TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

The Reorganization of the School Board Discussed.

THE PEOPLE ARE SATISFIED

Democratic Members of the Board Have Won Praise for Their Admirable Conduct at the Organization.

The organization of the School Board as effected on Monday night was the principal topic last night. The sentiment was general that the officers selected by the board were exceedingly qualified and such as will give the school district an excellent administration. Daniel Ogden is an excellent choice for the presidency of the board. He will add dignity to the office and as an executive officer he will certainly be a success. Mr. Ogden is one of the men of the borough who commands the respect of all classes by his conservative and intelligent action on all matters and he has won lasting fame as a school director. He has been especially active in connection with the financial and library departments of the board and in both his services have been invaluable. All his colleagues on the board, regardless of any differences of opinion that may have existed from a political standpoint, have always treated him with the homage due a faithful and competent representative of the people and on many occasions they have publicly complimented him for the ability he has displayed in managing the financial affairs of the borough and conducting the library.

The election of William T. Trezise as secretary of the board also gives general satisfaction. He is eminently qualified for the position and none have endorsed his selection more heartily than his predecessor, Frank Hanna. He has been a faithful and hard working member of the board and the services he has rendered his party are by no means repaid by the appointment.

P. W. Bierstein's election to the treasurer's office and that of T. R. Beddall, Esq., to the solicitorship, also gives general satisfaction. The elections as a whole give more satisfaction than the majority made by the board during recent years, because it seems to be generally recognized that, while they were in direct line with party interests, no sacrifice of the people's welfare was conceded and no better selections could have been made in point of qualification and ability.

It is not to be understood, however, that the result is absolutely free of criticism. No change can be made in public offices to the entire satisfaction of everybody, or in such a manner as to deter some people from at least trying to make political capital out of it. There are some who are criticizing the increase of the secretary's salary from $15 to $50 per month and are spreading it broadcast as a piece of extravagance by the Citizens party members of the board. These people do not understand the situation. They were not enlightened as to the circumstances that led to the increase, and it will do no harm to give them that enlightenment now. The Citizens members had decided to increase the salary for that office and had the Democratic members remained in control of the board they, undoubtedly, would have done the same thing, as both parties recognized that the old salary was entirely inadequate for the amount and importance of labor required of the secretary. When the time for the board to fix the salaries of the officers for the year arrived Marshal Baugh moved that the salary of the secretary be fixed at $50 per month, an increase of $5 per month on the old salary. Frank Hanna, the retiring secretary, at once amended that the salary be fixed at $60 and in support of his views made a most creditable address. His argument was so convincing that the amendment was adopted without a dissenting voice.

It should also be stated here that too much praise cannot be given the Democratic members of the board for the graceful manner in which they relinquished control of its affairs. Every move they made during the organization was marked with the greatest courtesy toward the members of the majority and there are people in the Citizens party who can learn an admirable lesson from events of the evening. The Democratic members, of course, knew that their control of the board was a foregone conclusion and some may say that they did not raise barriers for the very good reason that they knew they could accomplish nothing by such a course. Nevertheless they are entitled to praise for refraining from making a political pot-pourri of the organization by useless nominations and naggings for the purpose of creating a break in their favor and for allowing matters to take their course with the dignity becoming the management of public school affairs.

THOUGHTS OF THE MOMENT.

Paraphrased on Odds and Ends From the Pen and Pencil.

The excitement and interest aroused by the fire has subsided considerably and now the people are beginning to look for something else to take their attention. It is sincerely hoped that whatever that may be it will not bring such loss and inconvenience as the fire entailed. The Fourth of July is the only thing on the tapis, at least within sight. If no misfortune befalls meanwhile we will all enjoy the glorious Fourth.

The refusing of the $12,000 offer by Gerloch Dornbach is an indication of the height at which the people of Shenandoah hold their properties in spite of the croakings of some that the town has but a few more years of life left. It also shows that the people who offered to invest that much money in the piece of ground have confidence in the future of the town. It is a pity more people cannot be brought to the same reasoning. The town would then boom as it ought.

At the time the great fire of 1883 occurred ex-Sheriff B. J. Duffy was engaged in the furniture and undertaking business and also had an agency for the sale of sewing machines. In removing several of the machines to save them from the flames Mr. Duffy left one for safe keeping in the house of John McGowan, who at that time occupied a part of the Dornbach property. The same-old machine was observed in the ruins of the property yesterday. Finding it in the road after some time Mr. McGowan removed it to the garret of the house and when he moved to Mahanoy City some months ago he left it there, and there it remained until Saturday morning, when it met the fate it escaped in 1883.

In one of the reports about Saturday's fire it was stated that one of the causes of preventing the fire department from getting to work at the beginning of the fire was a misplacing of a wrench that was needed to open the fire plug. It now appears that this was not strictly correct. The wrench was in the box of the hose carriage and the vehicle was pulled away to stretch the hose before the fireman who was to take charge of the instrument thought of it. Hence it was a case of momentarily forgetfulness, and not a misplacement.

Martin Heisenberger was not a heavy cash loser by the fire, after all. The story that he had quite a sum of money sewed up in a bed-tick and that he failed to get it out before the fire swept his premises, was based upon the imagination of some people and given a color of truth of the statements of the family that Mr. Heisenberger lost all he owned. But the careful manner in which some of the former tenants of the properties sift the ashes they turn over in prowling about the ruins strengthens belief in the stories that other people lost considerable cash. Mr. Radziewicz's little girl says thirty dollars of her savings are in the ruins. She had her little bank in hand when escaping from the building, but dropped it. The bank broke and the money scattered.

THE NEWS GLEANINGS.

German Reformed Classis is in Session Now.

Can a Landlord Stop Goods After They Are Taken From His House—A Happy Wedding Couple Reach Home.

The Schuykill Classis of the German Reformed church, which includes Reading, parts of Berks county and all of Schuykill county, opened its annual session in the Trinity Reformed church on West Lloyd street, last evening. The session will be continued until Friday evening.

Communion service opened the session and the annual sermon was preached by Rev. S. H. Bridenbaugh, of Reading. It was an able exposition of the text taken from Acts X: 44-45.

Upon the conclusion of the sermon Rev. Robert O'Boyle, the retiring president of the Classis and pastor of the local church, formally opened the session and after the roll call Rev. Bridenbaugh was elected president. The exercises of the evening were interspersed with selections of a sacred character by the choir.

Stopped the Goods.

William Schuezensky lived in a house on West Oak street, owned by Patrick Corrigan, and moved out last night without paying the rent. Corrigan had a landlord's warrant issued by Squire Williams and placed it in the hands of Constable Dando, who levied on the goods at the corner of Oak and Jardin streets, where the goods remained all night. Schuezensky was taken before Squire Williams, but was afterwards released. The driver refused to move the goods and took his horses away. This morning the landlord took the goods to a place of safety. Several law suits are likely to follow over the legal complication arising out of the question as to whether the landlord could stop the goods after they left his house.

Returned From Their Wedding Tour.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Fay returned yesterday from their wedding tour, which included visits to New York, Baltimore and Washington. They will take up their residence at the Commercial Hotel for the present. Mrs. Fay, nee White, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. White, of Hasleton, where she formerly taught school and enjoys a large circle of friends. A bright future and a happy sail over the sea of matrimonial life are the wishes of the HERALD for Mr. and Mrs. Fay.

Should be Furnished Free.

EDITOR HERALD:—I see by the HERALD's report of the Borough Council meeting on Monday evening that some of the Councilmen are undecided as to whether the borough should furnish the property owners with free connections to the water works. I for one say that the borough must do it, or break faith with the people. When the water works movement first started and the people were asked to vote to grant the first money asked for them it was represented that everything was to be free and that there would not even be a taxation for the works. And when the second increase of debt was asked for the people were told that all connections would be made without charge to the property holders. We all know how the first representations were carried out and got the taxes in the neck. Are we to be faked again? I voted for the second increase of debt on the express understanding from one of the Councilmen that all connections would be made free and I know of a number of others who voted for the increase upon that understanding. They would have voted the other way if they had not been assured on the connection and preferred to pay the bills on the debt already incurred. The people who told the superintendent, that if the connections would be made free they would be willing to pay fifty cents a month in addition to the mills for one year, are very generous. I won't make an offer to pay anything in addition to the mills, because the people are entitled to free connections and I expect, if I connect with the new water works, that I will have to pay more than the mills. The people who think the mills are going to pay the water rents will be badly fooled. The whole thing was milk and honey when it started, but it is all mud now. Give us the connections right away, and free, too. If the Council hasn't got enough money to do the work let it ask for another special election.
