BIG RIOT AT WM. PENN

Men, Women and Children Involved in Desperate Battle.

NONE SERIOUSLY INJURED!

It Grew Out of a Wrestling Match and Was a Hot One—Seventeen Law Suits Instituted Against Participants.

The ordinarily peaceful hamlet of Wm. Penn was stirred up Saturday night by a riot in which men, women and children participated, and several of them suffered from flying rocks, although none were hurt seriously. Several pistol shots were fired but no one was hit. Constable "Joe" Peters had a narrow escape from one of the shots. No less than seventeen law suits have followed the affair. The combatants have sued each other on charges of assault and inciting riot.

Justice Williams had one of the cases before him yesterday, but only as committing magistrate and no evidence was heard. Lewis Bender, the hotelkeeper of Wm. Penn, was arrested by Constable Phillips on a charge preferred by William Taggart, who says Bender discharged a revolver during the riot and threatened to kill people. Bender was put under $500 bail.

Eight cases were instituted by Bender and his friends, Saturday night, before Justice Green at Wm. Penn against William Taggart and his family and several friends. All were put under bail to answer charges of assault and battery, disturbing the peace and inciting riot. Today Constable Phillips went to Wm. Penn to execute nine warrants in additional cases instituted by the Taggarts and others against Bender and several who sided with him in the melee.

According to what appears to be one of the most reliable versions of the affair two men named Jacob Metz and "Brock" Taggart were wrestling in front of Bender's hotel when somebody threw a stone that struck Metz on the head. This precipitated a clashing of factions that brought forth a volley of stones and several of them shattered the windows of Bender's hotel. It is stated that Bender, without waiting to ascertain the cause of the attack on his place, commenced throwing beer glasses through the shattered window panes and then rushed out of the saloon to the road with a revolver in one hand and a 'fillet in the other, threatening to "clean out the patch." It also appears that several women in Bender's house ran out and filled their aprons with stones, declaring that they would help the saloonkeeper to "fill the Englishmen." Bender fired several shots from the revolver, but whether they were directed upwards into the air or at the crowd has not been learned. Nobody was hit, however, by the bullets. A hot and general fight followed and several of the participants were injured, but none seriously. A boy named Francis, who seemed to suffer more than anybody else, had his upper lip so badly split that his teeth were exposed. It is alleged that Bender subsequently went to the house occupied by Justice Green and while there discharged his revolver recklessly. One bullet was spent at Constable Peters' head and barely missed it. Several windows in the house of William Richards were shattered by stones during the riot.

Boy Shot. Isadore Levine, twelve-year-old son of Wolf Levine, the North Main street clothier, accidentally shot himself in the right hand on Saturday, inflicting a serious but not dangerous wound. Levine and some other boys went up on Locust mountain to shoot at mark with a 22-calibre pistol. While Levine was handling it the weapon was discharged. The bullet entered the fleshy part of the hand near the thumb and lodged at the back of the hand. Dr. D. J. Langton cut out the bullet.

The Columbia Parade.

The parade of the Columbia H. & S. F. E. Co., which took place Saturday afternoon was quite a success, although not as large as it would have been had the weather permitted it on Friday. Many of the merchants had prepared displays and closed their places of business for the time originally fixed and could not afford to repeat the preparations for Saturday. The line of parade was as follows:

- Chief Marshals. Police Force. Grant Band. Rescue H. & L. Co. Phoenix Hose Company. Columbia Hose Company. Fantastics on horseback. Independence float. Darktown Fire Brigade.

Floata of Ed. Brennan, A. Womer, Thomas Waters, Columbia Brewery, Edmund Harris, Chas. Hooks & Son, John T. Graf, J. P. Williams and Indian Ridge colliery.

The displays were very creditable and showed that the businessmen of the town are capable of getting up an excellent industrial parade when disposed to do so. Unfortunately for the company a hepatic ailment was not a financial success, although no actual loss was sustained. It was the first picnic held by the company during its existence of twenty-five years that failed to achieve financial success.

On Thursday the company will have its twenty-fifth annual outing and the members, their families and friends will spend the day at Lakeside. The Grant Band will accompany them.

The Girardville People Want Some of Our Water. The citizens of Girardville are now in full harness in a movement to secure a new supply of water. The water they are now getting from the reservoir north of Raven Run, which is their only source of supply, is unfit to drink or to be used in cooking and the Board of Health has condemned it. The water is said to be even worse than it was last summer.

A number of the leading citizens have co-operated with the Borough Council to apply for permission to make connection with the Shenandoah Public Water Works and a formal application will be made to the Borough Council in the near future. There is a fall of 221 feet between Shenandoah and Girardville and it is estimated a pipe line can be constructed for $9,000.

THE NEWS GLEANINGS.

Schuylkill Traction Company Passengers Have an Experience.

FATAL CASE OF SUNSTROKE.

Rattigan's Funeral Took Place at Girardville Today—Children's Day in the United Evangelical Church.

People who were passengers on the west-bound car of the Schuylkill Traction line that passed Cleary's crossing, at about ten o'clock last night, received a bad scare. The fright was not without cause, for the car rose in the air and threatened to topple over an embankment, and it was close to a trestle where a drop might have had fatal effect. The antics of the car were caused by a cow that attempted to cross the track.

When the accident occurred the car was running at a pretty lively speed and was not half a dozen feet from the trestle. It struck the cow with great force. The front end of the car rose high in the air, throwing the passengers towards the rear, and the rear wheels kept in motion, so that when the car descended the motor plumed the cow to the track by the apparatus under the middle of the car.

It required some work to get the car right again and when this was done it was found that the cow was dead, but had no marks upon it. The supposition is that the weight of the car in its descent crushed the life out of the animal. The passengers were pretty well shaken up, but none sustained injury. When they saw how close to the trestle the car was several seemed to become affected by fright more than at the time of the accident.

Dengler. O. S. Kehler, the superintendent of the Sunday school, conducted the service. A collection was taken for the benefit of the western missionaries.

The accused says the charge is only spite work.

Electric Bitters. Electric Bitters is a medicine suited for any season, but perhaps more generally needed in the spring, when the languid exhausted feeling prevails, when the liver is torpid and sluggish and the need of a tonic and alterative is felt. A prompt use of this medicine has often averted long and perhaps fatal bilious fevers. No medicine will act more surely in counteracting and freeing the system from the malarial poison.
