THREE ANNIVERSARIES.

Pleasing Entertainment in Beddall's Hall Last Night.

THE S. OF V. AND LADIES' AID

A Joint Celebration Held by the Organization With the G. A. R. and Families as Guests—Pocahontas Anniversary.

A joint anniversary celebration was held in Beddall's hall last night by Henry Horneastle Camp No. 49, Sons of Veterans, and the Ladies' Aid Society, which is an auxiliary organization to the former. The members of Watkin Waters Post No. 116, G. A. R., and the Women's Relief Corps were honored guests and were afforded a very pleasant evening. The Camp was thirteen years old on the 2nd inst. and the Ladies' Aid Society will be nine years old on the 23rd inst. The two organizations got together and decided to make one event of the two anniversaries and have a reunion of the local surviving war veterans and their families, and it was a very gratifying success.

A very interesting and pleasing program was arranged for the occasion. William Willman, a member of the Camp, officiated as master of ceremonies and acquitted himself of the duties in a very creditable manner. His opening address was followed by singing by the audience and a prayer by Rev. John Bath, after which there was a very pleasing duet by Misses Bella Brown and Edith Morgan. Miss Lottie Bowman gave an interesting recitation and Misses Martha Richards and Edith Morgan sang a duet, which followed by an exercise entitled "Planting the Tree of Liberty," in which nine children participated. This was followed by remarks from Rev. J. W. Meredith, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, and who is a veteran of the war. An intermission was then taken and refreshments served. They were well selected and abundant. The second part of the program was opened with a trio by Misses Richards and Morgan and John Price, Jr., after which the chairman issued a general invitation for remarks and a number of responses were made by the honored guests and members of the Camp and Ladies' Aid. The addresses were followed by a trio by Misses Martha Richards, Edith Morgan and Bella Brown. Miss Maggie Daddow gave a recitation and upon its conclusion Rev. Meredith offered prayer. The program was then closed with the singing of an old ode by the audience. The event was so successful it is probable that the Sons of Veterans and Ladies' Aid will celebrate their anniversary jointly in the future. Both organizations are in a prosperous condition. Chief of Police Tush was the first captain of the Camp and Mrs. John Daddow the first president of the Ladies' Aid Society.

D. OF E. ANNIVERSARY.
Junilda Council, No. 31, Daughters of Pocahontas, will celebrate its fifth anniversary tomorrow by having a day out at High Point park. The members of the Council will leave town in a body at 10 a. m. for the rendezvous and it is expected a large number of friends will seek the generous hospitality the squaws will dispense at the wigwags. A large delegation of the braves from Shenandoah Tribe No. 155, I. O. of B. M., will take trail and make the forest of High Point ring with war whoops.

Prices Speak Louder Than Words.
Our French balbriggan underwear is not all sold yet. In order to close out our summer stock to prepare for fall we will sell them at 85 cents a suit, and also a nice line at 50 cents a suit. And the only place to get a fashionable hat is at Max Levit's Up-to-date hat and gents' furnishing store, 15 East Centre street, Titman's new building. 7-10-31

THOUGHTS OF THE MOMENT.

As Paraphrased by the Pen and Pencil Men.

It is a mistake to suppose that there are no more days of grace in the payment of notes of hand. If you give a note payable on August 1 you will still have three days of grace. The law abolishing days of grace does not go into effect until January 1, 1896.

Everything has its compensation. People who growl about the numerous trolley and other overhead wires can pluck comfort from the reflection that they scatter the electrical resistance and minimize the dangers of lightning strokes. At any rate, that is what the electricians say, and they ought to know what they are talking about.

The chestnut trees are now in full and beautiful bloom. The magnificent blossoms, arrayed as they are in creamy white, contrasts splendidly with the dark green foliage of the other forest trees with which they are surrounded. If profusion of blossoms indicates a full crop of nuts, chestnuts will be very plentiful during the latter part of September.

We sometimes wonder if the window screen now on duty in almost every house isn't a source of enjoyment to the average house fly. If he laughs at all he must laugh at its effectiveness in keeping him indoors with care equal to that of the parental kind. Flies are like some people. This assertion may seem a trifle out of joint, but they are all the same. Some people are never content in the present, but as soon as it is past then that time's worth twice of this. "Tis so with the fly. When he is on the outside he wants to get in, and he won't be satisfied until that want has been gratified. Once in he wants to get out, and then's when the screen gets in its most effective work by holding him a prisoner until the good housewife raises the barrier and "shoo's" him out. Watch and see if this is not true as preaching.

Thinking over the recent school commencements—the sweet girl graduates and boys, too—of their essays, poems and other original productions, the thought comes that there has been less bowing at the shrines of Greece and Rome than has been the custom for many years. This is a change for the better. It means that the lines of thought are being directed in a more practical direction—more to the point on matters at home, and more in keeping with the teachings of those who are selected to fill the youthful store house with knowledge. Greece and Rome are all well enough in their way. Their history and traditions read well, but what we want here is more thought on what is likely to become the points of friction in our day and generation and in years to come—a solving of problems with which the dim past has nothing to do any more than has the old query as to who it was that struck Billy Patterson. This idea may not jingle with the views of some, but it is sort of American-like, and anything stamped "U. S." is legal tender.

Postponement Criticized.
The postponement of action on the public water works by the Borough Council has caused considerable criticism by citizens. Last night several were heard to remark it seemed strange that at the present critical stage of the project it is impossible to get more than a bare quorum of Councilmen to attend the meeting. Another meeting of Council to either accept or reject the plan has been called for this evening. The members should attend this meeting, even if compelled to make a personal sacrifice, and thus allay the fears which some citizens seem to harbor by reason of the postponements.

Columbia's Anniversary.
The Columbia H. & S. F. E. Co. celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary today by having an outing at Lakeside. It was a big event and one of the most successful of the kind in the company's history. The trip to Lakeside was made this morning on a P. & B. train and the firemen, their families and friends packed the eight cars to the platforms. About eight hundred people were on the train. The Grant Band was in the crowd. A number of people missed the train, but caught it at Mahanoy City by making a trip over the Lakeside road.

THE RIOT AT WM. PENN

Carried Into Court With a Vengeance.

UPWARDS OF TWENTY CASES

Mr. Bender Makes a Statement Concerning the Riot and Says He Fired no Shots. But Some Were Fired.

The law suits arising from the riot at Wm. Penn last Saturday night promise to monopolize the next term of court. There are now pending upwards of twenty law suits. Charges and countercharges have multiplied to such an extent that Justice Green, who has charge of the Wm. Penn end of the feud, and Justice Shoemaker, who has been issuing warrants to the participants who would not place their cases before the former justice, have been unable to keep track of them. Justice Green's docket shows nearly twenty cases and Justice Shoemaker's about ten more. The charges are of various degrees, ranging from simple assault to aggravated assault and battery and inciting to riot. The Justices and Constables will reap a harvest from the affair and the people who may be obliged to draw heavily upon their bank accounts. It is estimated that even at this early stage, the cases are so numerous, it would require about $200 to pay the costs. The litigations started out eight in number. Everybody sued turned around and entered countersuits and swore out an extra warrant for good measure. Had half a dozen people been killed in the riot the excitement that prevails over the affair at Wm. Penn could hardly have been greater. Should the cases go to trial the witnesses will form an army and operations at the Wm. Penn colliery may be thrown idle for want of hands. One officer who has been giving attention to the affair says that the witnesses to be subpoenaed will number close to seventy-five. And the litigations are still accumulating. Last night Louis Bender, the hotelkeeper, was again before Justice Shoemaker to answer a series of charges. He furnished $500 bail for his appearance at court.

Mr. Bender visited the HERALD office yesterday and stated that no shots were fired by him, or anyone else during the riot. He claims that William Taggart and others threw stones and he chased them away from his place. He also says that two pistol shots were fired from the Taggart house about two hours after the riot and that no shots were fired at Justice Green's office. Mr. Bender's version, of course, does not conform with that gleaned from other sources, and it will be pretty hard to tell which is the correct version until all parties have their say under oath before a jury. There are enough versions to fill a book and the affair will go down in the history of Wm. Penn as one of the most exciting events that have occurred in the place. It promises to establish a feud that will be heard from in the Justices' offices and courts in one shape or another for years to come.
