Mahanoy City's Chief Officer Gets Himself Into the Meshes of the Law.

DISTURBANCE ON A TRAIN.

HE ASSAULTED A PASSENGER WHILE INTOXICATED AND IS PROSECUTED BY THE RAILWAY COMPANY.

Mine Inspector William Stein is Re-appointed by the Board of Examiners at Pottsville—Enters on His Third Term.

Chief Burgess Stern, of Mahanoy City, is to appear before Justice Lawlor, of this town, tonight to answer a charge of creating a disturbance and assaulting a passenger on one of the Lehigh Valley trains last Saturday afternoon. The railway company is the prosecutor in the case.

It appears that Chief Burgess Stern and a Hebrew resident of this place named Abraham Goblinski were passengers on the train, which was nearing Mahanoy City on its run from Pottsville. Goblinski claims that the accused Burgess was drunk and, without the slightest provocation, struck him on the back of the head with his fist. The Burgess then drew a toy pistol from his pocket and while flourishing it declared he would kill every d—d Jew in the county. The Shenandoah Israelite was badly frightened, but escaped further molestation.

Stern alighted at Mahanoy City. When the train arrived here one of the Coal & Iron policemen swore out a warrant for the Burgess' arrest under the railway act covering disturbances on trains. The warrant was executed this morning and Stern promised to present himself before Justice Lawlor, in town, at seven o'clock this evening.

It is said that Chief Burgess Stern has been seeking trouble since his election a year ago and that he has kept up an almost continuous celebration of his election during that time. His present difficulty occasions no surprise to the people of Mahanoy City, a HERALD correspondent stated to-day.

MR. STEIN RE-APPOINTED.

Third Term as Inspector of the Sixth Anthracite District.

Special to the HERALD.

POTTSVILLE, March 18.—The Board of Examiners of applicants for Mine Inspector of the Sixth Anthracite District concluded its examinations Saturday afternoon. At ten o'clock this morning the board re-convened here to consult on the oral and written examinations of the applicants and about an hour after announced that the re-appointment of Mine Inspector William Stein, of Shenandoah, had been agreed upon.

This re-appointment attests the ability and conscientious performance of duty that has characterized Mr. Stein's administration during the past ten years. He was originally appointed on September 22nd, 1885, and consequently now enters upon his third term of five years. The HERALD extends its congratulations to the re-appointed inspector and hopes the next five years may be as free from embarrassments as possible, and fruitful to the miners, the operators and himself, as required for their best interests.

LED ASTRAY.

The Unfortunate Ending of "An Innocent Flirtation."

HE Clair Patee Co. will begin an engagement of six nights at the Ferguson's theatre this evening, presenting that very absorbing emotional drama, "Led Astray." This is the same play that made a great success in Philadelphia recently, and is considered one of the best dramas written, teaching even a greater lesson than East Lynne. Miss Virginia Bray, leading lady of the company, is said to be very clever in the portrayal of Countess Chandoce, the thoughtless wife, who causes so much sorrow in a happy home by what she deemed "an innocent flirtation." Mr. William Nichols, one of the prominent leading men of the profession, will be seen in the difficult role of Rudolph Chandoce. Miss Eva Taylor will essay the part of Suzanne O'Hara, the handsome and designing adventuress, ably assisted by her fellow knaves, portrayed by Mr. Gordon as George 'De la Spar, and Mr. Murry as "The Major." The comedy element of the play will be in the hands of Miss Julia Hanchett, as the exacting mother-in-law; Mr. Albert Livingston, as Hector, "the obliging constable"; Mr. J. W. Davenport, and Miss Florence Hadley, the bright little soubrette, who will introduce a number of the latest songs, including the great musical successes, "Jane," "The Summer Man," "Mary," etc. The costumes of this company are said to be one of the numerous features which distinguish this meritorious organization from the usual popular price attractions, and will certainly prove exceptionally interesting to the ladies, who will undoubtedly be out in full force to-night, as the management will admit every lady free, if accompanied by a lady or gentleman holding a regular parquet ticket. Prices for this engagement will be 10, 20 and 30 cents.

This company comes to us highly recommended, presenting their plays in the most artistic manner, with careful and conscientious attention to costuming and detail in stage setting, and will undoubtedly receive liberal patronage.

Misplaced Switch.
A Lehigh Valley passenger train engine ran into a misplaced switch at the Bowers street crossing shortly after nine o'clock this morning and four front wheels left the rails. Fortunately the train was running at very slow speed, following up the track that had left the depot for Pottsville. After about half an hour's work the engine was restored to its proper place and the train proceeded to Ashland. The train that makes the run to Pottsville first comes to town from Ashland on the east-bound track. It runs as far as the lumber yard and crosses over to and backs down to the depot on the west-bound track, after which it continues on that track to the Pennsylvania depot. To enable the train to change from the east-bound to the west-bound track the switch at Bowers street must be turned. After the change is made and the train backs down to the depot the switch is turned back again to give a clear road for the Ashland train that follows from the east. This morning the switch was not turned the second time, but the engineer of the Ashland train did not notice it until he was in close quarters, as he had his eyes on the board signals at the depot.

Squeezed Between Cars.

ANOTHER MINE IDLE.

Operations at the West Shenandoah Colliery Suspended to Make Improvements.

PUTTING IN NEW ENGINES.

IT IS LIKELY THAT THE COLLIERY WILL REMAIN IDLE UNTIL THE FIRST PART OF MAY.

Additional Alterations at the Shenandoah City Colliery Will Probably Keep the Place Idle for Nearly Two Months More.

When the miners at the West Shenandoah colliery quit work for the day on Saturday they were told that operations at the mine would not be resumed today and that place would remain idle for a month. The suspension was not unexpected, as the colliery could not be satisfactorily operated while the new hoisting engines for the slope are being put in place, yet it was hoped that in view of the poor working time of the winter the suspension would be postponed until after the Shenandoah City colliery would start up again. This the company could not arrange, as it would throw the suspension too late into the season.

No official announcement of the time the colliery will be idle is made. It is supposed the work of getting the engines into position and operating order will take about a month's time, but it is very likely that six weeks will be required, as the old engines are still in position and work on the foundations for the new engines has not started. The engines are duplicates of those in use at the Maple Hill colliery. West Shenandoah colliery employs about three hundred men, inside and outside.

It now appears quite certain that Shenandoah City colliery will not resume operations before May 1st, and perhaps not then, as the work of repairs has recently been extended. When the work men first started out to rebuild the breaker they allowed the pockets to stand, but they have now been ordered to tear out and rebuild them, and that will require considerable additional labor. This colliery employs about six hundred men and boys, so that the working force thrown idle until May 1st by the two places is close upon a thousand.

DODGING THE COLLECTOR.

The Many Ruses Mr. Scanlan Must Contend With.

The Mondays following pay days at the collieries of the P. & R. C. & I. Co. are the days on which the exodus of people who tire of this place generally occurs and the harvest of the tax collector is a rich one, although he must keep his eyes open and jump about pretty lively to reap it. This morning there were a number of amusing incidents at the Lehigh Valley depot in which the collector and would-be tax jumpers figured as principals. One of them had a touch of sensationalism about it. Collector Scanlan was standing at the depot, chatting with some departing friends, when his attention was called to two men sneaking around the corner of the Shenandoah Beef Company's house, and carrying a large and well filled bag. By degrees the two men worked their way over to the station and into the baggage room. One of them asked to have the bag checked to Chicago, but Scanlan interfered. A lively discussion followed, during which the man who wanted to get away, who, by the way, was a Pole speaking very fair English, conducted a crossfire of language with the collector that afforded some amusement to the bystanders. Finding that Scanlan was not to be downed by argument, the Pole then resorted to pleading poverty, but Scanlan held on to him "like grim death to a nigger," and the taxes were eventually paid.

While Scanlan was attending to this case another Pole, carrying a large bag and accompanied by a boy of about ten years, sneaked into the men's waiting room of the depot and remained there until the train bound for Mauch Chunk started to pull from the station. The train had proceeded about a car's length when Mr. Pole made a frantic dash from the waiting room, dragging the large bag and small boy after him. He threw the bag upon the platform of one of the cars, raised the boy up to the news agent, who stood on the other platform, and then scrambled on himself. It was a case in which life could have been easily sacrificed and the effort was certainly not worth the amount of the taxes the man was trying to get rid of; but, after all the risk, he did not escape. The scrambling of the man and boy to get on the train had attracted the attention of all the people at the depot, including Collector Scanlan and Constable Giffin. The latter saw the ruse at a glance and they ran after and boarded the train before it attained much speed. When the train reached Yatesville they alighted with the man and boy in custody and brought them back to town. The taxes were paid later.
