DEATH OF JUSTICE JACKSON

The Sufferings of the Distinguished Southern Jurist Ended.

HIS LAST OFFICIAL APPEARANCE

It was on the Occasion of the Final Hearing on the Income Tax Cases, When He Rendered an Opinion Sustaining the Legality of the Tax.

NASHVILLE, Aug. 9.—The Hon. Howell Edmunds Jackson, associate justice of the supreme court of the United States, died at his residence at West Mead, five miles west of this city, at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, in the 64th year of his age, of consumption.

Judge Jackson had been in failing health for the past four years, but it has been only in the past eight or ten days that the progress of the disease began to cause his family and friends uneasiness. Last year he went to the far west in search of health. Later he went to Thomasville, Ga., where it was hoped the mild and yet bracing climate would restore his one-time vigorous constitution. The trip did him little good, and after a time he was brought home. At his old home Judge Jackson seemed to improve slightly until he went to Washington to sit in the second hearing of the income tax cases. He stood that trying trip only fairly well, and after his return home appeared to lose strength rapidly. Nevertheless Judge Jackson never took to his bed until Wednesday of last week. Since that time his family and friends realized that the end was near and his death was not unexpected.

When Justice Jackson was so seriously ill last spring that he was not expected to recover the name of his successor was considerably speculated in. The idea was suggested by some that the president would again name Messrs. Peckham or Hornblower, of New York, while the selection of a man from the west fell to Don Dickinson. Postmaster General Wilson was strongly spoken of as among the possibilities, while the majority of opinion was that Secretary Carlisle could have the place if he wanted it. Mr. Carlisle would be especially eligible, as he would be appointed from the same district that the death of Justice Jackson has made vacant.

The last time Judge Jackson was in Washington was on the occasion of the rehearing in the income tax cases last May. He had been absent from the city and from the bench since the preceding fall, when, soon after the convening of the October term of court, he had been compelled to come south on account of his rapidly declining health. During his absence there had been contradictory reports as to his physical condition, but the prevailing opinion among his colleagues on the bench was that he would never again be able to resume his seat.

Mr. Jackson had the reputation in Washington, and especially about the supreme court, of being very sensitive concerning any discussion of his health in the public press, and he referred to the subject very sparingly in his own conversation. The other members of the court were, therefore, poorly advised as to his condition. This state of affairs is said to have been the reason for the equivocal character of the announcement of the decision to grant a rehearing in the income tax cases, which of necessity depended upon Jackson's presence.

He was in Washington on the occasion of the rehearing for several days, and gave his attention assiduously to the income tax cases. He sat through the argument, which continued for three days, took part in the consultation of the court, and when the day arrived for the announcement of the decision not only listened patiently to the opinions of most of the other members of the court, but delivered a vigorous opinion of his own in support of the validity of the law. This occurred on May 30, and was his last public appearance. He returned to his home in Tennessee late in May.

When Judge Jackson was in Washington on this occasion it was evident to all who came in contact with him that life was slowly but surely ebbing away, and that the effort he made was at the expense of his vitality.

As senator and justice of the supreme court Mr. Jackson had resided in Washington about eight years. His associates here were confined to his colleagues on the bench and in the senate chamber. By them he was universally esteemed as a man of high moral worth and rich intellectual attainments, as was evinced in nothing so much as in his appointment to the supreme bench by President Harrison and his confirmation by a Republican senate, notwithstanding he was a Democrat.

Howell Edmunds Jackson was born in Paris, Tenn., April 8, 1832. Justice Jackson was a classical scholar, graduating from the West Tennessee college in 1848. He studied law two years at the University and in Jackson, under his kinsmen, Judges A. W. O. Totten and Milton Brown; graduated from the Lebanon Law school in 1856, in which year he located in Jackson and engaged in the practice of his profession; removed to Memphis in 1859, where he continued the practice of law; served on the supreme bench by appointment on two occasions, and was once a prominent candidate for supreme judge before the nominating convention. He relocated in Jackson in 1870; was elected to the state house of representatives in 1880, on the state credit platform; was elected to the United States senate as a Democrat in 1881, and served in that capacity till April 12, 1889. He was appointed United States circuit judge by President Cleveland, and nominated for associate justice of the supreme court by President Harrison, being confirmed by the senate Feb. 18, 1893, and entering upon the duties of the office March 4, 1893.

The employees of the Shenandoah Manufacturing Company, to the number of eighty-six, to-day spent a very pleasant afternoon at Fowler's grove. This is an annual custom with the above company, and it is greatly appreciated by their employees, who look forward to the event with feelings of much pleasure. Babies made happy with Luke's Syrup.

TO-MORROW'S CONVENTIONS

District Conventions Will Name Delegates to the State Convention.

FAVORABLE TO QUAY AND HASTINGS

Schuylkill County Republicans are Against the Philadelphia and Pittsburg Combine—The Outlook Summarized Day Before the Battle.

To-morrow morning, at 10 o'clock, the delegates whose duty it is will meet in their respective districts and choose delegates to the state convention. The latter body meets at Harrisburg on the 28th inst. In only one of the four districts of the county has there been anything like a serious contest, and that one has never been in doubt so far as it affects Senator Quay's interests.

FIRST DISTRICT.
In the First district the contest has been between Horace E. Deugler, of town, and H. J. Ball, of Mahanoy City, and Charles O. Smith, of the same place—two delegates to be chosen. The contest has been a spirited one. Notwithstanding the personal popularity of Mr. Smith, he has been hand-cuffed by some of his supporters to such an extent that his chances were never very bright, and it was announced this morning that in the interest of harmony he has concluded to withdraw from the contest.

SECOND DISTRICT.
In the Second district Hon. D. D. Phillips will have very little opposition and will be elected without any trouble, the opposing candidate, John H. Rowe, of Ashland, having been brought out in opposition to Mr. Phillips on personal grounds only. The latter was in the field before the Quay-Gilkeson contest and was induced to run for reasons relating only to county politics.

THIRD DISTRICT.

In the Third district it is rather hard to keep track of the contest as the candidates have been changing rather frequently, and at this writing it is somewhat difficult to say who they all are. Francis C. Job appears to have the inside track, while the opposition have divided their forces and are supporting J. D. Kershner, of Tuscarora; Albert Ellis, of Ryan; C. W. Clayberger, of East Union, and Charles S. Shindel, of Tamaqua. It is probable that by the time the convention meets they will unite on either Ellis or Shindel.

FOURTH DISTRICT.

The Fourth district is the field upon which the fight has been made and it has been a hot one. The Quay candidates are C. H. Haessler, Pottsville; Benben Barto, Pinegrove, and Dr. Chas. E. Quail, Auburn; while Samuel A. Losh, Schuylkill Haven; W. J. Whitehouse, Pottsville, and Joseph Millington, Tremont, favor Gilkeson. With two old hands in political affairs like Losh and Whitehouse, a good fight was to be expected, and they have fought hard. The sentiment of the district, however, does not favor the Combine, and it looks as if the Gilkeson followers will be completely snowed under. The followers of Senator Quay are on the alert for any "last card" tricks that may be played by the wily statesman from Schuylkill Haven, and are prepared to see that the sentiment of the district is properly represented at the state convention. Of the three Gilkeson candidates in this district, Whitehouse probably will have the largest vote in the convention.

In the First, Second and Third districts all the candidates are outspoken Quay men, and they also favor Governor Hastings for president of the state convention. There is no opposition in this county to His Excellency, and those who are trying to make it appear otherwise are doing so for their personal gain. There is, however, great opposition to the Martin-Porter-McGee-Gilkeson combine, and to-morrow's conventions will show it.

Schuylkill county will send seven delegates to the state convention favorable to Senator Quay for chairman of the state committee and Governor Hastings as president of the state convention.

For any of those unexpected emergencies common to children in the summer, Dr. Fowler's Cure of Wild Strawberry is an unfailing cure. It is nature's specific for summer complaint in all its forms.

Will Go to Scranton.

G. A. Wilde, who is now connected with A. H. Swalm's store, and V. A. Beemer, manager of the Wm. Penn store, will move to Scranton in the near future and engage jointly in a grocery and provision business. They rented residences at Dunmore, a suburb of Scranton, last Tuesday.

If your dealer tells you that something else is "just as good" as Doan's Ointment for hives, pin worms, itching piles, or other itchininess of the skin, tell him you want the original. It is safe; never-failing.

Transferred Again.

The Pottsville club, which has had its share of troubles since becoming a member of the state league, has again been transferred. This time it goes to Reading, having previously been transferred from Pottsville to Allentown. It is a difficult matter to say where it will be playing to-morrow.

Will Be Sold Cheap.

A Webster piano, only been in use one month, will be sold cheap. Must be disposed of within ten days. This is a bargain.

FISHERMAN'S LUCK.

In fishing around the market we found a couple barrels of extra fine Norway mackerel cheap. Very fat and white. Not large. Weigh about 3-4 of a pound. 14 cents a pound. We have the big ones, too; weigh 1 1/2 to 1 3/4 pounds, for little more money. These are the finest fish caught, and we can not always buy the small ones.
