

WHEN HOPE FADED

Mrs. White, a Citizen of Ithaca, Was Saved.

(From the Ithaca Herald.)
Our representative, hearing of the case of Mrs. H. T. White, called to see her at Seneca and Plain streets. We publish their conversation in the following interview:

"Mrs. White, I hear you have something to say about a new remedy for backache and kidney disorders. Will you give me your statement for publication?"
"Yes, I am quite satisfied to do so. I think the public should know when a really good remedy is to be had, it is the least I can do in gratitude for my recovery."

"Tell me about your complaint."
"About a year ago I had the Grippe, and since then my back has pained me constantly in the region of the kidneys; a dull pain at times, and at other intervals, sharp, darting pains piercing through me, were almost unbearable. I seemed to be giving out as the pain in my kidneys grew worse, and at last I had to stay in bed the greater part of the time. Finally, I gave up altogether. I had terrific headaches, and suffered so much pain my appetite left me."

"Did the disorder affect the bladder?"
"Finally, it did. The urine was highly colored, and varied in suppression and excess. I often told my friends I believed I should go insane from the pain. I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills, and began their use. After taking them two or three days I began to feel their good effects. I continued, and now am perfectly well."

"Am I to understand that Doan's Kidney Pills have entirely cured you?"
"Yes, that's the truth. I have no more headaches or pains, and my appetite has returned. Before using Doan's Kidney Pills I found it very trying to go up and down stairs, or to sleep on my back; but now I can do so without a single pain, I feel completely cured, and I wish the manufacturer every possible success."

TAKEN TO CHICAGO.

The Body of Secretary Gresham Now Westward Bound.

SIMPLE SERVICES IN WASHINGTON

The Body Accompanied to the Western Metropolis by President Cleveland and the Members of His Cabinet—Gossip Regarding the Succession.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Washington was hardly prepared for the announcement of the death of Secretary of State Walter Q. Gresham, for, although the fatal termination of the secretary's illness had been forecasted, there was no general apprehension that the end would come so soon. Flags were lowered to half mast on all public buildings and many business houses. Official business was for the time laid aside by the higher officers of the government, and the members of all official circles, together with prominent people in private life, hastened to the Arlington, where the Greshams have made their home in this city, to leave their cards and messages of condolence.

The president and Mrs. Cleveland called during the morning and were for half an hour with Mrs. Andrews, the daughter of the dead secretary of state, and Mr. Otto Gresham, the son. Afterward the president and several members of the cabinet held a conference at the White House to consider the arrangements for the funeral, and later in the day the president issued a proclamation paying a warm tribute to the character of his secretary of state. There was also a meeting of the diplomatic corps at the British embassy, where appropriate action was taken.

The funeral services in Washington were of the simplest and briefest possible character. There was neither sermon nor remarks. Bishop Hurst simply read the burial service of the Methodist Episcopal church, and there were two hymns sung by a select quartette, one of the hymns being Cardinal Newman's "Lead Kindly Light."

The funeral ceremonies in Washington this forenoon were of a semi-official character, as they were held in the east room of the White House, with the president and his cabinet, justices of the supreme court, ambassadors and ministers, representatives of the departments and the army and navy and others present, and all official business is suspended for the day.

Major General Ruger commanded all of the military forces stationed about the Capitol, which acted as an escort for the funeral party from the White House to the depot, where a special train was in readiness to convey the party to Chicago. The train left Washington shortly after noon, and has on board President Cleveland and all of Secretary Gresham's colleagues of the cabinet, who will follow the body to the grave. The seven cabinet officers, with Assistant Secretary Uhl, who is acting secretary of state, will officiate as active pallbearers. Secretary of the Treasury Carlisle will join the funeral party at some point on the route.

The arrangement of the details of the Chicago portion of the services was performed by J. W. Doane and A. A. Sprague, of Chicago, intimate friends of the family. Mrs. Gresham will occupy the private car of the former.

The handsome cloth covered casket containing the remains of Secretary Gresham was removed during the afternoon to the front parlor of the suit of apartments of the Arlington. Many friends who were aware that the remains were visible to public view called last evening to take a last look at the dead. The features bore an unusually natural and life-like appearance and showed no evidences of the ravages of disease. The expression of the face was remarkably peaceful and calm.

While the details of the ceremonies in Chicago are yet incomplete, it is settled that brief services will be held tomorrow afternoon at the cemetery, to which the body will be borne, accompanied by a military escort, in harmony with the day and Secretary Gresham's well known loyalty to his old time war associations.

Secretary Gresham's body will be temporarily deposited in a vault at Oakwoods cemetery, Chicago, pending a decision by the family as to the final resting place. When the train bearing the funeral party reaches Chicago it will be switched off the main tracks of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad to the Illinois Central and run to a station convenient to Oakwoods cemetery. A military escort from Fort Sheridan will accompany the remains from the station to the cemetery.

The present expectation is that the funeral procession will reach the cemetery at 3 o'clock. Here a brief funeral service will be conducted by the Rev. Dr. McPherson of the Second Presbyterian church, Chicago. After its completion the party will separate, the president and the members of the cabinet returning directly to Washington.

Oakwoods is in the southern part of Chicago, and it is the understanding that the President and his party will not be taken into the heart of the city. Word reached here that Vice President Stevenson also expects to join the funeral party at Chicago and attend the services at the cemetery.

The meeting of the diplomatic corps at the British embassy last night was very fully attended, all of the foreign ambassadors and ministers had received from Acting Secretary Uhl an official notification of the death of Secretary Gresham. It was determined that each should send a reply expressive of his government's sympathy. In addition to this Sir Julian was authorized to address a letter of condolence to the family of the deceased, a mark of the personal esteem in which the foreign representatives held the late secretary.

There is considerable speculation by politicians and others outside of administration circles as to the probable successor to Secretary Gresham. Prominent among the large number of names mentioned in this connection are those of Attorney General Olney, Mr. Uhl, the present assistant secretary of state; Senator Gray, of Delaware; Ambassadors Bayard and Easta, ex-Secretary Whitney and ex-Postmaster General Dickinson. All of the predictions, however, are purely speculative, as has not been mentioned, much less discussed, by the president or any one in his confidence. The president has thirty days under the law within which to make his selection, and it is thought that a choice will not be definitely determined upon for some time yet.

A MARVELAND LYNCHING

Murderer Henson Dragged from Jail by a Masked Mob.

FEARED EXECUTIVE CLEMENCY.

Governor Brown, However, Declares That the Condemned Man Would Have Been Legally Hanged, as Experts Had Declared Him Mentally Responsible for His Act.

ELLIOTT CITY, Md., May 29.—Jacob Henson, the young colored man who was recently tried and convicted in the Howard county court and sentenced to be hanged on June 7, was taken from the Elliott City jail early in the morning and hanged to the limb of a dogwood tree.

The mob assembled near the jail by twos and threes. No alarm was given, and the first information Chief of Police Vanaman had of their presence was when the leaders of the throng demanded admittance to the jail. He attempted to parley with them, but it was of no use.

"We have come for Henson, and we mean to have him," was the only answer given to him.

Vanaman refused to open the jail doors, but a heavy stick of timber proved as efficacious as a key, and the mob was soon inside the little prison. Henson covered in his cell, and when he caught sight of the white figures as they were revealed by the dim light of a single lantern he shrieked for mercy, swearing that he had never killed a man.

It was useless. Half a dozen determined men broke open the cell door and placed a rope around the negro's neck. He was more dead than alive when dragged from the cell. He fell upon his knees and alternately prayed and cursed; but determined hands were at the other end of the rope, and he was dragged face downward down the jail steps.

Once in the open air he seemed to revive, and struggled to his feet, determined to fight for life. For a moment or two there was a desperate struggle, but Henson was quickly overcome, and was half dragged, half carried from the center of the town. On past the place where the murderer was committed the mob hurried him to Merrick's livery to offer a convenient place for the last act of the tragedy, and Henson was hustled along until he was left behind. Then the end of the rope was thrown over the branch of a tree. There was a final shriek, ending in a ghastly rattle, as the murderer was pulled clear off the ground and the tragedy was over. No shots were fired, and the mob dispersed as quietly as it had assembled.

The lynching was the work of about twenty determined men, who thus avenged the murder of Daniel F. Shea, which was one of the most brutal crimes ever committed in Howard county. The lynchers feared that the governor of Maryland might be induced to interfere, and commit the dead man's sentence to life imprisonment.

The grounds for this apprehension came from the repeated visits to the jail of specialists in mental diseases to inquire into Henson's sanity, and the reported intention of Governor Brown himself to go out there for the same purpose.

The belief had been growing that Henson's sentence might be commuted and he be spirited away to the Baltimore penitentiary. The effect of this belief was found in a placard, signed "Whitecaps," which was left pinned to the breast of the lynched negro, on which was written:

"We respect our court and judges. Governor Brown forced the law abiding citizens to carry out the verdict of the jury."

Governor Brown Deplores the Lynching.

BALTIMORE, May 29.—In speaking of the lynching of Jacob Henson at Elliott City Governor Brown said: "I was greatly shocked at the brutal outrage committed by those people. The man would have been hanged by due process of law in a short time, the report of the committee of physicians who examined him as to his insanity being to the effect that he was sane and responsible for his acts. This lynching is an outrage of the importance of passing a law requiring all persons convicted of capital offenses to be brought to the penitentiary at Baltimore as soon as sentenced, and executed here."

Holmes Pleads Guilty.

PHILADELPHIA, May 29.—The trial of Herman Mudgett, alias H. H. Hobbs, alias Howard, on the charge of conspiring to defraud the Fidelity Mutual Life association of $10,000 by the imposition of a corpse as that of Benjamin F. Pitzel, was resumed yesterday before Judge Here. The trial had barely opened, however, when the prisoner withdrew his plea of not guilty and pleaded guilty. Sentence was deferred.
