HOLMES AGAIN TALKING.

He Bidicules Marder Charges, Which Are Constantly Pilling Up.

Philadelphia, Aug. 2.—H. H. Holmes again unburdened himself to a newspaper man yesterday. He intimates that he was nearly in the act of killing Benjamin Pitezel on several occasions, but denies that he did kill him. He declares that Pat Quinlan has nothing to confess, and says he has positive evidence that his wife is drift of the times that is inexcusable. It leval to him. He says Minnie Williams should not be necessary to state that Quay is was his best friend. He claims that he is a rich man, with $200,000 to his credit. He declares that he can prove that he left the Pitezel children in safe hands, and that Benjamin Pitezel took his own life. He does not believe that the man Hatch, in whose care he left the Pitezel children, is in jail in Arkansas, or in any other prison. Holmes says he was married three times, but explains in a jocular way that only one of the marriages was legal. He says that the lady calling herself Mrs. Howard, and who is now in Philadelphia, still loves him, but that she is not his legal wife because he had a wife living when he married her under the name of Howard. Holmes ridicules the idea that he can be convicted of murder.

GREENSBURG, Ind., Aug. 2.-Facts have developed here which make the supposition very strong that Harry Walker, who mysteriously disappeared about two years ago, became another victim of H. H. Holmes. Walker, who was about 23 years old, was a jeweler. He became acquainted with Holmes, who offered him a position at $1,000 a year, which he accepted, and went to Chicago. Soon afterward he dis-appeared. It is now known that his life was insured for $15,000 in Holmes' favor. ANDERSON, Ind., Aug. 2 -Mrs. Phills Cigrand has returned from Chicago, and she and her mother say they do not believe Holmes' statement that Emiline Cigrand was married to him and then went into a convent in Minnesota. All agree in the belief that Emiline was murdered by Holmes, and that one of the skeletons found was her.

It declares in favor of the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people, for the restriction of immigration, for proportional representation of political parties in legislative bodies, against sectarianism in the schools, for a reassessment of the property of the state, in favor of Sabbath rest, against child labor, and for equal suffrage. His Assassination Was Singularly Like the Ending of Julius Cosar.

The 25th of March, 1801, was the day on which the Emperor Paul of Russia was as sassinated. Paul had received some whis pers of the plot against his life, and had arranged to leave St. Petersburg the following day and go to Moscow, where he far cied he might be safer. On the evening of the 25th he retired to rest at an early hour that he might thoroughly rest him self before commencing his journey. At 11 o'clock about a score of the conspirators -officers holding high rank in the army -appeared at the gate of the palace. It was closed, but the officers presented an order, signed by the emperor himself-or rather with a forged signature attachedand, informing the sentinel that they were called to hold a council of war with the were admitted.

The emperor's aid-de-camp was one of the foremost of the conspirators, and went in advance of the others to Paul's bedchamber, before the door of which was a Cossack soldier on guard. "The emperor sleeps," said the man. "I must rouse There is fire in the city," replied the treacherous aid. The Cossack, seeing others push forward, shouted out to alarm the emperor and immediately fell pierced by the swords of the conspirators. Paul attempted to bolt the door, but, being unable to do so, seized his sword and turned boldly on them. "What is your design?" he demanded of Count Plato Zouboff, "and what do these men want who are with you?" "We demand your abdicawith you?" "We demand your abdica-tion," replied Zouboff, who then read a formal deed, which had been previously

They Are Peculiar Fish-How They Differ In Different Waters.

The small boy who angles for killies with a bent pin for a hook may not know that there are in North America 11 genera of killies, including 53 species. The killie is most widely distributed. It is found in Canada and in all parts of the United States, and in Mexico and Central America, and in South America. The several kinds of killies found in this country range at full growth from 1 to 6 inches in length, and they also vary greatly in form and in appearance. There are some that are beautifully marked and some that are almost transparent.

Of the kind commonly known as the bass mummy, which is used as a bait for striped bass, the female killie is marked with stripes running lengthwise and the male with bands or vertical stripes. In the south the killie is called a mummichog. There is a munimichog whose brown sides are adorned with stripes of black made up of tiny round spots in line, each at the base of a scale. This killie has a high back fin, which is of a pearly tint and marked with blue spots. In Central America and in South America the killie attains a somewhat larger growth than in this country, and many of them there are as gayly colored as tropical birds.

Even the plainest killie takes on bright-er colors in the breeding season, as almost all fishes do. The killle is wonderfully prolific, and it will live in water warm enough, it would almost seem, to boil other fish. It is always on the go, an alert little fish, moving in schools, and sometimes in lines of per-fect front, like so many soldiers. There is a southern killie called the top swimmer, from its habit of swimming on top of the water with its head out.

And with all its beauty the killie is simply a scavenger. It eats superfluous and decayed vegetation and waste material of every sort, and there are so many of them that, small as they are, they consume im-mense quantities of refuse. The killie thus helps to preserve the healthfulness of the neighborhood in which it exists, and the very substances which it consumes, that might otherwise have proved deleterious to mankind, it converts indirectly into good food for man, for the killie is eaten by ed-Ible fish .- New York Sun.
