How Baltimore Abolished Tramps.

Washington and Baltimore have always been favorite cities for tramps. Their mild climate and hospitable tendencies attracted the gentlemen who refuse to bathe or work on principle. It is hard to say which your real tramp hates most-a bath or a job of work. It was by bringing force to bear on these two great projudices that Baltimore abolished him last winter.

The citizens had been imposed on till they rose in self defense. Last winter promised to be a very hard one, and Baltimore vowed at last that she would no longer feed the horde of human vermin that at the approach of cold weather annually congregated within her limits. During 1893 she had longed nearly 40,000 persons in her station houses. A great organization was form of from the leading churitable and bush ness societies of the city. The munic ipal authorities promised to close the station homes to loaners as soon as provision could be made for them else where. The provise made was that if tramps would not work they should not have food or lodging.

One charitable lodging house, the Friendly inn, existed already. To this was added the Wayfarors' lodge. The two together accommodated 275 person nightly. At the Wayfarers' lodge wood sawing and splitting were offered as concensation for meals and lodging The tramp's stay was limited to three days. He had to take a het bath under the eye of an attendant every night and had to use a good lot of eurbolic sony along with it. His day clothes had to be disinfected, and he had to wear a clean nightshirt to bed.

Permanent work was furnished for the needy in the simpo of atoms break ing. Two days work a week was allowed to the hour who had others de toll would be equal with the rest.

The result shows that the plan worked like magle. Cithens cut off indiscrindhave almogiving. Applicants for most theirets at the stoneyards were investigated and fraudulent ones weeded out.

As to the Waylarers' lodge and the Friendly inn, they very shortly had room for all who applied. The pelice began sending their hotel guests to the lodging rooms as fast as they applied at the station houses. Thus the police counters were rid of the horrid, vermin past. To the Associated Press representative be said: "I am perfectly willing to allow the experiment to be made, if it is in my power under the law. I think it would be a good thing to have this long smading controversy settled at once and facever."

Ever since the adoption of the electrical execution get by the state the Westinghouse people, whose dynames are used, have declared that electricity was not the cause of doubt, but that doubt resulted cause of death, but that death resulted from the hobbing of an autopsy after the body had been taken from the electrical chair. No less authorizy than Nicola Tasta, the famous electrician, contended that be could bring back to life a man supposed to be killed in an electrical chair, provided the attempt was made immedi-

Mr George Westingbouse has always asserted electrical death was a sham, and that a New York commission, headed by Ethridge T. Gerry, had added the autops clause to the law to make it certain that the man was dead. Within the last few weeks the agitation of the subject has again become prominent, and an appeal is to be made to the governor to allow the next man committed to death as a subject to be experimented on. The attempt, if made, will undoubtedly create great excitement and interest in the scientific world. It will also arouse urlosity among laymen, because if suc cosful it will being to life a new man who can not be again executed having one suffered the penalty of death. It will also prove that the state executioners have been the surgeons who have held the autopsy, rather than the state electrician
