

The Seventy-four Members Arrested for Contempt Exonerated.

HARRISBURG, May 21.—There was a larger attendance in the house last night than at any time since the first week of the session. The presence of so many members was the result of the arrest of seventy-four of them for contempt in absenting themselves from last Friday's session without leave. It had been announced that the members under arrest would be arraigned on by one before the bar to be purged of their contempt, and the spectators expected to witness a rare scene. They were disappointed by the adoption of a resolution offered by Mr. Riter, of Philadelphia, exonerating all the guilty ones.

The recalcitrant members were in an ugly mood, and when the rules committee admitted some changes in the order of business there was a fight that lasted an hour. The object of the committee was to lengthen the hours of work, but when it was adopted in amended form it shortened the session about four hours a week. The original rule was to hold sessions from 9 a. m. to 1 p. m. and 2 to 5 p. m., and from 5 p. m. until a resolution to adjourn was adopted.

Mr. Sooner, of Indiana, one of the truants, wanted to amend the resolution so as to hold three sessions a day, including Saturdays. The resolution was voted down. Numerous other amendments were offered and defeated. Finally Mr. Herzog, of Berks, had one adopted which practically shortens the sessions daily. After this the house will adjourn at 10 o'clock at night and at 1 o'clock on Friday afternoons.

Mr. Peltz, of Philadelphia, took advantage of a change in the order of business to introduce a resolution asking for a special order for his bill to prohibit the sale of pools and the transmission of bets. The resolution was adopted and the bill was taken up and read the second time. It comes up today for third reading and final passage.

In the senate the judicial apportionment bill was amended by Mr. Brown, of Westmoreland, so as to authorize the governor to appoint an additional law judge for that county, and by Mr. Meredith, of Armstrong, so as to make a separate district of each of the counties of Butler and Lawrence. Mr. Vaughan, of Lackawanna, also secured an amendment increasing the number of judges from two to three. In this shape the bill passed second reading.

The bill to prohibit foreign building and loan associations from doing business in this state under penalty of a fine of $500 and imprisonment not exceeding two years was passed finally.

Healthy Children

come from healthy mothers. And mothers will certainly be healthy if they take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Nothing can equal it in building up a woman's strength, in regulating and assisting all her natural functions. It lessens the pains and burdens of child-bearing, supports and strengthens weak, nursing mothers, and promotes an abundant secretion of nourishment.

It is an invigorating, restorative tonic, a soothing and bracing nerve, and a remedy for woman's ills and ailments. In every chronic "female complaint" or weakness, it acts so beneficially that, once used, it is always in favor.

Delicate diseases affecting male or female, however induced, speedily and permanently cured. Illustrated book sent sealed for 10 cents in stamps. World's Dispensary Medical Association, 693 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

Strike Leader Arrested and Released.

POCAHONTAS, Va., May 20.—The output yesterday of the Southwest mines was seventy-three cars. The total was eighty-three for both mines. Oliver W. Farley, who has been one of the leaders of the strike in West Virginia, came here and was put under arrest, but later was taken to the West Virginia line and released. The miners who refused to work were notified to leave the company houses or else be put out. Some of the Hungarians have left for the Pennsylvania fields, and others will follow.

Wilde to be Tried Separately.

LONDON, May 21.—In response to the appeal of the prosecution Justice Willis decided that the case against Oscar Wilde should be tried separately from that of Alfred Taylor, and Wilde was again released on bail. It is now probable that Wilde's case will go over until the next session of the Central Criminal court, and there is evidently but a slight chance of his conviction. In the meanwhile the trial of Alfred Taylor proceeded.

Marvelous Results.

From a letter written by Rev. J. Gauderman, of Dimondale, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were all marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist church at Rives Junction she was brought down with pneumonia, succeeded by grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little interruption and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results. Trial bottles free at A. Wasley's drug store. Regular size 50c. and $1.00.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Pertinent Paragraphs From the Reporters' Pens and Pencils.

Who first beholds the light of day in spring a sweet flow'r, grown in May And wears a bonnet all his life, 'Tis, Shall be a wed and happy wife.

For the summer, there is no better floor covering than matting. It is easily kept clean and is fresh and neat in appearance. When the floor is covered with matting, of course rugs are a necessity, but this does not necessarily mean great expense, for the Japanese rugs, which may be bought from $2 up, are, many of them, as rich in coloring as if they were Persian. In taking care of matting it is not well to wash it often. When it does need brightening up boil together for one hour two quarts of bran and four of water. Strain this, pressing all moisture out of the bran. Add two quarts of cold water and two table-spoons of salt to the strained mixture. Wash the matting thoroughly with this and rub dry with a clean cloth.

Good roads and pavements are a general condition of improvement being characteristic of good government it follows that our suburban life can be made a most enjoyable one if the people and business men, with these conveniences at hand, will exercise their energies in getting all that is desirable in profitable and healthful living. And when we are in earnest about our business we are very apt to advertise ourselves, but if we are only playing at business there will be no advertising. The question of advertising isn't a very complicated one by any means, being simply a talk to your customers about what you have to sell, and when your audience comprises all the readers of the HERALD, you can readily see what an advantage you have in such a medium by which to reach all classes. The testimony of all successful merchants is that constant, continuous, truthful and breezy talks to their customers through the papers has been the chief factor in their success. If a man has the best goods in the market for sale he is not apt to be ashamed to say so, and the more people he can tell it to the better for him.

Spasms in advertising are like spasms in everything else, lasting just about long enough to start people to talking, and then when the advertiser stammers down the people find something else to talk about. Wanamaker is the best talked about man in the country, and whether you like him or not, or whether you deal with him or not, he sees to it that you talk about him just the same. He is always claiming our attention in some way, and that's the source of his success. And he knows it is the best investment of his money when he uses the papers to help him. You can't suggest an advertising idea to Wanamaker without instantly claiming his entire attention. Of course, a man so busy in many directions as he is cannot employ all his time in studying the advertising question, as he looks around for a man to attend to that line for him, and when he finds a Gillingham he pays him a cabinet officer's salary for his services.

I find many people with good articles to sell hesitating about advertising. They might as well hesitate about buying the goods in the first place as to stop advertising. One complements the other all the time. It is cheaper to advertise than later on to hire an auctioneer and sell for less than cost. And the auctioneer simply takes the place of the advertiser in the end, with a much smaller audience than the paper commands. Any one picking up a newspaper and looking over the business columns can easily tell the prosperous merchants of a city.

A larger part of the best advertising is done in as few words as possible, and we all remember how one nervy advertiser published page after page for days of an unknown notice about "clams," and it was quite a while before the public knew the business to be advertised. Another one has stuck the word "Hump" for a long while, and possibly both these men have made a good deal of money by such catchy words as these, though it does not necessarily follow that superior ability in catching the public eye included a superior article to be sold. But it was left to a down country artist to hit off a bright misspelled "Clams" for his customer. The dealer didn't realize the mistake, but it caused a lot of gossip and the curious were anxious to see the sign and know his business. The result was he made money out of the visitors and sold a good article of clams in the bargain. Here are some good ways of letting the people know your business, and "there are others," but none so good as advertising in a reputable paper, with lots of readers, and of that class the HERALD ranks among the best.

A story is told of Bonner and the Harpers many years ago. The Harpers were a high toned lot, who did not believe in sensational advertising, while Bonner did, and the latter brought himself into public gaze by publishing in the New York paper page notices of his New York Ledger, but the novel-reading public in those days hesitated to encourage sensationalism and went with the conservative Harpers. But Bonner knew a trick or two, and he thereupon hastened to the daily papers with a page advertisement of the Harpers. It would hardly seem sensible to publish your rival's business at your own expense, but Bonner was game enough for it, and immediately when the people saw Harpers' advertisement following in the line of Bonner's they immediately jumped to the conclusion that the Harpers recognized Bonner's ability and were glad to copy it, and this made them anxious to see the New York Ledger, and the result was Bonner soon made a fortune on his own account without injuring the Harpers a particle. Printer's ink had done the job for him, as it will do for any one who has the nerve to use it rightly.
