The Tramp Nuisance is Commanding Attention—A Case of Insolence. How One Knight of the Road Was Equipped.

This week will be particularly interesting to the 1,081 lodges of Odd Fellows in Pennsylvania, representing about 110,000 members, on account of the election for Grand Lodge and subordinate officers which will be held at this time.

The Lehigh Valley Railroad Company has concluded that after April 1, of this year, it will assume control of all the restaurants connected with its stations throughout its entire line of road. This will knock out quite a number of proprietors of small stands along the line.

The Lehigh Valley Railroad has received from the Baldwin Locomotive Works the first of the ten new passenger engines recently ordered. It is No. 659, and will be used on through trains. The locomotive is of the camel back pattern. The other engines will be delivered as finished, within the next two weeks.

The Lehigh Valley employes are now being measured for summer uniforms. This bit ofinery in blue with shiny brass buttons costs the wearer $16.00 without the cap. This is a pretty steep when two are bought. This year especially when the salaries are not of the Presidential sort. Those who are fortunate enough to be employed in an office and whose clothing is exposed to little wear and tear, are sometimes allowed to wear their clothes a second year, if it is presentable. The inspection is being made and measurements taken by J. J. Laak, of Bethlehem.

Many of the old timers employed in the machine and car shops of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company in the city of Reading have been informed that their service is no longer valuable, and they will be obliged to give way to younger men. Some of them have been in the company's employ from forty to forty-five years. It is said that the same system will become operative all over the Reading line.

Doubtless the readers of the daily papers have noticed the great increase in the number of prize fights, which are not catalogued under the head of boxing matches. We do not recall a time when there were so many such exhibitions, or when they had for their patrons so many men from whom better things should be expected. Every day furnishes subjects for telegraphic despatches from every point of the country announcing matches which, if they are not prize fights, prize fighting has been greatly misrepresented. Our county and vicinity is not in any sense behindhand in this business. Almost every week exhibitions of "the many art of self defense," so styled, are given, and are largely attended by those who profess to see something to be admired in the skill with which two stalwart men manage to beat each other, and not unfrequently into insensibility. The clergy generally insist that the world is growing better day by day, and perhaps it is, but it will hardly be claimed that the improvement has yet touched prize fighting.

In some one of the states, we do not recall which, the Legislature has under consideration a bill which not only prohibits the sale of cigarettes in less quantities than what is known as a package, and not only prohibits the sale of them in any quantity to minors, but makes it a penal offense for any one to give a cigarette to a boy. This sounds somewhat like a sumptuary proceeding, but it furnishes prima facie evidence that the deleterious effects of cigarette smoking upon boys are beginning to be properly appreciated, and the fact recognized that in order to save the generation from a practice which is known to be in the highest degree injurious and which is daily obtaining wider prevalence, it has become absolutely necessary that such legal restrictions shall be adopted as will to some extent at least save our boys from what, in so many cases, is wrecking their minds and bodies.

The Town Council should provide some severe measure to get rid of tramps. These "knights of the road" are becoming entirely too bold and insulting and need watching. Only last night a tramp called at a house in town after dark and in a gruff and insolent way demanded something which, on account of his foreign language, could not be understood. However he was told to leave but refused to go and began at once to abuse the people of the house and threaten them. He even reached in his hip pocket as if to draw a revolver and then fumbled for his knife. Finally he was driven off. A far-seeing tramp who took refuge in a North Market street stable last night was well prepared for all emergencies of life on the road as any ever encountered in town. He had no overcoat, but as he wore two coats, two thick vests, two pair of trousers and plenty of underclothing, he didn't miss one much. When he wandered into the police station he bore a big bundle consisting of a heavy comforter rolled in a piece of oilcloth. In his pockets were found several dozens of loose matches, a big roll of newspapers, two dozen railroad time tables, a box of salve, a bottle of insect powder, two harmonicas, a lot of cards, a handful of toothpicks, a shoe string, a wire nail, a collar button, a box of pencils and a carpenter's pencil, a catalogue of rubber shoes, a purse with six cents and an old copper, three broken clay pipes, a new pocketbook, a piece of silk hat lining, two pieces of castle soap, three sea shells, a broken clam shell, a knife, a plug of tobacco, some fishing tackle, a spool of thread, a piece of wood, a paper of needles, a roll of birch bark, a suspender buckle, a package of cigarette pictures, a notebook containing several sketches of Bar Harbor and vicinity, a chestnut, a wetstone, a dozen pieces of rock, a new whip broom, a pocket comb and a big pewter spoon.

A tour through any of our principal retail establishments will satisfy any one that business is brisk, and, furthermore, that the busiest of them all are the ones the proprietors of which keep themselves prominently before the public through the medium of liberal and judicious advertising. Money, it is said, talks; so does constant and well-worded advertising. It does not follow, as some merchants assume, that an old established house needs no advertising. That was once the case, but this is the age of sharp competition in all branches of business, sharper than ever before and evidently increasing. The merchant who does not recognize that fact, and who does not prepare himself to meet it, is of the old school kind. The great mass of buyers want to know where the best bargains can be obtained, therefore thousands upon thousands of feminine buyers give attractive advertisements their first consideration, and even those of the male persuasion find in them much of interest. The columns of the HERALD are always open to dealers who desire to bring themselves in communication with buyers through the medium of advertising. We shall be happy to accommodate them to any desired extent.

RETURN ENGAGEMENT.

Tomorrow (Wednesday) Evening, at Ferguson's Theatre.

Finding that the Clair Patee Company had one day open this week the management of Ferguson's theatre prevailed upon the company to give another of their excellent performances, on which occasion they will present the thrilling play of "Life for Life." At 4:15 in the afternoon they will also present an after school matinee, lasting until 5:30, when will be presented a very funny one-act comedy, in which will be introduced a number of specialties by different members of the company. This will prove a very attractive entertainment and the price will be 10 cents for all scholars. On this occasion the Ladies' Solo orchestra will also appear with this company and will render some of their most difficult and pleasing selections. Seats are already selling rapidly for this engagement, and all who admire first-class amusement should be present, as this company is eminently worthy liberal patronage.

Gibson Won.

The glove fight at Pottsville last night between William Gibson, of Palo Alto, and formerly of Shenandoah, and Reddy Connolly, of Wilkes-Barre, resulted in a victory for the former in the eighth round. Gibson weighed 150 pounds and was two inches taller than his opponent. Connolly weighed 133 pounds. Gibson had the best of the fight all through, but came near losing it in the seventh round by losing his head and disregarding the cries of the referee to break away. Gibson announced that it was his last fight.

A BOY FATALLY SHOT.

Still Another Case of Not Knowing That the Gun Was Loaded Until Too Late.

OLIVER BANKS THE VICTIM

THE SHOOTING OCCURRED ON THE FARM OF ISAAC JONES, IN THE CATAWISSA VALLEY.

The Weapon Was in the Hands of Young William Jones, Who Supposed he Had Withdrawn the Cartridge.

A most distressing accident occurred last evening on the farm of Isaac Jones, near Krebs' station, in the Catawissa Valley, by which Oliver Banks, the 12-year-old son of David Banks, lost his life. It was a case of accidental shooting, another one of the numerous cases of people handling shot guns on the supposition that they are not loaded.

At the time of the shooting the gun was in the hands of William Jones, the 14-year-old son of the owner of the farm upon which the accident occurred. Young Jones had used the gun during the day to shoot hawks, which had been troubling pigeons that had been placed in his care by Edward Beddall, son of George W. Beddall, the merchant of town. About five o'clock in the evening Oliver Banks, the dead boy, and his ten-year-old brother, Oscar, drove up to the Jones' homestead. They had been peddling fish, peanuts and oranges through the valley and stopped to have a chat with young Jones. The boys entered the house. The gun Jones had been using was a new one and he showed it to the visitors. It was handled more or less without accident until the Banks boys were about to leave the house, when the gun was discharged and the load entered Oliver Banks' back, just under the left shoulder blade. Banks fell to the floor with a groan. His brother at once drove to Ringtown and requested Dr. Rentschler to accompany him to the farm, but the victim was beyond all human aid long before the doctor arrived. The boy died about ten minutes after he was shot. Jones surrendered himself to the authorities at Ringtown last night. He is heartbroken over the occurrence and no one questions the statement that the shooting was accidental. He says that as the Banks boys were walking towards the door to leave the house he was handling the trigger. He did not think the gun was loaded, supposing until the shooting occurred that he withdrew the loaded cartridge when putting away the gun earlier in the day.

Another Dog Shot.

A dog owned by Joseph Gollis, of West Centre street, showed signs of viciousness during the past two or three days and the owner decided to take it to the mountain and end its existence. This morning he started out for the place of execution, but in front of the Greek Catholic church the animal became so vicious that it was necessary to shoot it on the spot. The dog had been a source of great annoyance to Letter Carrier Thomas.

Boulders on a Track.

Two large boulders rolled down the mountain side to the Pennsylvania railroad track, about 30 feet from the bridge near Darkwater, last evening. They were struck by the 6:40 train bound from Hazleton to Pottsville. The boulders were thrown aside, but they tore off two ash pans and the brake gearing of the engine.

Died at Philadelphia.

Michael P. Conry, the South Main street hotelkeeper, yesterday afternoon received a telegram announcing the death of his wife, who was receiving attendance in a medical institution in Philadelphia. Mr. Conry is in the city making arrangements for the removal of the remains to town and will return with them tonight.

Bitten by a Dog.

Michael Hughes was bitten by a dog in the calf of the right leg yesterday afternoon while walking along West Coal street. The animal gave no growl, or other warning, but sneaked up behind Mr. Hughes and buried its teeth in his leg. The owner was notified to dispose of the dog and it was shot last night.

"Antony and Cleopatra."

While Thomas Gibbons, the lightning bill poster of Ferguson's theatre, was putting up a stand of the attractive bills for "Antony and Cleopatra" he was accosted by a street arab, who had watched the progress of the posting with wide open mouth and eyes. "Say, Tom, dat's outer sight. What show's comin'?" Tom answered "Cleopatra." Whereupon the little fellow turned around and exclaimed to some companions, "Say, fellers, dere's a show you watter see?" "What show?" they asked. "Why St. Patrick's comin' can't yer read?" It is hardly necessary to add that they all agreed to be on hand and see the performance at Ferguson's theatre next Friday evening.
