a general feeling of ill-being is the sure forerunner of the break-down of some special organ, liver, kidneys, heart, brain or stomach.

Paine's celery compound regulates and strengthens the nerves, which govern and give tone to every part of the body.

The finest branchings of the nerves everywhere accompany and work in harmony with the marvelous network of blood vessels, so that wherever a pin prick starts a drop of blood, a sharp pain tells that a nerve has also suffered. Paine's celery compound stores the blood vessels even to their minutest capillaries with fresh blood, full of life, and builds up the worn down nerves, by bathing them, to their utmost filaments, in the rich, nourishing stream.

Tired mothers, worn out by the ceaseless care of large families, and fathers worried by business and responsibility, find just the refreshment to the nerves that they need so much. Overworked brainworkers, teachers, scholars, young girls in stores and offices regain the sturdy appearance of health in a short time by using this powerful nourishing agent, Paine's celery compound.
