Last Night's Demonstration Very Much Like a Funeral.

THE MEETING EXCITING!

Messrs. Doyle, of the Sunday News, Stir Up the Audience—Wanted Cleveland's Picture Turned.

The much-talked-of Democratic parade and mass meeting has been held, and as a finale nothing in the past ten years of local history has equaled it. It was not only a big disappointment to the voters of both parties who had been led to expect a demonstration of extraordinary effect, but also caused the managers to confess that they were chagrined in the manner in which their picture of splendor and enthusiasm had been hung upside down. Judging from the results in this county yesterday the newspapers are justified in calling Slingerly's tour a funeral, and what is worse, it is not a respectable funeral. The mourners are fighting among themselves. During the trip from Tamaqua to Ashland yesterday afternoon there was an exceedingly lively discussion between Colonel Slingerly and his immediate following and the county Democratic managers. The latter tried to impress upon Mr. Slingerly the importance of making a visit to Shenandoah and addressing the people there, as the candidate for Governor had been advertised to appear in the town and the people were anxious to hear him. Mr. Slingerly was obdurate. He said he had a prior engagement made at Reading and he proposed to start for that city immediately after the close of the Ashland meeting, notwithstanding advertisements and other announcements to the contrary. He said he could not be held responsible for any mistakes or false announcements the Schuykill committee had made, and he would not visit Mahanoy City or Shenandoah.

And Mr. Slingerly kept his word. He did not come here. Neither did Governor Pattison, nor Hensel, nor Harry, nor Greenland, nor Beck, nor Collins; in fact, the only visitors were the tailenders of the funeral, and only three of them at that.

Shortly before six o'clock last evening the committee appointed to escort the visitors to town left for Mahanoy City via the Lakeside Electric Railway. The gentlemen of the committee were: First ward—Andrew Meluskey, J. J. Monaghan, Enoch Decker, James Shields, Michael Heffron, Frank Hanna, John T. Stanton, Thomas Tracey, Matt. Giblin, William McGuire, William Walsh; Second ward—George Folmer, Fred. J. Ports, Adam Tabor, M. Mellet, B. J. McGinness, C. J. Quinn, Dr. S. C. Spalding, Michael Tierney, Samuel Weidman, H. W. Titman, F. J. Brennan, M. J. Scanlan, J. J. Bobbin, Charles Radziewicz, M. M. Burke; Third ward—J. J. Franey, M. C. Watson, James Kalbach, John A. Reilly, M. H. Master, William Kimmel, P. H. Monaghan, Dr. D. J. Langton, T. J. Higgins, James Burns; Fourth ward—Frank Wilcom, T. J. Mullahey, E. B. Foley, W. W. Rynkiewicz, John Higgins, Thomas Manley, Edward Burke, T. H. Miles, Edward Brennan, John Scanlan, M. J. O'Hearn; Fifth ward—H. J. Muldoon, Christ. Schmidt, A. J. Gallagher, Daniel Brennan, M. H. Britt, Edward Gallagher, Patrick Hand, James Smith, Christ. Beyratt, Edward Dowling and M. J. Whitaker.

At about half past seven a part of the committee started back from Mahanoy City escorting David F. Magee, of Lancaster, Democratic candidate for Auditor General; Benj. F. Meyers, Harrisburg, and George J. Wadlinger, of Pottsville. A part of the escort remained at Mahanoy City to accompany Hon. James B. Reilly and David F. Patterson, of Pittsburgh, to town, the latter gentlemen remaining behind to make the closing speeches at Mahanoy City. They arrived here at about ten o'clock.

The car which brought the first section of the party over was an eight-wheeler. As it passed through the patches enroute the occupants made liberal use of Roman candles, and as the car appeared on the brow of the hill at Columbia Park the First warders heralded the coming of the party by the discharge of the cannon which did so much service in the past when the Modocs of the First ward were in existence.

An immense throng greeted the car at the Main street terminus of the railway and there was a great straining of necks to get a glimpse of the Governor, Col. Slingerly, Harry and others who were supposed to be on the car. When the people learned that none of the notables were on board there were murmurings of disappointment and dissatisfaction. It put cold water on the demonstration.

The managers put the best face they could on the situation and formed a line of parade as follows:

- Eleven Mounted Men.
 - Annunciation Band.
 - The National Club.
 - Lithuanian Band.
 - Escorting Committee.
 - Grant Band.
- Nine carriages containing the visitors and citizens.
- The parade was really one of bands,

but that made no difference. The people who had laid in a stock of fireworks used them with the same recklessness that would have been displayed if the parade had been as promised.

The disappointment was marked, however. As the parade went down Main street to Poplar, back to Line and counter-marched to Robbins' opera house, there was comparatively little enthusiasm. The failure of either Slingerly, Pattison, Harry, Hensel, or Beck to appear had a very depressing effect. But notwithstanding this the opera house was filled almost to its capacity. There was a large attendance of Republicans, who had evidently presented themselves to hear what the speakers would say on Free Trade.

M. M. Burke, Esq., who had been selected on the preceding evening to act as chairman, called the meeting to order and Mr. C. J. Quinn read the following list of officers: Vice Presidents—George Folmer, Hon. M. C. Watson, M. H. Master, A. E. Tabor, M. J. Scanlan, Chas. Hagonbuch, J. J. Franey, J. K. P. Schelly, J. J. Cardin, H. W. Titman; Secretaries—C. J. Quinn, Christ. Schmidt, W. W. Rynkiewicz, John A. Reilly, Jr., William Walsh, Hon. Jas. Brennan, Hon. B. J. Monaghan, J. A. Toomey, Wm. Kimmel, Daniel E. Brennan, P. J. Gaughan, Ed. Gallagher, Jacob Frantz, H. J. Muldoon, J. J. Monaghan, E. B. Foley.

Mr. David F. Magee was the first speaker. In behalf of Col. Slingerly the speaker thanked the meeting for its exhibition of good will and said the Democratic party had "strong hopes of putting the majority on the other side." It is possible, he said, that the Democrats will elect their state ticket. Before Mr. Slingerly started out on his tour he had hopes of holding Hastings' majority down to 180,000. When he started he was willing to concede 100,000; when he got to Erie he would only concede 75,000; arriving at Pittsburgh Mr. Slingerly concluded that he wouldn't give Hastings over 50,000; but when he got to Lancaster, the place the Republicans are pleased to call "the old guard" of Pennsylvania, Slingerly said, "I will be 4-3 if I will give them over 25,000. But if this thing keeps on from this to next Saturday night I won't be satisfied unless the majority is on the other side."

Mr. Magee took up the question of state issues and declared that Hastings was misleading the people when he declared there were no such issues. He then referred to the Bardsley cases in Philadelphia, harrangued about the connection of Philadelphia papers with Bardsley's transactions and classified the affairs with the apportionment of the state and equalization of taxes as state issues. Mr. Magee tried to make a point that General Hastings should not be elected Governor because he had failed to declare what stand he would take on such issues.

Benjamin F. Meyers was the next speaker. His discourse proved a dry, statistical one and he was not satisfied until he urged with emphasis that the reporters note his remarks on the business statistics of the country following 1890. He said: "After General Harrison had been inaugurated as President, after the Sherman silver purchasing act had been put on the statute books—what happened? In 1891 the number of business failures in the United States had increased from 9,000 to upwards of 12,000, and the liabilities during that year increased from an average of $140,000,000 to $180,000,000."

Mr. Meyers continued his address by attempting to account for the depression of business the past two years. One of the causes, he said, was that when Cleveland's first term expired, he left a great surplus in the treasury; but when he was inaugurated the second time he found the Republicans had spent all the money and a great proportion of it had been used to keep the banks afloat.

It was during the latter part of Mr. Meyers' address that it became apparent that the Democratic party of the town is by no means in a harmonious state. M. E. Doyle, one of the editors of the Sunday News, was the first to announce that the statistical discourse was wearisome. He shouted "Cut it short, you are making the people tired." There were several cries of put him out, but the speaker said, "Never mind. A little noise doesn't bother me."

Later in the evening D. J. Doyle, also of the News, took the floor and in compliance with a request of the speaker for questions asked why it is that the civil service rules are not carried out in other states as they are in Pennsylvania, where they carry the rules on a shutter—a dead letter. While the speaker was trying to answer the question Doyle interrupted him with another, saying as he pointed to a portrait of President Cleveland on an easel on the stage, "Why do you allow that picture to remain at your side? Why don't you turn it towards the wall?"

An uproar followed and amid shouts from the audience of "Put him down!" "Put him out!" Doyle declared that he was the only Hill Democrat in Schuykill county, and defied anyone to put him out. Simultaneously with this Mr. Meyers got in a rejoinder that as he was not a resident of the town he did not wish to assume personal control over any property in the hall, and that Doyle had better step to the stage and turn the picture to the wall himself. This brought forth a storm of applause and shouts of approbation.

Similar scenes were enacted while George J. Wadlinger, Esq., of Pottsville, held the platform. The experience of Mr. Meyers had worked upon the Potts-

GLEANINGS OF THE DAY.

Accident on the Pennsylvania Railroad Near New Boston.

TEN COAL CARS WRECKED.

All the Crew Escaped Injury—A Rear Engine Pushed the Cars Against the Leader—Trains Delayed.

A wreck occurred on the Pennsylvania railroad at about six o'clock this morning, and the reports circulated about the accident occasioned considerable anxiety, especially on account of a passenger train being mentioned in connection. When the details of the accident were received, however, it was found that, although the railroad company loses a few thousand dollars by the wreckage of cars, no person was injured.

It seems that an empty coal train was bound east, running as an extra and on the west bound passenger train time. Arriving at New Boston Junction the coal train, which had an engine at each end, was to take a siding and give the passenger train a clear track. When the appointed place was reached the crew cut the front engine from the train and it started for the switch, the hind engine pushing the train. For some reason which has not been stated the front engine was stopped suddenly and the hind engine pushed the train of empty cars into it, damaging the forward engine's tank end considerable and piling ten cars on the track like so many store boxes. The wreck was a pretty serious one and several of the cars were smashed to splinters. In consequence of the accident the west bound passenger train was unable to get through to Pottsville and the passengers were transferred to the line via Frackville.

The wreck also interfered with traffic on the Lehigh Valley road. The tracks were not cleared until after eleven o'clock, and the train due here from Pottsville and which leaves here at 10:50 for Ashland did not arrive until 11:40.

Oysters in all styles, fish cakes, pig's feet, tripe, beefsteak, chops and chicken in all styles at the White House.

KILLED IN A WRECK.

An Express Train Runs into a Freight Train at Scranton.

PENCIL POINTS.

The young Hebrew men of town intend forming a social club.

Residences are as scarce and rents are as high in Mahanoy City as in Shenandoah.

Don't forget the Hollow E'en party at the residence of R. A. Glover, South Jardin street, this evening. It will be held for the benefit of the Presbyterian church, and a pleasant time is promised all.

New Green Truck Stand.

A Philadelphia huckster has opened a wholesale and retail truck stand in the Leitze building, 10 East Coal street. A car load of pears and oranges arrived this morning and will be sold at a bargain. 10 31-11

A Good Show.

Tiso's living pictures and vaudeville show, at Ferguson's theatre last night, was fully up to all announcements by the management and gave entire satisfaction to the audience, which was small on account of the political mass meeting being a counter attraction. The entertainment is clean and wholesome and a number of very clever artists appear in it. The living pictures were the best seen here.

Families supplied with best oysters from the White House daily.

OLD RESIDENT DEAD.

Dennis O'Neill, Old Time Telegraph Operator, Called Away.

Dennis O'Neill, one of the oldest residents of the town, died at his home on North Union street in his 64th year. The deceased is survived by his wife and seven grown-up children. He was one of the most respected citizens of the First ward and in his younger days exercised some influence with the people of that part of the town. Mr. O'Neill became a resident of the county about forty years ago and resided here nineteen years. He was an operator in the employ of the P. & R. company for a number of years and is said to have been the first operator employed by the company in this county. About three years ago he was stricken by paralysis, which disabled him, and three weeks ago he received another stroke which resulted in bringing about death. The funeral will take place at 10 o'clock on Friday. The remains will be taken to Minersville for interment.

By Request.

A number of patrons of McElhenny's cafe who were unable to be present last week, on the occasion of his lunch of buckwheat cakes and sausage, requested the gentleman to repeat the same at an early day. He has decided to serve the same lunch this evening and invites you all to call around and testify to his ability and generous manner of treating the public.
