ROSEBERY'S SUCCESSOR

Lord Salisbury to be Great Britain's Next Premier.

PARLIAMENT MUST BE DISSOLVED

Before the Conservative Leader Will Agree to Assume the Duties of the Premiership—The Irish and Scotch Members Uneasy and Dissatisfied.

LONDON, June 24.—The outcome of the deliberations of the cabinet in consequence of the adverse vote in the house of commons on Friday is that Lord Rosebery, the prime minister, tendered his resignation to the queen. Her majesty last evening summoned Lord Salisbury, the leader of the Conservative party, to Windsor in connection with the formation of a Conservative ministry. Lord Salisbury did not receive his summons until too late to go to Windsor last night, but he went early this morning.

It is understood that the Marquis of Salisbury only agrees to form a cabinet on condition that the parliament is dissolved. He will insist that the government, before yielding the seals, shall pass a vote of an amount necessary for the expenditures for two months, to enable a general election to be held. The Conservatives will thus be in a position of attack instead of defense. Nothing is known regarding the personnel of the new ministry, but complete harmony exists between the Liberal Unionists and Conservatives. The Irish members are extremely uneasy and dissatisfied. They state that after acting for three years as the strongest arm of the government, they are deeply concerned at the sudden ending of the principal Irish measures. Not only has home rule not progressed, but the measure concerning the Christian Brothers, the county council bill, which reached a second reading, the grand jury bill and the proposal to extend the power of guardians regarding laborers' cottages were all lost. The only Irish measure now likely to be passed is Mr. Healy's municipal franchise bill, which has gone to the house of lords.

The Liberal Scotch members are also sore. Mr. James G. Weir, member for Ross and Cromarty, communicated with Lord Rosebery yesterday, urging him not to dissolve parliament until the measure extending the benefit of the crofters' act to Highland tenants should have been passed.

Lord Rosebery rose early yesterday, and attended St. George's chapel before breakfast. He then strolled through the grounds alone till 10 o'clock, when he went to Frogmore, where the queen was breakfasting with the Princess Beatrice and Prince Christian. He then attended service at Frogmore Mausoleum with the queen and family, after which he had a private audience with the queen. A number of C. P. patches were received and opened by the queen. Lord Rosebery returned to the castle for lunch, and returned to town in the afternoon. He held a consultation with Mr. Asquith, the home secretary, Lord Tweedmouth, lord of the privy seal, and Mr. Arnold Morley, postmaster general, in Downing street, immediately on his return.

Lord Rosebery conferred with Sir William Harcourt later in the evening, and a five line whip was issued calling upon the Liberals to be in attendance at the house of commons at 3 o'clock this afternoon, when it is expected that Sir William Harcourt will make the official announcement.

The effect of the cabinet decision is more marked upon the whips and officials than upon the cabinet ministers. Lord Rosebery, on his return to town, looked decidedly sprightly, and Lord Tweedmouth, Mr. Morley and Sir William Harcourt were in a jocular mood.

Earl Rosebery was offered the office of prime minister by the queen on March 3, 1894, Mr. Gladstone having offered his resignation on account of failing eyesight. Lord Rosebery had occupied the position of foreign secretary in Mr. Gladstone's cabinet, and had been prominently considered for ten years past as the probable successor to Mr. Gladstone in the leadership of the Liberal party when the time for the retirement of that gentleman should come.

About the only objection urged against his appointment as premier was that the leader of the party should be a member of the house of commons, and that the party cannot be managed from the house of lords. Lord Rosebery, upon assuming the premiership, took the place of first lord of the treasury in the cabinet, and called the Earl of Kimberley to succeed himself as foreign secretary. The leadership in the house of commons was entrusted to Sir William Vernon Harcourt, who retained his place in the cabinet as chancellor of the exchequer.

No Sailors Seriously Injured.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—Secretary Herbert received a telegram from Admiral Kirkland, at Kiel, stating that none of the sailors had been seriously injured by the explosion on the launch of the cruiser San Francisco, and that all were on duty again. The admiral did not give the names of the injured, evidently regarding the subject too trifling for details.

J., June 24.—Garrett Cochran, the Princeton freshman who was shot by the negro Collins, on the night of June 8, has recovered sufficiently to be removed to his home in Williamsport, Pa., and was taken there on Saturday, accompanied by his father and brother. He walked from the cab to the train.

FAVORING BIMETALLISM

A Memorial to be Presented to the British Parliament.

INTERNATIONAL ACTION NEEDED.

The Document, Which is Being Numerously Signed by Leading English Bankers, Merchants and Manufacturers, Declares the Single Standard a Failure.

LONDON, June 24.—A bimetallic memorial to parliament has been unanimously signed by numbers of leading bankers, merchants and manufacturers doing business in the east. It first refers to the recent anti-bimetallic memorial in which it says bimetallic is justly described as a growing agitation. It then proceeds to relate that instead of the commercial ascendancy of Great Britain and the financial ascendancy of London having been established since the change in the currency in 1816, it was reversed before then. Moreover, up to nearly six years after 1816 the business of the world was conducted under the dominating influence of the bimetallic system. The experience of recent years has shown that British commercial prosperity during this period was due to the universal effect of the bimetallic law, and not to the operation of our single standard. The memorial proceeds:

"With the abandonment of bimetallic our immense advantages disappeared. The subsequent attempt, for the first time in history, to conduct the business of the western world on a gold basis, was followed by a wide and increasing divergence in the value of gold and silver, which hindered trade, and a progressive fall in prices, which seriously injured industrial undertakings. Contracts have been disturbed, the burden of the debtor increased and property depreciated, with a resulting loss of capital embarked in industry and the employment of the working classes. These are matters of grave and serious importance, which should command attention."

"In view of the vastness of British commerce the burden of indebtedness borne by the colonies and India, and the fact that there are three distinct systems of currency within the empire, no people in the world are more interested in the establishment of bimetallic than Great Britain, which ought heartily to co-operate with foreign nations in endeavoring to achieve it.

"The experience of history, the teachings of science and the conclusions of authority, as expressed by the unanimous report of the gold and silver commission, unite in supporting the opinion that the relative value of the metals could be maintained under bimetallic. The recent statements on behalf of the French government, the resolutions of the German Reichstag and the state council of the Prussian diet and the emphatic declaration of the United States in favor of international bimetallic are proofs of their desire to join Great Britain in a serious endeavor to accomplish this end."

"In the presence of the evils which cannot be denied we hope that the government will not suffer a hypothetical danger to special interests or a prophetic but unsupported assertion of harm to industry and commerce to deter them from a hearty co-operation with the other powers in such measures as seem desirable for securing a fixed par of exchange for the two metals and a more stable standard of value than we now possess, and we respectfully ask you to adhere to the resolution of the house of commons passed on Feb. 25."

"The motion was introduced in the house of commons by Mr. Robert L. Everett, Liberal member for the Woodbridge division of Suffolk, and was as follows:

"That the house regards with increasing apprehension the constant fluctuation and the growing divergence of the values of gold and silver, and heartily concurs in the recent expressions of opinion of the governments of France and Germany in regard to the serious evils arising therefrom."

Murdered by a Masked Robber.

CHICAGO, June 24.—C. B. Birch, cash receiver for the West Chicago Street Railway company at the Arlington avenue cable barns, was shot and fatally wounded early in the morning by a man who attempted to rob him of the day's receipts. Birch was alone in his office when a masked man entered and told him to hold up his hands. Instead of complying Birch reached for his revolver, when the robber fired two shots at him, striking him in the back and arm. Birch then fired, and before dying said he believed he had hit the man. The robber fired three more shots, hitting Birch in the neck and breast, just above the heart. The robber then grabbed a handful of money from the counter and made his escape. In his hurry he scattered silver money about the floor. Birch was removed to a hospital, where he died four hours later.
