The Lehigh Valley Railroad has adoptcars done by contract. It is hinted that painting the cars by contract.

The mine inspectors throughout the state are living on what they had laid up in the past or on their credit, for they have received no pay since the first of the year. There has been no appropriation made to meet their salaries, and these officers are becoming anxious.

Patrons of the Schuylkill Traction Com pany complain of the large number of boys who cling on the sides and platforms of the cars, particularly at night, and annoy them in shouting, throwing light missiles and by other mischievous actions. That this condition does exist to a degree is true, but the car employes have used every means within their control to prevent it, but in vain. The bold youth will continue to jump on and annoy conductor and passengers until some are arrested. Then the whole trouble will cease, as the thought of going to jail has a marvelous stilling effect on the mind and muscles of a mischievous boy. The best manner of en- the time of said litigation; that all of the compassing such youthful vagabonds is by stealth, as none will willingly run into the arms of the law. A PIRATE'S DISCIPLINE.

The Rules of Conduct Observed on Board a Buccaneers

The customs and regulations most commonly observed on board a buccaneer are worth noting. Every pirate captain doubt-less had his own set of rules, but there are certain traditional articles that seem to have been generally adopted. The captain had a state cabin, a double vote in elections, a double share of booty. On some vessels it was the captain who decided in what direction to sail, but this and other matters of moment were often settled by a vote of the company, the captain's vote counting for two.

The officers had a share and a half or a share and a quarter of the plunder and the sailors one share each. Booty was divided with scrupulous care, and marconing was the penalty of attempting to de fraud the general company, if only to the amount of a single goldpiece. Every man had a full vote in every affair of impor-

Arms were always to be clean and fit for service, and desertion of the ship or quarters in battle was punished with death. On one famous pirate's ship a man who was crippled in battle received $800 out of the common stock, and a proportionate sum was awarded for lesser hurts. Another allowed $725 for the loss of a limb, and other captains instituted a sort of tariff of wounds which extended to ears, fingers and toes. In chase or battle the captain's power was absolute. He who first spied a sail. if she proved to be a prize, was entitled to the best pair of pistols on board her over and above his dividend. These pistols were greatly coveted, and a pair would sell for as much as $150 from one pirate to an-

In their own commonwealth the pirates ere reported to have been severe upon the point of honor, and among one crew it was the practice to slit the ears or nose of any sailor found guilty of robbing his fellow.—New York Dispatch

HOYT AGAINST GREEN.

Mary Irene Brings Suit Against Hetty For $100,000 Damages,

ALL BECAUSE OF A REMARK.

A Prospective Legal Battle Between Two Pamous Litigants-Miss Hoyt Denies That She Is Insane or Ever Has Been In an Asylum.

New York, June 6 .- Mrs. Hetty Green is involved in another litigation, this time through a semark she made in the law office of Henry H. Anderson, 35 Wall street, about Miss Mary Irene Hoyt. Mrs. Green's words, as quoted in a newspaper on May 11, were:

Did you ever see such a set of buzzards? Oh, it is sad to think of poor Irene Hoyt! Joe Choate and the other buzzards got hold of her and she is in an asylum now. Barling was the star witness for Choate in that case."

Miss Hoyt's lawyer, Frank J. Dupignac, served a summons and complaint on Mrs. Grean to recover $100,000 damages for the use of this "false and defamatory" language, as it is termed. The complaint as-serts that the "poor Irene Hoyt" men-tioned is the plaintiff, that "Joe Choato" is Joseph H. Choate, and that Mrs. Green intended "to imply, state and by direct language and by innuendo to declare to the persons present and to the public that plaintiff was mentally incapacitated and was insane and was restrained of her personal liberty by reason of her inability care for her person and her estate, all of which is false, malicious and untrue." In aggravation of damages Miss Hoyt gives a review of her own litigious career. She asserts that between 1884 and 1889 ed a new system of having the painting of she was engaged in litigation over the stations and all painting except that of the Hoyt, and that in the centest Mr. Choate was one of the counsel for the proponents the company will also give out the work of of the will and, consequently, against her.

Miss Hoyt Not Insane, She adds: "That in said proceedings the plaintiff's mother, Helen Maria Hoyt, was a witness and testified that her daughter, the plaintiff in this action, was not and never had been insane, and that in such proceedings, during all of said years, the plaintiff was treated by all the courts in which she was a litigant, including the surrogate's court, supreme court and court of appeals of the state of New York and the United States, and ther courts in the state of Michigan, as a perfectly compe-tent litigant, fully able to conduct her business and her affairs, but in some of said litigations it was claimed that the plaintiff had been at one time restrained of her liberty, and this fact was generally and largely published throughout the United States in the public press, and the plaintiff in this action claimed and insist-ed that such restraint was unwarranted and brought an action against the persons who were responsible for her false imprisonment, laying her damages at a very large sum of money, and all of these facts were also published in the newspapers at proceedings were thereafter settled be tween the parties and withdrawn, and the plaintiff was in all those proceedings of settlement treated by the litigants therein, their counsel, attorneys and by the courts as a perfectly competent litigant."

Miss Hoyt says that since the termina tion of those proceedings she has led a quiet life "like any other sane and respectlic interest in the former litigations and tend to make the public and persons with whom she transacts business believe that there is foundation for the stories. All of this, she concludes, is greatly to her dis-tress of mind and body and to the embarrassment of her business affairs.

Barling's Answer,

The lawyer against whom Mrs. Green the proceedings brought by Mrs. Green for his removal from the position of executor and trustee nder the will of her father Edward Mott Robinson, who died about

A suit involving Mr. Barling's accounts is now pending before Mr. Anderson as referee, and it was at a recent hearing that Mrs. Green used the words that have brought Miss Hoyt forward again as a litigant. Mrs. Green recently tired of the delays before the referee and began the proceedings in the surrogate's court for Mr. Barling's removal, charging that he had not accounted for all the money that

In his answer Mr. Barling denies that he has misappropriated any portion of the estate. He says if the court determines that Mrs. Green's claims are well founded the satisfaction of any judgment will sim-ply involve the transfer of the sum she shall be adjudged to be entitled to from the capital to the income account. He says the only real question is whether some sums accruing to the estate are income or whether they should be accounted for as capital. He alleges that there is no foundation for her beilef that the settlement will show that be has failed to account for large sums that he actually owes her. He estimates that the amount now due her is in the neighborhood of $600,000

HISTORICAL FASHIONS.

The period being revived just now is that of Cromwell, which has not heretofore-come to the front, and as it is pictur esque and distinctive it may prove very sat-isfactory to the searcher after novelty and fresh effects. The Cromwell hat, with its tapering crown and broad brim, decorated by a single plume around one side, is no calculated for general becomingness, but the Cromwell cont, with its broad, turndown collar and blg sleeves cut up the Inner side to show undersleeves and the turnback cuffs, will be more widely ac-

One of the prettiest of these revivals is indoubtedly the Cromwell collar and cuffs, which, to be quite correct, are rather more of Charles II than Cromwell, as they are most of them decorated with costly and delicate lace, a vanity and frivolity "Old Noll" would never have countenanced. These sets are made in all kinds of white washing fabrics and might well employ some of the dainty needles engaged on superfluous fancy work, for a set of snowy, pretty collar and cuffs will make a shabby sse gown pass as respectable.

For general wear fine cambric ruffles are better than lace, as they launder perfectly and are far more durable, besides being ery inexpensive. The figure in the illustration shows a pretty house gown of surah, of the shade known as "Ophelia." It is close fitting, with a wattean back. The front has a fall of accordion plaited surah from neck to foot. The gown is cut away at the throat and has a Marie Antoinette flohu of surah bordered with a ruffle of white mousseline This is fastened by a chou of ribde sole. bon with very long ends. New York Tribune. THOSE DREADED DRAFTS.

How They Are Caused and Avoided In

Window Tight Room Several years ago in the fall of the year I was sick for weeks, and when at last I was able to sit up I sat in my sitting room, which faced the northwest, during the daytime, and wishing to see the pass ing I had my place near a large window. The room had an open grate, also furnace heat, and the thermometer easily registered 70 to 75 degrees, but with all this warmth there was a draft, as I thought, on on my head and neck.

Every one said the cold air came in at the window sash. I sent for the weather strip man, and of course he discovered, or thought he did, the cause and put on his rubber molding so that the sash when closed was tight

"Now," he says, "you will have no more trouble in that direction."
The next cold snap the same old gale of wind appeared. When my doctor came in, I spoke to him in regard to it, when he informed me that it was not the cold air from outside that I felt, but the warm air of the room, which went to the top of the window, struck the cold glass, cooled and then "fell down" as the cold air would had not the easing been airtight. He then said, "Drop your curtain about one-third and keep it there."

I did as he directed, and the gale stop ped, and I had no trouble after that told me that the same trouble existed in most houses, even those that were well heated in the halls and bedrooms, the heat going to the top, cooling and falling back, so that one coming from a warm room down stairs and going up would often think that there must be windows open above. Of course double windows would remedy this cooling off process in the rooms, but with the curtains down a little they prevent the instant cooling of the warm air, and there is your draft. You will notice that these "drafts" are about during the day more than at night and always less in the room where there is a lamp. Why? Simply when you light your lamps or the gas you draw down the shades, and the heat does not strike the cold glass .- Boston Transcript

ORDER OF THE GARTER.

Its Alleged Ballroom Origin a Piece of Legendary Roman

The origin of the Order of the Golden Fleece is like that of the Garter, shrouded in mystery. Very few modern archæolo-gists attach any credence to the vulgar tradition wholly unsupported by any au-thority that at a court ball given by Ed-ward III a lady, supposed to be the Countess of Salisbury, dropped her garter and the king, taking it up and observing some of his courtiers to smile as though they thought he had not obtained this favor merely by accident, exclaimed in a loud voice, "Honi soit qui mal y pense,"

There is another opinion which traces the origin of this order, which, according to the learned Seldon "exceeds in majesty, honor and fame all the chivalrous orders in the world," to Rickard Cour de Lion having upon the occasion of some warlike expedition during his wars in Palestine chosen a leathern thonged garter as the distinctive mark of his partisans. Yet another theory ascribes the foundation of the order to the fact that Edward at the battle of Crecy issued his garter as a signal for battle, which, proving successful, deter-mined him to institute the order in memory of the event.

Both these opinions are to a certain extent feasible, and the first is materially fortified by the well known fact that when the crusaders captured St. Jean d'Acre in nocturnal assault the knights of the Christian army were ordered to wear straps of white leather bound round the leg un-der the left knee in order to distinguish them from the infidels.-Philadelphia Press.

His Criticism.

Professional art critics are by no means the only people whose opinions of pictures are worth hearing, as many an artist has found out. Michael Herlihy had his little shop insured in a popular company, and the agent presented him with a highly colored lithograph representing the burning of a block of buildings.

Mr. Herlihy surveyed the picture for some moments, muttering to himself the while. At last he turned a dissatisfied face upon the agent,

"It's meighty purty," he said, "but it's mesilf doesn't call it complate, sorr, not by anny manes. "Indeed," said the agent, "What is wanting, Mr. Herlihy?"

'There's the buildin's all roight," said Michael, "an there's the foire ingines, an the ladders, an the horses, an the shmoke an cinders. There's the payple running an the foiremen climbin oop an doon, but," said Mr. Herlihy, turning his back on the painted conflagration and confronting the insurance agent with an expression of strong discontent, "whoiver in the wolde wurrld saw a blither av that koind goin on, an not a bit av a dog annywhere to be same on the sthrate, sorrf Who's the man 't painted that picther. O'ld loike t' ld?" concluded Mr. Herlihy, waxing scornful. "He's got a few things to l'arr before iver he'll be an artisht, Ol'm think in!"-Youth's Companion.

His Wife Was Troubled.

The lawyer, who had been married for only a year, sent word to his wife that he had been suddenly called to Milwaukee. "I will be back tomorrow," he wrote. "Don't worry. My stenographer goes with me."

But she did worry. When he reached home next evening, her eyes were red from weeping, and as soon as she saw him she broke down again. "Oh, how could you!" "What's the matter?" he demanded.

"Your stenographer"— she begun, and again she sobbed. "What's the matter with him?"
"Him! Was it a man?" "Why, yes. I fired that girl a month ago. "Oh, dearest, I never believed it for a moment anyway."—Chicago Record. A Suggestive Sermon.

The Rev. Dr. Howard, chaplain to Princess Augusta, was so fond of good living that he ran into debt with many of the special interests that he one day preached from the text, "Have patience, and I will pay you all." He spoke at great length on the virtues of patience and then proposed at I now constant. ceeded, "I now come to the second part of occasion."-London Standard. Resigned. "Now," said the physician who is noted for his heavy charges, "I must take your temperature."

"All right," responded the patient in a tone of utter resignation. "You've got about everything else I own. There's no reason why you shouldn't take that too." -Paris Journal.
