BRUMM FULL OF VIGOR.

He Made a Rattling Address in Town Last Night.

CONVINCING ARGUMENTS!

Points Showing That Democrats Believe That Protection Does Protect—Congressman Reilly's Record.

The people who assembled in Robbins' opera house last night heard one of the best talks on the tariff that has been given here in this campaign. Hon. C. N. Brumm, the Republican candidate for Congress, was the speaker of the evening, and although his talk was rather impromptu and a smattering of tariff topics, it was an able effort and the large audience listened with undivided attention to the end. At times the remarks were greeted with enthusiastic applause and there were frequently remarks of approval in undertone.

On account of the disagreeable weather there was no extended street parade. The Grand Band, committee and members of the Hastings Club marched on the pavement from the hotel to the opera house. The meeting was opened at 8 o'clock by Mr. Horace E. Dengler and the following officers of the evening were elected: John G. Davis, chairman; Thomas Baird, M. P. Fowler, John Lee, C. W. Dengler, J. K. Kehler, Sr., Jacob Bamberger, J. J. Price, A. H. Roads, John Wagner, John H. Reese, J. P. Williams, R. W. Stout, John W. Morgan, P. W. Bierstein, Michael Graham, R. A. Glover, D. H. Llewellyn, D. H. Luderman, James Grant, Marshal Baugh, A. D. Gable, B. C. Church, David Morgan, James McElhenny, T. R. Edwards, Daniel Ogden, J. B. Lessig, William Thickers, Morgan Price, Archie B. Lamb, Moses Owens, Jacob Shane, John Kase, J. O. Roberts, J. L. Hassler, Pierce Walker and M. J. Lawlor, vice presidents; W. J. Watkins, secretary.

T. H. B. Lyons, Esq., of Mahanoy City, was the first speaker. He prefaced his brief but very interesting address with the statement that at the last moment County Chairman Payne had been notified that Hon. John B. Robinson would not be able to attend the meeting; that he was ill. Mr. Lyons then turned his attention to the industrial and financial condition of the country and compared the conditions under Republican administration with the conditions under that of the Democratic party. The arguments were clear and concise and evoked expressions of approbation. In speaking of Hon. J. J. Coyle, the Republican candidate for Senator in this district, Mr. Lyons was very earnest. He said: "Few men in the Legislature of Pennsylvania have made the mark in a single term that Mr. Coyle has. He is able and willing to serve the people in this district, and serve them well. As a legislator, as a man of ability, as a man who can, if he will, and he will, serve the people well, I think there is no comparison between Mr. Coyle and Mr. King, and I say this with no disrespect to Mr. King. I know the two of them. Mr. Coyle is the superior as an intellectual man, as a man adapted to a place in the legislative halls, and he can make his weight felt. The people of this district have not had for years as a candidate for the Senate a man of his ability, or one true to the interests of his constituents."

After the applause that followed Mr. Lyons' retirement died on the chairman introduced Hon. Charles N. Brumm, Pennsylvania's war horse in the battles for protection, and he was greeted with most enthusiastic applause. Mr. Brumm said he intended to hold himself in reserve for the grand Republican rally to be held in Shenandoah on the Monday preceding his election and his remarks would be directed only to a few random thoughts on the questions of the hour. He did not propose to indulge in personalities, or hurt the feelings of any one, and if any one within the hearing of his voice should become offended it would be because the truth hurt. Mr. Brumm said that whatever faults the Democratic party was responsible for were due to the control and domineering power of Democrats from certain sections of the country. That the issues which have been urged by these men are not the issues of the Democratic party. From the days of Thomas Jefferson down to 1892 the Democratic party never was a free trade party. In all its preceding platforms it favored protection to American industries, sometimes high, sometimes low, and always at least favored incidental protection, and if he were a Democrat he would this fall rebuke with his ballot the Democratic party as a father would rebuke the erring child, telling the promoters of the false issues that they must come back to the moorings of true Democracy.

Mr. Brumm then took up discussion of the true intent of protection, free trade and reciprocity, and after enlarging the late Hon. James G. Blaine in a manner which aroused the audience to enthusiasm he took up the tariff schedule and discussed it by sections, pointing to the inconsistency of the New Orleans Democrats demanding a high tariff on sugar, the South Carolina men making the same demand for rice, Tennessee Democrats insisting upon a high tariff on marble, Senator Murphy growing desperate in his efforts to have a high tariff retained on collars and cuffs, and yet all these Democrats and others denounce Protection as a fraud, a robbery, and as unconstitutional. They protect Tennessee marble and put Vermont granite on the free list. Tennessee marble is quarried by cheap negro and convict labor; Vermont granite is quarried by better paid and legitimate white labor. Tennessee is a Democratic state. Vermont is a Republican state.

Mr. Brumm wended his way through the tariff schedule adopted by the last Congress until he finally reached coal. He said "when the committee reported in favor of putting coal on the free list not a single Democrat voice from Pennsylvania was heard to protest against it, except the voice of Sibley, from Erie. Coal is mined in Pennsylvania. It is the greatest product of our state. Pennsylvania Republicans and Mr. Sibley insisted that we must have protection also, but the Democrats who controlled the Democratic party said 'No, we don't care a jot for Pennsylvania. Why? Pennsylvania doesn't give us an electoral vote. It isn't a Democratic state. It is our business to take care of those states that are giving us majorities,' and coal was put on the free list."

Mr. Brumm then turned his attention more directly to a recent article which appeared in the Pottsville Chronicle in which it was stated that Congressman Reilly, while in the committee of the whole, or in caucus, voted for a tariff on coal and could show the record for it. Mr. Brumm said the writer of the article either knew very little about parliamentary law, or stated that which he knew was not true. When you go into the committee of the whole, he said, or a caucus, or before the committee on ways and means, there is no record kept of your vote. You vote viva voce, or you can demand a division and get a standing or rising vote and the speaker will count the votes; and if you are not satisfied you can call for tellers and the speaker will appoint them, one teller from one side and one from the other; then the Congressmen pass between these tellers and the tellers tally "Aye 1," "No 2," etc. The names are not put down. On this subject Mr. Brumm concluded, "I challenge the Chronicle to produce the record," and he was enthusiastically applauded.

The speaker then took up Congressman Hines' published statement in regard to the payment of two thousand dollars by the Hazard Rope Works of Wilkes-Barre to have steel wire rope retained on the protected list, in which he stated that the Congressman who had charge of the rope matter were Congressman Cadmus, of New Jersey, and Reilly, of Schuylkill county. Mr. Brumm said, "I don't want you to go away and say that I said Mr. Reilly got $2,000, for I don't. I say here I don't believe Mr. Reilly did get them. I don't believe he got one cent of that money. I have known Mr. Reilly from boyhood and in all my dealings with him I always found him a gentleman, reliable, truthful and trustworthy. But I have said in Pottsville, and I say again, I don't charge Mr. Reilly with receiving those $2,000; but I do say this: that if Mr. Reilly had such potential force and power in the service of the steel rope company as to keep the protective tariff of the McKinley bill put on wire rope, why didn't he exert some of that power in favor of coal. (Great applause). He succeeded in keeping the duty on steel wire rope, and not a constituent of his in that industry; and yet he voted to put coal on the free list."

"They believe," continued Mr. Brumm, "that the tariff will protect wire rope, cement, collars and cuffs, etc., but not coal."

Mr. Brumm then took up the Democratic answer that there is no tariff on anthracite coal and never was, because there is no other anthracite coal like that produced in Pennsylvania and it can protect itself, and that to take the duty off the bituminous coal would not injure anthracite. "Don't you know," asked Mr. Brumm, "that if what is very much higher than rye the people will use rye as a substitute? Anthracite and bituminous are products that have but one function that I know of, and that is to generate heat, and by generating heat they generate power and light. When you know one is very much cheaper than the other the other will not be bought, but when you keep the prices nearer together the condition is different. Nova Scotia is waiting. Mr. Whitney and other New York capitalists have the option of almost the entire coal fields of Nova Scotia. The coal from this place is beginning to pile into the New England states. It is beginning to push anthracite coal out of the market, not because it is a better substitute, but because it is the cheaper one. Our production will fall off in proportion as that takes our place, and instead of working three days a week at nine per cent, below the basis, my friends, you may only have one day a week and twenty per cent, below the basis. This is where the shoe pinches. Even if it shouldn't shove an anthracite out it will shove bituminous out of Pennsylvania, and when it does thousands of men will be out of employment. They are miners, they will want to work the coal and they will come into the anthracite field and make a still greater over-supply of labor, and you will stand powerless to say anything as

A COUNTY SEAT LETTER.

ACTIVE CAMPAIGN WORK!

Advice to the Republican Voters—A Victory Not Sufficient—It Should Be Made a Glorious One.

Pottsville, Oct. 24.—The Republican camp fires are burning brightly throughout the county. Two weeks ago very few thought such an encouraging change possible. The workingman, the business man, in fact everybody who has suffered from the change from Republican rule and good times to Democratic rule and starvation times, is wide-awake and seriously contemplating the situation, and on election day will deposit the ballot that will bring back the good times which Protection alone can afford. Yes, the skies have brightened and betoken a grand old Republican victory all along the line. There are few skulkers in the ranks now. All, or nearly all, have come to the conclusion to let bygones go as such and are determined to help to make victory doubly sure. It is easily seen that there is a marked difference in the appearance of things in the Republican ranks.

The arrival here of that grand old man, Galusha A. Grow, the other day, brought out the old Whigs and Republicans, many among them who have been taking little interest in politics the past few years, and he awakened in their bosoms the old spirit that did so much in making the Republican party the greatest, the grandest of all that has ever been installed under the stars and stripes, the party that leads and never follows.

"Majorities" Grow enlightened the great crowd with some grand truths. The lagard brushed the cobwebs from his eyes and once more listened to enlightenment and clinched facts. Few left the hall without the conviction that the Republican party is the one to rule this country and keep it intact, safe and patriotic; that it is the only party with a safe and able financial policy and made of able and reliable men. Mr. Grow held an informal reception after the meeting and shook hands with many old friends. I noticed in the audience many people who have not taken an interest in politics for many years.

I understand the demand for speeches from Hon. Charles N. Brumm on the tariff question is so great that it is next to impossible for him to fill all the dates. He has the tariff question down fine and his views are so convincing it is seldom that he fails to make converts on the spot.

The Journal's fight against the high price of bread is getting interesting, notwithstanding some paper are trying to throw cold water on it. There is no telling where the discussion will end. Many think it will result in a reduction in the price of the loaves. The Journal deserves commendation for its work in this direction. It is a step in the interest of the masses and should be especially appreciated by the people who must buy bread. The point made that bread is kept as high as it was when flour cost twice or three times as much as it does now is certainly worth consideration.

The Democrats are making a desperate fight for the Legislature in this district with the hope of being able to make a break in the Republican ranks, but they will be obliged to do a great deal more hustling than they have if they want to come anywhere near the mark.

I notice the Daily Republican is not carrying the Republican ticket, state or county, at its masthead. What is wrong, friend Zerby? You always claimed your paper was the organ of the Republican party and it seems strange to see you out in the cold. You ought to get in line and be with the boys when they give the Democratic ticket its Waterloo.

Scarcely two weeks more, boys, to election day. Much more work is required to make the victory a grand one. Don't remain in doubt for a moment about the result. Just as sure as the sun rises on the 6th of November a victory will be won. Work a little harder and the glory will be all the greater, and you will celebrate the victory all the better for having helped to win it. So once more for the Grand Old Party.

Begley & Schoener's oyster bay, 11 West Centre street. Families supplied with fresh clams and oysters at short notice. Thursday and Saturday.

Good Performance.

The production of Vance's "Limited Mail" at Ferguson's theatre last night was witnessed by a large audience and thoroughly appreciated. The mechanical effects of the play are very realistic, especially those in the railway and saw mill scenes, and Beatrice made a hit with her specialties.

Will Stop To-night.

All the collieries of the P. & R. C. & L. Co. will suspend operations to-night for the balance of the week. They will resume work on Monday next.

Second annual ball of Lincoln Club on Monday evening next. Schoppe orchestra.

KILLED BY A TRAIN.

Thomas Monaghan and Thomas Burke, of Lost Creek, the Victims.

A dreadful accident occurred at about five o'clock last evening on the Lehigh Valley railroad, at a place about a quarter of a mile east of Raven Run. The victims were Thomas Monaghan and Thomas Burke, both miners, residing at Lost Creek and who worked at the Raven Run colliery.

The men were walking on the railroad on their way home from work when the accident happened. As a loaded coal train approached from the rear they stepped to the west bound track and almost at the same moment an empty coal train which had not been seen rounded a sharp curve and struck them.

Monaghan was caught by the pilot of the engine and literally ground to pieces. Pieces of his body were found fully three hundred feet from the place where the men were struck. Burke was hurled down a steep embankment, but was conscious when found. His head was badly cut and bruised and his chest was crushed. He died at eleven o'clock last night at his home in Lost Creek. The coal trains awaited the arrival of the east-bound passenger train due here at 5:35 and the crew of that train helped gather Monaghan's remains and brought them to this town. They were in a horrible condition and it was with difficulty that they were put in human form. They were sent by train to Lost Creek and turned over to the care of the family.

Monaghan was 54 years old and left a wife and four children. Burke was a widower 32 years old and also left four children.

Oysters!

If you want good oysters go to H. Mehl's, 105 East Centre street, next door to Devers' barber shop. The best selected oysters in the town. Private parlors for ladies. 9-15-th-st.

Patterson-Seaman.

A pretty wedding took place at Frackville to-day at 10 a. m., the contracting parties being Mr. James Patterson, of town, the hustling representative of the Home Friendly Society, and Miss Anna M. Seaman, of Frackville. The ceremony took place at the residence of the bride's parents, Rev. Schuler, of the Evangelical church of Frackville, officiating, assisted by Rev. William Powick, of this town. Miss Emma Beard, of Frackville, was the bridesmaid and William H. Waters, of this town, the groomsmen. The couple started on the honeymoon trip at noon to-day and will visit Reading and Philadelphia.

Oysters in all styles at the White House to-night. Our man will sell fresh Morris River oyster around town every day this week. G. M. Schoener, 121 N. Main street.

Sudden Death.

Mrs. Mary Simmons, wife of Thomas Simmons, of South Chestnut street, died suddenly at four o'clock yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Simmons pursued her household duties as usual yesterday until the hour stated, and was about to sit down and eat an apple when she expired. The deceased was a member of the Women's Relief Corps and Lady Harrison Lodge, No. 16, A. P. L. A. Death was due to heart disease.

Soup of the Season.

Mr. McElhenny will delight the patrons of his cafe this evening with a free lunch in the shape of an ox-tail soup. You should not miss it, as it is acknowledged one of the finest of the first course. Look out for Saturday night.

Purcell Won.

The foot race at Delano yesterday between John Purcell and William Wagner was won by the former by two yards. Jerry Ryan, Purcell's backer, felt so good over the affair he gave the "boys" an oyster supper.

Attend the Lincoln Club ball on Monday evening next. A good time assured.

Approaching Wedding.

Louis Greenburg and Miss Dora Hyman, of town, will be married next Sunday afternoon, at 4 o'clock, in the synagogue on West Oak street. Rabbi Chadowski, of Pottsville, will officiate at the ceremony.

Rupture.

Cure guaranteed. No operation. Inquire at the Shenandoah drug store, No. 8 South Main street. 9-13-94

Lincoln Club ball Monday night.

Look Out!

For packed eggs. Lots of them on the market. We never sell any. Wont touch 'em. Only fresh ones at our store.
