

City Solicitor Warwick Gets the Republican Nomination.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 10.—In the Republican city convention City Solicitor Charles F. Warwick was nominated for mayor, receiving 284 votes against 233 for Senator James Penrose, and one for ex-City Treasurer George D. McCreary.

The convention was the most turbulent and exciting that has assembled in this city in recent years.

The only part Martin openly took in the convention was to move that the nominations close after Penrose and Warwick had been named.

The convention refused to make Warwick's nomination unanimous.

PRISON LIFE IN SIBERIA.

The Surprisingly Attractive Picture Presented by Traveler De Windt.

LONDON, Jan. 10.—Harry De Windt, the traveler and journalist, who intends to lecture in America to refute the statements of George Kennan in regard to Siberian prison life, gives a surprisingly attractive picture of the life of prisoners in Siberia.

Describing a typical political prison, that at Akatu, in the Nerchinsk mining district, he says that the prisoners are confined in roomy, well lighted and warmed cells, decorated with jugs filled with flowers that had been picked by the prisoners while en route to their work in the mines, a mile distant.

The convicts march to their work daily, smoking and singing choruses. They have three good meals daily and are supplied with an unlimited quantity of beer at dinner.

There is no work done on Sundays and saints' days, and concerts and plays are given. Mr. De Windt gives the following instances to show the cheerful existence of even the most desperate convicts:

Gotze, the leader of the Yakutsk prison mutiny in 1889, lives in a large well lighted cell. He is supplied with writing materials and receives parcels of Russian, French, German and English books.

Slavinsky, one of the heads of international nihilism, who was implicated in nearly all the recent explosions, is in similar quarters. He also receives books and has his own medicine chest.

Mullinoff, who was implicated in the murder of Czar Alexander II, now lives at liberty at Khavorsk.

Kalujin, an ex-officer of the navy, who attempted to blow up the czar's yacht, serves in a bank and has a circulating library.

A Shrewd Hotel Swindler.

WHEELING, W. Va., Jan. 10.—About three weeks ago a well dressed man calling himself C. A. Burns, and professing to represent the Lucent Oil works, of Philadelphia, registered at the McClure House and about a week later induced the hotel people to cash a draft for $50, ostensibly drawn by the Philadelphia house.

But other reasons are put forth for the establishment of the new county. The people of Hazleton claim that the new county of Quay will not necessarily increase taxation.

On the contrary, they assert, statistics reveal that thirty-two, or nearly one-half of the counties of Pennsylvania, raise less to defray the total court expenditures than is now collected from Hazleton and contiguous territory.

THE NEW COUNTY.

Hazleton's Movement Bids Fair to be Successful This Time.

The people of Hazleton and vicinity are most emphatic in their efforts to bring about the formation of Quay county, which is intended to form a part of Luzerne and Schuylkill counties.

A public meeting held in Hazleton last Tuesday night demonstrated a unanimity of sentiment that presages success.

The movement is now in the hands of shrewd, calculating men who seem well versed in all the arts and devices of the lobby, and a failure this time would certainly discourage all attempts in that direction for the future.

One of the most shrewd tactics has been the change in the name for the proposed territory. "Hazle" was first selected. It had a pretty sound and looked pleasing to the eye when in print, but it had no more weight with the eyes and minds of the powers at Harrisburg than "Mud."

The politicians who are engineering the present movement were quick to observe that a name of some force would have to be selected. A name with a string to it, as it were.

"Immortalize some good worker," suggested a long-headed individual and this brought out the question, "What is the matter with Quay?" to which came the response in chorus "He's all right!" and Quay it is.

Matthew Stanley saw the advantage in an instant. He reasoned that when his work in the political sphere of these United States is at end and the many documents bearing his name will have become discolored with age and the records in the public offices shall have been shoved into the deep recesses of the storage vaults to make room for the records of the days to come his name may, to a more or less extent, pass from view and memory, and at times he may be entirely forgotten.

In the new county, he concluded, could be founded one of the largest and most substantial monuments ever created to perpetuate the name of man.

When the Senator will have passed into the hereafter he will remain in sweet remembrance with the dear school marm as she asks Johnny Simpkins to stand up and tell her how Quay is bounded and other details as to the general make-up. And as Matthew Stanley hovers over the innocent youth and hears him recite the multitudinous resources and blessings of Quay the white-robed ex-Senator's wings will flutter with ecstasy.

But other reasons are put forth for the establishment of the new county. The people of Hazleton claim that the new county of Quay will not necessarily increase taxation.

On the contrary, they assert, statistics reveal that thirty-two, or nearly one-half of the counties of Pennsylvania, raise less to defray the total court expenditures than is now collected from Hazleton and contiguous territory.

They also cite in support of their movement the inconvenience that attends the present legal institution of Luzerne county, the vexatious delays, the connivance at crime and the impossibility to prosecute many suits without incurring enormous expense.

They conclude with the cry, "Justice shall be done freely, fully and speedily."

The people of Hazleton are certainly worthy of commendation. They display enterprise and energy that could be followed with profit by many towns in Schuylkill county, and if their zeal continues their city will soon be in the Wilkes-Barre and Scranton class.
