WEDDING POSTPONED

Refowich Interferes With Shapira's Hymenean Arrangements.

WHICH OWNS THE STORE ?

Both Parties Claim It and Law Suits Over the Matter Are Becoming Quite Numerous.

A druggist, a clothier, two constables and a hat and cap manufacturer of town have become involved in the meshes of the law to an extent that presages long battles in court and lengthy bills of costs for one or the other side to pay when the end is reached. As in most legal controversies, all parties involved have their own stories to tell and of course they differ greatly from each other.

The main cause of trouble lies between Isaac Shapira, the druggist, and Levi Refowich, the clothier. Isadore Lauterstein and Constables Tom Boland and Jack Dando come in on side issues.

On Sunday last, Mr. Shapira says, he left his drug store in charge of a clerk and went to New York to be married to a Boston lady of some means. On Monday morning Levi Refowich went to the drug store and took possession of it. He drove out the clerk and locked up the store, and it remained closed until Mr. Shapira, who had been summoned by telegraph, returned Thursday night. Mr. Shapira says that Mr. Refowich's action caused a postponement of the marriage and it will not take place for two months. The druggist got into his store by forcing open a trap door leading from the cellar to an apartment at the rear of the drug store.

Yesterday morning Refowich placed Constables Boland and Dando in the drug store and told them to keep strict account of all sales Druggist Shapira made. S. G. M. Hollopeter, Esq., as counsel for Mr. Shapira, appeared and told the constables to leave, but they refused to do so. Mr. Refowich went down to Pottsville and consulted a lawyer and after returning last evening caused a warrant to be issued by Justice Cardin for the druggist's arrest on a charge of forcible entry and detainer. Constables Boland and Dando went to the drug store to execute the warrant and arrested Mr. Shapira. Mr. Lauterstein was in the place and, it is said, refused to leave. He was also placed under arrest. On being taken before Justice Cardin Shapira was put under $1,000 bail and Lauterstein under $600 bail.

This morning Lauterstein retaliated by causing the arrest of Levi Refowich and Constables Boland and Dando on a charge of assault and battery. They appeared before Justice Dengler and entered $300 bail each for trial at court.

The whole trouble arises out of a dispute as to who owns Shapira's drug store. Refowich says, and produces a duly signed typewritten document to that effect, that he purchased the store in question from Nellie H. Finney and subsequently leased it to Shapira, the understanding being that Shapira was to pay $1,500 for the place. Of this $400 was paid in cash and the balance was to be paid in installments of $60 per month, and upon the payment of the full amount of $1,500 Refowich was to give Shapira a bill of sale. The document also provides that in case Shapira defaulted in the payment of any of the installments six per cent. interest was to be added to them, and if the installments went in default for three months Refowich has the right to enter and take possession of the store. Refowich claims that Shapira paid him but $750 altogether and has not paid anything since last July, whereupon he entered the place.

Mr. Shapira claims he has been imposed upon. He claims that Refowich stated that he paid $1,500 for the drug store, whereas he only paid $900, and that, therefore, there was a misrepresentation. He also says that after he had paid $400 to Mr. J. F. Finney on account of the sale Refowich insisted that before he would pay the balance of the purchase price Shapira should sign the $1,500 agreement. Mr. Shapira takes the stand that Refowich simply served as agent for the purchase of the store for him. In denial of this Refowich produces a lease of the store from Isaacher Robbins to himself.

Daisey Beverly Company.

When the curtain dropped on the last act, every one who was fortunate enough to witness the second performance of Miss Beverly and her superb company in "Silver Bird," went away well pleased and expressed themselves as being highly entertained. The charming and beautiful young emotional actress, Miss Daisey Beverly, possesses everything pertaining to win for her the reputation of being an accomplished star. Little Pansy is one of the greatest features in the company. She is without doubt the finest child actress ever seen here.—Newark Daily American. FOUND DEAD IN BED.

Mrs. Conrad Dies While Visiting Relatives in Town.

Mrs. Catherine S. Conrad, of Tamaqua, was found dead in bed at the Commercial Hotel, on North Main street, this morning. The deceased was the guest of Mr. Guldin, the proprietor of the hotel, and her nephew. She came here two weeks ago.

Mrs. Conrad complained of a pain in the heart yesterday afternoon, but subsequently appeared to be in the best of health and ate a hearty supper. She retired at about ten o'clock. At eight this morning she was found dead. Heart disease is supposed to have been the cause of death.

The deceased was 64 years of age. She was the widow of Charles Conrad, of Tamaqua, and left no children. She was the mother of five children, but they died. The funeral will take place at Tamaqua on Monday afternoon.

Dabb has removed his gallery to Hoffman's old stand, West Centre street.

CITIZENS' CANDIDATES

They Met the Standing Committee Last Night.

ALL ARRANGEMENTS MADE

Agreement Reached For Deciding Tie Votes and Filling Vacancies—The Primaries Will be Next Friday.

The Standing Committee of the Citizens' party met in the rooms of the Shenandoah Republican League last evening and concluded all arrangements to hold the primaries of the party next week. There was an excellent attendance of candidates and the meeting was a very enthusiastic one.

The committee decided that the primaries should be held as those of the Citizens' party and that the question of changing the name to "Republican" be left to the vote of the people at the coming primaries, which will be held under the Crawford county rules.

It was decided that the primaries be held on Friday, 25th inst., between the hours of 5 and 8 p. m., at the following places: First ward, at William Kendrick's. Second ward, James McElhenny's. Third ward, Benjamin Richards. Fourth ward, Peter Hiley. Fifth ward, Schmidt's hall.

The candidates in attendance at the meeting were School Directors—Thomas S. James, 5th ward; Joseph Daddow, 4th ward; Benjamin C. Church and J. J. Price, 2nd ward; T. R. Edwards, 3rd ward; Edward O'Donnell, 1st ward. Councilmen—William D. Chimelewski, 1st ward; Daniel Reigel and A. D. Gable, 4th ward; Frank Schmidt and John P. Boehm, 2nd ward; Richard Reese, 5th ward. High Constable—James Emanuel, Jabez Powell, George Knott and Edward Mason.

After an agreement between the committee and the candidates it was decided that in case of a tie vote at any of the primaries the candidates interested shall appear before the committee and draw lots to decide who shall be the candidates at the election. The committee will fill any vacancies on the ticket.

The committee will meet again next Wednesday evening. It was decided that the names and assessments of all candidates must be in the hands of the treasurer of the committee by nine o'clock on Tuesday evening, next, or their names will not be placed on the tickets.

It was also decided that in case a Justice of the Peace, or an election inspector, cannot be found on the day of the primary the member of the Standing Committee of the ward swear in the board.

SOME PUMPKINS.

The Importance of Being a Member of the Legislature.

A correspondent to the Philadelphia Press writes thusly of new members of the Legislature: Inauguration Day and the day preceding it were great occasions for the new members both in the House and Senate. Their constituents came down on them like the traditional wolf on the fold. The new member, swelling with manly pride at his elevation to legislative halls, felt it incumbent upon him to show his visitors all the sights of Capitol Hill. With a well assumed air of easy familiarity he could be seen at the head of a dozen men and women who trooped through House and Senate with wide open eyes of wonder drinking in the sights and listening to the explanations of their guide. One new Senator was overheard to unburden himself after this fashion:

"This is the Senate Chamber," and he waved his hand around in a general way. "That is my seat over yonder, beside Senator X, the distinguished gentleman from Z— county. There is the chair of my friend the Lieutenant-Governor, Hon. Walter Lyon; the clerks of the Senate sit in front of him." Then he led his admiring visitors back to the transcribing room, described its uses, and turning, pointed to the glass boxes in front said :—"This is the Senate post office, and right there you see my post office box."

With wonder, awe and veneration on their faces the little knot of men and women withdrew on tip toe, led by the Senator, who marched ahead with firm step and proudly uplifted head.
