The School Board's Latest Real Estate Purchase.

ARRANGEMENT OF THE DEAL

The Real Purchaser Was Kept in the Background to Prevent Speculation and an Increase in Price.

The announcement that the School Board had purchased the two lots on North White atreet that were owned by C. E. Titman and are now covered with ruins of the disastrous fire on the 1st inst., was a surprise to many people and some are bothering is a great mistake to prophesy evil unless Pottsville and was due at the Lehigh Valtheir minds over the method by which the purchase was made. The procedure was perfectly authorized at a regular meeting of the board, although this fact did not o the board that the preperty could be purchased for $5,000, but the offer was not sent to the board. It was made to an individual. Experience of the past had taught the schood directors that to let the public know the School Board wanted to purchase a site for a school building incited competition and speculation and caused owners to raise prices. Consequently it was decided to conduct this transaction different to the methods by which others were governed and T. R. Beddall, Esq., the solicitor for the board, was instructed at the last meeting of the board to make ab argain for the property as attorney and make a deposit on the contract without disclosing the real purchaser. This Mr. Beddall did nowadays are financiers from wayback. and it was not until after he had the bargain for the purchase legally tied that it became known why the lawyer wanted the property. What a splendid example to the growing youth of the country is set by the members of the Legislature who, while engaged in making laws for the people of the sovereign state of Pennsylvania, divert their over-burdened minds by throwing spittoons at one another, sprinkling their companions with syringes, exploding fire crackers in the hall of the House of Bepresentatives, and in similar pleasantries. Suppose our courts which interpret the laws should follow the example of the Legislature which enacts them?
