THE FINANCIAL DEBATE.

Another Day of the Great Harvey-Horr Controversy.

INCREASE OF PRECIOUS METALS.

Mr. Horr Declares That Gold Has Only Doubled in Quantity Since 1874, While Silver Has Increased Threefold—Mr. Harvey on Primary Money.

CHICAGO, July 24.—The contention of Messrs. Horr and Harvey over the silver question was resumed in the Illinois club house. The day's talk was opened by Mr. Harvey. He said that the debate of the last session was of value as showing that during the last forty years silver had been steadily coined, in spite of the assertion to the contrary; that by the table copied from the reports of the mint the commercial ratio between gold and silver had been maintained at about the French coinage ratio of 15 1/2 to 1 for 300 years; that during the twenty-two years since 1873 as a result of demonetization, the commercial ratio had declined to 32 to 1; that in the 88 years prior to 1873 the quantity ratio between gold and silver had ranged from fifty-six of silver to one of gold to four of silver to one of gold, and that during all that time the commercial ratio had clung closely to the legal ratio. During all that time the commercial price of silver bullion had remained steady. Since 1873 it had steadily and rapidly decreased. It was the dominating influence of London on exchange to all parts of the world which led to gold being recognized by the world as the standard in all commercial transactions.

Mr. Horr, in his opening remarks, proceeded to call attention to what he called misleading statements in Mr. Harvey's book. For instance, he declared to be untrue the statement that it was believed that the coinage of gold in the world was about $2,000,000,000. Mr. Harvey pointed out that there had been a vasty increased production at greatly reduced prices. At the close which Mr. Harvey spoke of the silver miners in three years would have lost over $100,000,000.

Again, Mr. Harvey had put the aggregate amount of silver in the world at about $2,000,000,000. It was estimated that there was about $1,000,000,000. Mr. Harvey had said that the debts of the United States amounted to $30,000,000,000. This was an absurdity, the statement of the amount of interest, which the United States paid annually to Europe was also untrue.

Mr. Horr said that the amount of silver referred to by him in his book was the amount available for coinage. He said this government had fixed the price of gold, and all the friends of silver wanted was for it to be the price of silver, in the belief that the nation could better keep out of the hands of the pawnbroker with two metals than one. Returning to his argument on the matter to pay in the cheaper metal, he said that the option of the debtor to pay in the cheaper metal was a parity.

He said that since 1874 the price of silver has been steadily on the rise, and that gold has, since 1873, increased; but while silver quantity three times would have only doubled in price.

Mr. Horr was called to the discussion by a measure of value. He said that all the money in the world was $18,000,000,000, and in the United States $4,000,000,000. He said that the money in circulation was $1,000,000,000, and that the money in the vaults was $3,000,000,000. He said that the money in the vaults was $3,000,000,000, and that the money in circulation was $1,000,000,000.

MAGICAL GROWTH OF PLANTS.

A French Scientist Says It Can Be Brought Out by Formic Acid.

A French scientist, M. Ragonneau, has just discovered how to make a plant grow from the seed in 80 minutes as much as it would under ordinary circumstances in as many days. Heretofore nature has shared this secret with the Yoghis of India alone, and the methods pursued by these clever magicians in performing this trick have been often described. They plant a seed in the earth and cover it with a cloth. In a few moments the cloth begins to be pushed upward by the growing plant, which, in a short time, attains the height of several feet. Various theories have been advanced as to the modus operandi of this miracle, one of the latest being that the spectators are all hypnotized by the magician.

During his travels in India M. Ragonneau saw this trick performed frequently and noticed that the Hindus always imbedded the seed in soil which they brought with them especially for that purpose. At last he learned that they obtained this earth from ant hills. Now, as every one knows who has inadvertently eaten one of these industrious insects, ants contain a large proportion of formic acid, with which in time the soil of their habitations becomes charged. This acid has the power of quickly dissolving the integument surrounding a seed and of greatly stimulating the growth of the germ within.

After a little experimenting with this acid the learned Frenchman was able to duplicate perfectly the Hindu trick. His further researches have led him to believe that this discovery may be profitably applied to agriculture. By infusing ants in boiling water acid as strong as vinegar can be obtained. M. Ragonneau has achieved the best results and most perfect growth by using earth moistened with a solution of 5,000 parts of water to one of acid.—New York World.

The Trouble With Women.

"The trouble with women," said Smith-crimps, "is that they want us to have fun their way. They want us to sit in the house and talk about the weather, sir; to discuss the eternal mysteries of dressmaking and cooking, sir, and to read novels, sir, and worship babies. They can't see why a man should want to go to a club or a public dinner, sir, or take in a baseball game or a horse race. They want us to do as they do and enjoy ourselves their way, sir. But did you ever hear of a man wanting a woman to have fun his way? No, sir, not much, sir! You never heard of any man's trying to persuade his wife to go round the corner, sir, to a nice quiet place, sir, where some very elegant gentlemen were engaged in a rubber at cards, sir, and to smoke cigars and drink beer with the party, sir, and sit up till the cock had made himself hoarse with crowing, sir, and then meander horse singing. Did you ever hear of any man's trying to persuade a woman to have fun that way—his way? No, sir, not by a jugful, sir!"—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Force of Habit.

They had fallen in love. Mimic scenes of affection which they had oft enacted they were now going through in earnest. "And now," she said, "we must part." "Farewell!" she murmured. "Farewell!" he replied. "And once again farewell!" "Farewell, farewell!" "Alas, we must be severed! Farewell!" "Farewell!" he sighed, and she responded as usual. They did not cease till the milkman came around in the gray dawn. It was a strange situation indeed, but one that could not be averted. He was an English actor, and she was a prima donna. Inadvertently they had commenced farewell and couldn't stop.—Washington Star.

Borrowed the Nuptial Fee.

Referring to ministers kissing brides, a city clergyman said: "The funniest part of a minister's experience in the matter of marrying people is perhaps with the fee. I married a couple from the country the other morning, and the groom gave me $2, but in the afternoon of the same day he came to me and asked for the loan of the money, as he had spent all he had and could not get home without it. I loaned it to him, and that was the last I saw of it!"—Philadelphia Call.

The Villain Queered.

Heroin (dearly) how much are you paid for thus relentlessly pursuing me!

Henry Villain (forgetting himself)—A penny $15 a week and expenses, ma'am.—Buffalo Courier.

THE RETIRED BURGLAR.

A Curious and Uncomfortable Experience With a Man Who Halted.

"Once," said the retired burglar, "I looked from the upper hall of a house that I was in into a room that was so dark that you literally couldn't see into it at all. It seemed as if they must have had the windows closed, the blinds shut and the shades all down. It was blacker'n a cave. I turned my light in around on the floor to get the lay of things and get 'em lit in my mind as so not to stumble over anything. Over by the bed I saw a chair and hanging down from it a pair of trousers' legs. Then, of course, I knew there was a man in the bed, and that it was his clothes that were stacked up on the chair there. I shut off my light and started. I knew the way, and I went very quietly, but when I got about half way across the room the man in the bed began to holler.

"How he could see me I couldn't understand. I couldn't see him at all, but I just halted and waited. He didn't holler very loud, though he was trying to hard, but he was so scared that I was surprised to hear him holler at all. It sounded as though it was all he could do to catch his breath. I was afraid he'd scare himself to death right on the spot. I didn't dare back out of the room for fear I'd meet somebody coming in. I thought I could dodge 'em better after they got in, so I just stood there in the middle of that dark room, with that man hollering the best he could and I wishing I was somewhere else and wondering what was going to turn up next.

"Well, sir, in about half a minute he stopped hollering altogether, and for a minute or two he did not breathe. Then I was scared, but in about a minute more he began to snore. You see? He wasn't scared at me. What he was scared at was a nightmare. He didn't know I was there at all. But it was a mighty uncomfortable position to be in all the same, because, of course, he was just as likely to wake up somebody hollerin in his sleep as he would ha' been if he'd been wide awake. He might ha' waked himself up, as far as that's concerned. But he didn't, nor anybody else apparently, and when he'd got to snoring again and everything seemed quiet, why, I just went ahead and collared his trousers!"—New York Sun.
