Evening Herald.

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 11, 1904.

The Outlook says: "Wanted.—A newspaper that in its news columns will tell the truth about political matters." No. This is how it should read: "Wanted.—All newspapers in their news columns to tell the truth about all matters." Then the newspapers would resolve in the community the consideration and respect they should have.

Czar Alexander III did not have much fun upon his imperial throne, but he had the pleasure of eating all the good things he wanted, and he did it too. They killed him finally, but he had a good time eating them all the time.

Copyright fears the motion picture. Fitzsimmons killed Cal Weaver at a sparring exhibition in a theater may injure the "profession" of prize fighting. It is to be hoped it will.

Football Company declares with some show of truth that modern football is more brutal than prize fighting. This proposition, however, is not so much a vindication of prize fighting as it is an indictment of football.

By President Cleveland is so anxious to find an office worthy of being adorned by William L. Wilson, he might name that gentleman for Secretary of the Exterior. That would just about fit Wilson.

No CLOSURE and no POPGUN bills—that seems to be the program of the Senate. Certainly the majority will show sense if they sit down on any attempt to achieve the impossible in either direction of the present session.

It is difficult to contemplate the mysterious activity of Senators Gorman, Brice and Smith without concluding that Mr. Cleveland may be treated to another spectacular exhibition of Perfidy and Dishonor before the season is over. All signs indicate a hard winter for the Cleveland brand of "personal comfort."

No PERSON with a humane impulse concealed anywhere in his makeup can read President Cleveland's melancholy messages without acknowledging that the writer of it is greatly in need of public sympathy. The essence of Mr. Cleveland's utterances is that the country is going straight to everlasting smash, and that he needs a lot of able-bodied help to hold it back.

A Bill which has long been desired will be introduced by the final enactment of the bill in relation to public printing and the distribution of public documents. The reform will not be so far reaching as some of the advocates of sweeping changes have desired, but such legislation as now seems attainable will prove an important step in the direction of rational progress.

It is expected that the bill will not only do away with a variety of abuses, but secure a saving of hundreds of thousands of dollars. Among other things, it provides for the placing of government publications in depositories throughout the country, where they will be accessible to the people. Public libraries are also to be supplied with copies in a more complete and satisfactory manner than heretofore.

JAVAS' dissatisfaction with China's temporizing policy in peace negotiations is scarcely well founded. Seldom has there been a more notable exhibition of "ways that are dark and tricks that are vain" than in China's conduct both just before and during the present war. Duplicity, shiftness and deceit have marked almost every step of it. Perhaps the crowning stroke was the sending of an unaccredited envoy to discuss terms of peace. It was a pretty trick, or would have been had it succeeded. That envoy could lead the Japanese government on to commit itself, without himself binding China to a single item. If he succeeded in negotiating favorable terms, China could take advantage of them. If not, China could repudiate him and all his words. The Tokio government has done well in sending him home again, and in reminding those who sent him that such devices are vain.

NEW AT THE BUSINESS

SHE WAS A VERY NICE BUT A VERY FRESH TYPEWRITER GIRL.

She Was So Interested In The Reporter's Story That She Wanted To Stop Quitting Often and Talk About It—Had To Fix Her Hair and Get Her Cheeking Gum.

For a reporter with but little to write and plenty of time in which to write it there is nothing more pleasant than to dictate a narrative to a cheerful typewriter, particularly if she be young and have most soft hair to distract the eye and well formed, white fingers and be, especially pleasing. But for a reporter with a long yarn to write and a limited amount of time to finish it things come times have a different aspect.

Near the newspaper office is a typewriter office which many men frequent. A new girl came there one day last week—a real nice girl and an excellent operator—but she had never done that kind of work before. While she was sitting in the main room upon the afternoon of her first day a newspaper man came bustling in, and—
"Mrs. T., have you got anybody to take a few columns story in a hurry?"
"Yes," replied the manager. "Here is a young lady who has just come to us. Miss Brown, Mr. Smith. You can go into that corner room."

In three minutes the young lady was seated at her machine, the newspaper man was sorting out his notes, and the door was closed, so as to leave them undisturbed.
"Now, if you will, please begin," the newspaper man said. "In these days of stern reality and suffering and struggle for existence a romantic episode comes upon one with the refreshing delight with which a traveler in a desert beholds an oasis."
"Clickety, clickety, click went the legs, and then—
"Isn't that lovely? Is it going to be a novel?"
The newspaper man looked up in amazement, but it was utterly impossible to be angry with such blue eyes regarding him in admiration.

"No," he said. "Please go on. In the romantic episode of police court cases, however, there was one yesterday which which by a story so romantic and so picturesque that it would almost seem to have been created by a great novelist who had striven to exceed all his past efforts."

When this had been received, and while she was wondering what the young lady would say next, the newspaper man, smiling and smiling, patted her on the cheek.
"That's just splendid. It sounds like a real novel. Did you ever read 'Christy' or 'The Forlorn Hope'? It begins something like that, only it isn't so interesting. Do you know I never took dictation like that before! The last piece I worked in I had nothing to do but copy letters. Oh, dear, wasn't it tiresome, though!"
The newspaper man felt his collar getting too small, but after swallowing something that seemed to stick in his throat he said as gently as possible:
"Won't you please go on! I'm in somewhat of a hurry. What have you got there?"
"Where?" in great surprise.
"I mean please read over what I have dictated."

"Oh, how stupid I am! In these days of stern reality—how do you pronounce that word, in two syllables or three? Thank you—stern reality and suffering!"
And she read what she had written. Then just as the newspaper man had settled back in his chair, determined to dictate to the end without giving her another opportunity to interrupt him, she said:
"Excuse me. I think my hair is coming down."

She went to a little mirror in a corner of the room, examined her hair carefully, and then after touching up the puffs of her sleeves and smoothing her waist she sighed and returned to her seat.
"There, now, I'm all ready."
For the next few minutes she had to work so hard that she hadn't time to say a single word. But soon the paper was filled, and she had to insert a new sheet, and that was her opportunity.
"Gracious! How fast you dictate! It almost takes my breath away. But do you know, I like it. I think it's good practice. Were you there when all that happened? My! I wish I could be a reporter."

The newspaper man went on with his dictation. He was in a growingly hopeful mood, but he hadn't the heart to say a harsh word to the girl. She was really very pretty, and she became interested in the story a delicate flesh mottled her cheeks, and it was a positive pleasure to watch her. But a newspaper man has no time for pleasure during business hours, and these charms did not interest him as much as they might have done under other circumstances. But he struggled bravely on.
"Oh," she suddenly exclaimed, stopping in the middle of a sentence. "Did that really happen?"
"Yes, yes. Will you please go on?"
"Well, the idea! I speak it out believed it. But you know, I don't believe that I read in the papers, but of course if you say so it must be true."
"I'm very sorry I can't chat with you, Miss Brown, but really I'm in a great hurry."
"Oh, I beg your pardon. I forgot all about that."
For nearly ten minutes there was not a break in the dictation save when a sheet became full and a fresh one had to be inserted. The typewriter kept her lips firmly pressed together, as if she were working all her strength to keep silent. It was clear to her that it could not last much longer. In the middle of a paragraph she suddenly stopped and with a long "Excuse me for a moment," left the room. In a few moments she returned with her jaws working convulsively and a piece of chewing gum in her hand.
"Won't you have some?" she asked politely.
"No—no—and—I'll tell you what—I guess I won't have time to finish this story today. I'll come back some other time."
"Oh, you're not going are you? I'm awful sorry. I was just getting interested in the story."
"Very sorry—er—how much? Here. All right. Good-bay."
And sending the few sheets that lay on the desk the newspaper man went away and finished the story with a pun.—Chicago Times.

IN SENATE AND HOUSE

A Proposition Looking to Cuba's Independence Through Negotiations.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—Senator Morgan occupied the attention of the senate yesterday for two hours in a speech in favor of the bill providing for the construction of the Nicaragua canal. He expressed himself favorably to government ownership of the enterprise, and declared that prompt action should be taken, as to abandon the project now would be detrimental to the people would not forget. Senator Call introduced two resolutions of interest, one requesting the government to commence negotiations with Spain for the recognition of Cuba's independence, and for the grant of such a sum as shall be agreed on between the United States and Spain for Cuba's relinquishment of her control of Cuba. The other resolution declared that the interests of the world require that all governments shall unite in negotiating with China and Japan for a settlement of the war.

The house devoted the day, under the rules, to business reported from the District of Columbia committee. Several bills of purely local importance were passed and a resolution was adopted setting aside the third Saturday in January for eulogies on the life and character of Marcus P. Lister, late representative from the Tenth Kentucky district. A joint resolution was also passed to pay the officers and employes of the house and senate their salary for the present month on Dec. 30.

Proposed Reforms in South Carolina.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Dec. 11.—Some important bills were introduced in the legislature yesterday, and being known as "administration" measures are likely to pass. One bill takes the control of the police from the municipalities of 2,500 inhabitants or more and puts their appointment and control into the hands of police commissioners selected by the governor, who can remove them at pleasure. Funds collected by mayors or trustees for police stations are to go to the county treasurer and for city officers to the city treasury. This law is the result of the failure of the former and cities to enforce the dispensary law. Another bill for the reorganization of the militia is proposed. Companies which fail to keep the governor's orders shall be liable to punishment by imprisonment and fine. The constitution of a United States senate takes place this afternoon. The main will be undoubtedly elected over Senator Lister the incumbent.

Investigating Trinity's Tenements.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—Before the tenement house committee last week evidence was produced showing that the Trinity church corporation property was in an unhealthy condition. Colonel Fugate did not consider the tenement in any way sanitary, and those owned by private individuals, but Richard Watson Gilber, president of the tenement house committee, disagreed with him. The attention of the health board was then called to the matter, with the result that the board of health has started its inspectors at the work of investigating the tenements complained of.

Ethical and Loss of Life.

COLON, Dec. 11.—Henry rains have caused a flood and some loss of life in the department of Matanzas. The town of Santa Maria, capital of the department, was inundated on Thursday and 177 seven houses and the hospital were destroyed. Railway communication with the town has been cut off, three bridges along the line having been washed away. The electric light plant in the town was destroyed. [Santa Maria is a seaport town of the Republic of Colombia, and is situated on the east shore of a bay of the Caribbean sea. The population is about 3,500.]

Cornell Students to Vote on Athletics.

ITHACA, N. Y., Dec. 11.—The advisability of the Cornell athletic teams engaging in intercollegiate contests in the future is evoking the greatest interest among the professors and students. The students, fearing that the faculty may put an end to the intercollegiate athletics will take on the question themselves, believing that if a large majority of the students is recorded in favor of participation in the games, the faculty would not take contrary action. The students will vote on Thursday and the faculty will convene to decide the matter on Friday afternoon.

Another County Treasurer Short.

SHREWSBURY, Mich., Dec. 11.—William Keratt, the Shrewsbury county treasurer is several thousand dollars in arrears to his creditors. His brother, Henry Keratt, who is deputy treasurer and also treasurer, has been unsuccessful thus far in trying to secure bondsmen. William Keratt, who is a hardware merchant, has made an assignment to one of his bondsmen.

A Floating Burglar Held.

GREENSBORO, N. C., Dec. 11.—Hurlingham, the burglar, was held at Greensboro during the night, and then taking a land car started toward Greensboro. Detective Hurlingham, with assistant John, started on the train, and after a long chase, a battle was fought and the burglar was held. The two detectives, Hurlingham and John, were rewarded for their services.

A Charge of Adultery's Dismissal.

HAYWARD, Mass., Dec. 11.—J. H. Hoyt, the Hayward adulterer, was acquitted of the charge of adultery with a woman named Mrs. Hoyt, who is a widow, and has been in government employ. He will escape punishment.

Yearning Wails Street, Coleridge.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—Senator Van Hook, in an impressive declaration that he is unwilling to accept legislation favorable to silver at the present session of congress, "silver" is considered "the money of the constitution" and should be retained on the same terms that it is retained.

DEAF POWDER.

Nourishing and Appetizing and Can Be Easily Made at Home.

Some of the best powders in the market and are not readily taken by an invalid who is unable to eat. A happy idea struck the writer several months ago that beef powder might be made by a simple process. The experiment was made, and the result was satisfactory beyond expectation. Beef powder made at home is appetizing, nourishing and easily taken, and can be made with precision by the old who turn with aversion from ordinary food. If a little pepper be taken at the same time it is digested even when the ordinary prepared foods are not retained.

The method of preparation is simple. Lean beef is cut into small pieces. These are put into a boiling fat dripping or butter for a couple of minutes until the surface is browned. They are then removed from the fat and placed on a strainer for a few moments. Afterward they are placed in a mixing machine. The resulting mince is placed in a slow oven and dried. The drying process may take from 5 to 24 hours, or even longer, according to the heat employed. When thoroughly dried, the meal is quite crisp and can be ground in a coffee mill that has not been used for any other purpose.

In the drying process the meat loses a trifle more than four-fifths of its weight. This beef powder can be taken in various ways—with hot water or soup, with mashed potatoes, with bread and butter in a sandwich or with a little pepper in a starch water.

The writer has given this homemade beef powder with such excellent effect in several cases where there was much difficulty with food that he thinks others may find it useful.—Dr. W. R. Huggard in British Medical Journal.

HAYWARD A HYPNOTIST

His Remarkable Control Over His Companions in Crime.

THE PRISONER'S INDIFFERENCE

Singing and Laughing in the Corridor of the County Jail at St. Paul—He Denounces the Confession of Blix as a "Fake from Top to Bottom."

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 11.—Clara A. Blix, the confessed murderer of Catherine King, is a pitiable object. Now that the awful secret which he held has been revealed, he seems utterly shattered. The tears course down his cheeks in an unending fashion. Every few minutes he sends for Chief of Police Smith, whom he seems to regard as the only friend he has on earth, and breaks out into lamentations over his hard fate.

The belief is growing that Harry Hayward made use of hypnotism to gain so strong an influence over his tools and victims. Clara Blix says he did. He told the officers that Harry had controlled him with hypnotic power, as he also did Miss King. The murderer shuddered when he made this statement, and appeared to stand in mortal terror of Harry even then. With gestures of the hands he illustrated the means Harry used to hypnotize girls. He said whenever Harry told him to do anything and he refused, he would make a few passes at him with his hands, and the result was that he did whatever Harry told him.

The time he fled the barn Harry, he said, threatened to kill him if he did not obey his command. "He looked through me with those eyes and I went and set fire to the barn without saying another word," said Blix, quivering. "On the morning after the fire he made me sign a paper saying that I had set fire to the barn. I signed my name to the paper, and after that whenever he wanted me to do things for him he showed me the paper and threatened to send me to Stillwater for ten years if I refused."

It is now remembered that Aiky Hayward, the brother, in his confession alluded to the terrible influence Harry had over him, as influenced and under the power of him. It was almost impossible for him to resist Harry's wishes when they were pressed upon him. It is known that Harry had a wonderful influence over the dead girl. She did anything he told her to do with implicit confidence, and he often boasted to Aiky that the girl would do exactly as he told her to do.

Blix's past record is being pretty thoroughly looked up, and some comment is made on the fact that he has been thrice married, and that two of his wives died suddenly. It seems that suspicions were entertained against him in Cannon Falls at the time of these deaths, but no action looking toward an investigation was taken. His people are respectable farmers, who still live near Cannon Falls. The grand jury yesterday returned a formal indictment that Miss King came to her death by a shot fired by some unknown person or persons. The officials have practically given up hope of wringing a confession from Hayward, and it seems that the case will come to trial in due time, in which event it is likely to become a celebrated case.

Harry Hayward is apparently determined to fight the thing out to the bitter end, and few more developments are expected. Assistant Attorney Hall asserts that he has evidence of Harry Hayward's complicity in a number of other dark crimes, but he will give no hint of what they were. It is certain that arson and kidnaping were among them, if not murder.

Harry Hayward is still in the Ramsey county jail at St. Paul. He has not yet made any confession, and is not likely to. Hayward is conducting himself in a peculiar manner. All day Sunday he was making considerable noise in the corridor, singing and laughing. He also joined in the religious exercises conducted in the building, and joined heartily in singing hymns. He had some conversation with one of the prisoners of the jail after he read the paper yesterday containing the confession of Blix. Hayward said to him:

"This whole story of Blix's is a fake from top to bottom, and is made to save his own neck. I will give something which will paralyze the whole gang of detectives and criminals, but I will wait until the proper time comes. Hayward had met the prisoner in this address in one of the gambling houses in St. Paul, where he dropped $5,000.

The burning of the elevator at Hamel, in this county, on which Miss King was a mortgage, is now ascribed to Harry Hayward. It is known that he was very anxious for her to realize on her loan of $1,000 at once, and that she made that effort through her financial agents but was unsuccessful. Just at this juncture the elevator opportunity burned, and the insurance money paid the mortgage. The owner, Julius Johnson, says that the fire beyond question was incendiary.

An effort is being made to connect Hayward with the murder of Lena Olson at Duluth some months ago. The case is not unlike the King case, but there is as yet no evidence that Hayward had anything to do with A. A. Austin, the mysterious stranger who is supposed to have murdered the girl, and for whom the police are still searching.

It is possible that no indictment will be returned against Aiky Hayward, who first confessed. He will be wanted as a witness, and while culpable the state is so anxious to make a good case against Harry Hayward that it will probably decide not to indict him and thereby close his mouth.

"Commended" for Respecting Law.
RICHMOND, Ky., Dec. 11.—The grand jury yesterday returned an indictment against William Taylor (colored) for the killing of David Doty of Feiby last. The defendant was brought before the circuit court and pleaded guilty to the indictment. Notwithstanding the intense excitement that has prevailed ever since the murder there was no demonstration upon the appearance of the prisoner. The latter for the first time showed alarm, knowing full well that he is a doomed man. The action of Doty's friends in abandoning the idea of lynching Taylor upon the promise of the officers to give him a speedy trial is warmly commended.

The Weather.
For eastern Pennsylvania and New Jersey, showers; northeast winds, becoming southeast. For the District of Columbia and Delaware fair, except east winds. Rain will occur in New England, the middle states and the lake region. The temperature will remain nearly stationary in all districts.

"For years I was in a very serious condition with catarrh of the stomach, bowels and bladder. I suffered intensely from dyspepsia, and in fact was a miserable wreck, merely a skeleton. I seemed to go from bad to worse. I really wished I was dead. I had no rest day or night. I did not know what to do. I had taken so much medicine of the wrong kind that it had poisoned me, and my finger nails began to turn black and come off. I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. I had faith in the medicine, and it did more for me than all prescriptions. I have gradually regained perfect health, am entirely free from catarrh of the bowels, and pain in my back.
