

The Agonies of the Inquisition Endured by Rheumatic Sufferers.

An Octogenarian Tells a Wonderful Story of His Remarkable Cure.

I have doctored with many physicians and taken all kinds of patent medicine, but never received any relief until I began using Munyon's Rheumatism Cure. Within twelve hours after taking the first dose I was free from pain and am now completely cured."

TOPICS OF THE TIMES. Pertinent Paragraphs From the Reporters' Pens and Pencils. Traveling men are complaining about the schedule of the Lehigh Valley railroad, so far as it applies to trains running from this town to Shamokin. Two trains leave here at night, at 8:22 and 9:15, within an hour of each other, and the next train does not leave until 9:11 in the morning. The claim is that it would be better to have one less train at night and an earlier one in the morning. People leaving on the present morning train cannot reach Sunbury until after one o'clock in the afternoon.

Monster Lockout in England. LONDON, March 8.—Owing to the complicated dispute concerning the use of machinery and other matters the members of the National Federation of Boot Manufacturers have notified the operatives to stop work on March 16. This affects 200,000 employes throughout the country, including 20,000 in Leicester, 9,000 in Northampton, and 7,000 in Bristol. The employers refused to consider overtures for the arbitration of the matters in dispute, stating that the operatives had ignored the previous decisions of arbitration.

A Noted Scotch Painter Dead. LONDON, March 9.—The Times announces the death of Walter Hugh Paton, R. S. A., R. S. W., F. S. A., the well known Scotch painter. He was a brother of Sir Joseph Noel Paton, a well known painter and poet.

NUGGETS OF NEWS. Daniel Deisher, of Amity, Pa., grieving over the death of his wife, hung himself in his pig sty. Delaware legislators still continue their daily ballots for United States senator with no change in the result. Rev. Elijah Toller, of Logan county, W. Va., was attacked by wild beasts in a lonely place and torn to pieces. A match race between the speedy little team yachts Yankee Doodle and Norwood will take place on the Hudson river in May. George W. Smalley, the London correspondent of the New York Tribune, has been appointed American correspondent of the London Times. Charles E. Lobdell, speaker of the Kansas house of representatives, is a formidable candidate for United States senator to succeed Mr. Peffer, whose term expires in 1897.

The arrest of a tramp as one of the burglars who broke into the P. & R. station at Gilberton, last week, has revived discussion on the tramp nuisance. We have an ample sufficiency of that unfeeling style of humanity, a larger number than the mere casual observer would suppose. But what is to be done about the matter? The tramp nuisance pervades every section of the country, more in the Northern and Middle sections than in the West or the South. Why this is so needs explanation we are not able to give. Possibly it is because the first named sections are more thickly inhabited, and possibly too, because the people are more kind-hearted. However that may be, this fact stands without successful contradiction, that the tramp nuisance is one that has yet to be dealt with. It has grown imperceptibly until it has attained proportions so vast that it is not easy to determine where a beginning for its abatement shall be made, or what form such a crusade should take. It has grown immensely and will continue to grow, for the longer it is tolerated the stronger and more difficult of eradication it will become. The question is one of overshadowing importance and boldly challenges the earnest attention of our many political economists.

The hot-headed individual is abroad in the land. Go where you will, in all countries and climes, he is bound to float to the surface in every matter of importance. He is found in the avenues of commerce, in the assemblages of the governments, in the churches and on the streets. He is especially conspicuous in times of labor and political agitation and invariably "puts his foot in it." The hot-headed man is abundant in our midst and has made himself conspicuous in the political case of Councilman D. R. James. Were the individual referred to allowed to rule there would be a summary expulsion from the Republican League without giving the accused a chance to be heard. Irrespective of the merits in the case on either side, it must be conceded that the accused cannot be justly expelled from any organization until condemned after a fair and impartial trial and any one who is not disposed to accord that privilege needs brushing up on the attributes of American principles. It is fortunate that in the case before the Shenandoah Republican League on Thursday night the hot-headed individual was in the minority.

Supervisor McGuire and Health Officer Miles have an opportunity to make a record for themselves. The mud, slush and sickening fumes are developing rapidly. The streets are in a very bad state and the Supervisor should direct his energies to at least keeping the crossings in the most busy part of the town as clean as possible.

Ambassador Exits Protest. PARIS, March 9.—On Wednesday last Hon. J. B. Knuts, the American ambassador, handed to M. Hanotaux, minister of foreign affairs, an official protest against the action of France in excluding American cattle. The protest affirmed that not a single case of disease had been noted, either when cattle had been embarked or when they had been landed in France.

Forgery Charge Dismissed. NEW YORK, March 9.—The grand jury dismissed the complaint against Arthur Blais, who was arrested recently charged with forgery in the third degree by Alfred Spigel, of the firm of A. Blum, Jr., Sons, liquor dealers. The complaint was originally made on Nov. 13, 1891, when Blais was cashier of the firm.

AUTHOR OF "A MODERN HEATHEN." The Famous Southern Novelist, Mrs. E. Burke Collins, Tells of Her Complete Recovery from Nervous Debility by the Use of Paine's Celery Compound.

The London Graphic, in its recent summing up of the half dozen successful novels of the year, includes with Du Maurier's "Tribby," Hall Caine's "Manxman," Conan Doyle's "Sherlock Holmes," "The Heavenly Twins," and "Ships that Pass in the Night," Mrs. E. Burke Collins' "A Modern Heathen." Speaking of this last work of our distinguished Southern author, the Graphic says: "What Geo. W. Cable's writings are to the Creoles of New Orleans, Miss Murfree to the rough strata of humanity among the Tennessee mountains, and Gertrude Atherton to California, Mrs. E. Burke Collins are to the Acadians of the Louisiana Pine Lands. In her latest work Mrs. Collins has struck a new vein in literature, opening to the novel reading world a vision of the real life of the Acadians of the backwoods, among the wild, scarcely known region of the bayous and swamps of Louisiana." Besides her novels she contributes each week short stories, sketches, etc., to the prominent magazines and to a great variety of other publications. Although her writing has always been a labor of love, yet such incessant mental exertion, constantly harvesting the ideas of her brain without a single idle season or fallow time for rest and refreshment, could not fail to have its effect on the recuperative power of her nervous system. At one time she found herself tired out and weak from such uninterrupted work; she became nervous and incapable of work; she even saw nervous prostration staring her in the face. The general toning up that her system needed so badly she found in Paine's celery compound. Today she is perfectly well and strong again, busy as ever with her brain and pen, and grateful to Paine's celery compound for the timely help when failure and trouble and despair seemed about to close round her and shut her off from everything that was dear to her. She says: "NEW ORLEANS, LA., Nov. 21, 1894. I wish to add my mite to the thousands of testimonials which you have received in regard to the efficacy of this wonderful compound. In my profession of author, such a strengthening medicine is invaluable. I have just completed my 95th novel, and constant work at the desk had weakened my constitution, injured my nerves, and I suffered from general debility. When a person in that condition writes continually, living in the realm of fiction and romance, the effect upon the nervous system is lamentable. I was weak and debilitated, suffered from insomnia, and was irritable and nervous. Four bottles of Paine's celery compound gave me strength, quieted my nerves, and brought sleep to my pillow. I owe lasting gratitude to this wonderful medicine, and I take pleasure in adding mine to the long list of testimonials. Yours gratefully, MRS. E. BURKE COLLINS. 318 Valence St.

Paine's celery compound is found to best supply the great need of studious, sedentary people. Its extensive use by brain workers, both men and women, suffering from sleeplessness, indigestion, or other effects of a deficient nerve force, shows its ability to feed tired, emaciated, nervous tissues. Nothing else has ever possessed anything like the power of Paine's celery compound to restore a healthy nervous tone to the entire body and to thoroughly cleanse the blood. School teachers, professional men, newspaper men, ministers, public officials, men whose daily outlay of vitality, because of hard, trying, anxious work, is excessive, find renewed strength, not only of the nerves, but, through their healthy action, of the entire body, in Paine's celery compound. It use shortly dispels headaches, rheumatic pain, dyspepsia, heart trouble, general debility and languor, and all other outward signs of the grave mischief that comes from disordered nerves and impure blood.
