THE EVENING HERALD, Shenandoah, Penna.

FRIDAY, MARCH 8, 1895.

A GREAT CORPORATION.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company prints in another place a full statement of its business in the year of 1894. The report is made at this time for the purpose of furnishing the stockholders of the company with information which will enable them to know what has been done and to vote intelligently at the annual election next week.

The figures do not show well. The whole system earned $10,000,000 gross less than in the previous year, but admirable management cut off expenses $13,000,000 and the loss in net was less than $3,000,000.

The lines east of Pittsburgh made a very good showing. The gross earnings were $58,704,284, the expenses were $40,895,746 and the net earnings were $17,808,538.

But the Pennsylvania Railroad did much more than pay its stockholders the ordinary dividend. The sinking funds were kept up, the high standard of equipment and roadbed was maintained at an expense which exceeded the gross earnings of many railroad companies and the sum of $1,385,271 was applied to extraordinary renewals paid out of the net income and charged off.

The Gerry whipping post bill passed the New York senate unanimously. The British secretary of state for home affairs, Mr. Henry Asquith, is suffering from influenza.

Another striking fact is the enormous income of the Pennsylvania Railroad from its investments. It has a long list of securities of other corporations which it owns and which year after year furnish the company with a sum more than equal to the interest on its funded debt.

INCOME TAX OPPOSITIONS

Arguing Against the Law Before the Supreme Court.

INEQUALITY OF ITS PROVISIONS.

Lawyer Guthrie Declares That the Law is Unconstitutional Because It is Class Legislation, Affecting Less Than Two Per Cent. of Our Citizens.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—The supreme court did not reach the income tax cases until 3 o'clock yesterday, when W. D. Guthrie was recognized to open the case for the appellants.

Mr. Guthrie devoted himself to an outline of the argument proposed to be made by the counsel for the appellants, and had not concluded when the court at 4 o'clock adjourned for the day.

He stated that they would depend principally upon showing that the present income tax law is unconstitutional because of its want of uniformity, and quoted at length from the provisions of the law to show that the tax is not uniform, contending that congress had no right under the constitution to levy a tax, duty, excise or impost which was variable or lacking in uniformity as to individuals or corporations.

Mr. Guthrie said the two cases against the trust companies were very similar, but that he would devote himself principally to the Pollock case. He said Mr. Pollock was a shareholder in this company, the net incomes or profit of which during the past year subject to the income tax exceeds $303,000, of which $50,000 represents rents of real estate, and about $200,000 investments in municipal bonds, which latter investment could not, he claimed, be taxed under a former decision of the supreme court.

Mr. Guthrie asserted that the provision of the law exempting all incomes under $4,000 would cause it to fall upon less than 2 per cent. of the population of the United States, and the law was therefore class legislation. He also showed that the tax was not uniform as regards corporations, of which a favored class were exempted, as, for instance, mutual insurance companies and holding associations, as well as partnerships and religious and benevolent institutions.

As to the exemption of churches and benevolent concerns counsel would have nothing to say, as there was enough in the other exemptions in cases where the exemptions were in the interest of shareholders, though called by another name, to afford sufficient text for all they could say.

As illustrative of the effect of the operation of the law he pointed out that an individual owning real estate bringing an income of $8,000 would pay $80 tax, while a corporation would be required to pay double that amount. He also instanced the case of a partnership of five persons doing a business amounting to $23,000 a year which would be required to pay the tax, while a corporation composed of the same persons would be compelled to pay $400.

The corporation was only an aggregation of individuals, and in most corporations a part at least of the stock was owned by the middle classes. Referring to the exemption made in the interest of mutual insurance companies he asserted that in the United States there were 1,000 such companies and that of these 1,000 were doing business on the mutual plan, and he said that in New York alone the wording of the act exempting such companies would relieve a thousand million dollars worth of property from its operation.

Mr. Guthrie also dwelt upon the exemption on the interest of the building and loan associations, which were relieved of the annual payments of $500,000, and whose assets, it had been asserted, were greater than the combination of capital of all the national banks. All that men have to do to evade the operations of the law would be to organize building and loan associations.

The present arrangement is for Mr. Seaward to follow Mr. Guthrie in behalf of the appellants, and for Assistant Attorney General Whitney to speak next for the government, to be followed by ex-Senator Edmunds, who will represent Mr. Moore in his suit for an injunction against Commissioner of Internal Revenue Miller. Mr. J. C. Carter will follow for the trust companies, and Joseph M. Choate will close for Pollock and Hyde; but this order of procedure may be changed.

JIMMY LOGUE SURRENDERS.

The Notorious Burglar Declares His Innocence of Wife Murder.

PHILADELPHIA, March 7.—Jimmy Logue, the notorious burglar and alleged murderer, surrendered to Coroner Ashbridge late Tuesday night, and is now in jail awaiting action in his case.

The story of the supposed crime is interesting because of the manner of its discovery and the sudden disappearance of Mrs. Logue more than sixteen years ago. On Feb. 16, 1879, she was supposed to have gone to New York, having with her $2,000 worth of jewelry and a large amount of money.

On one of the little fingers a wedding ring was found, bearing the initials "J. L. to L. L." At the time of Mrs. Logue's disappearance her criminal husband lived in the Eleventh street house, and it was given out by Logue that she had deserted him.

On the finding of the skeleton it was openly charged by the family of Mrs. Logue, who was Miss Gahan, that she had been murdered, and a warrant for Logue's arrest was issued. Since then the police have been looking for him.
