THE WHOLE NATION CELEBRATES

The Emperor Reviews Thirty Thousand Troops at Tempelhof Field, Where the German-American Veterans Are Given the Right of Line.

BERLIN, Sept. 3.—The celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the fall of Sedan was continued yesterday. The sun shone brightly and the weather was perfect. Immense crowds of sightseers thronged the streets. At 8 o'clock in the morning Emperor William reviewed the First regiment of the guards before the Schloss, and at the conclusion of the review personally decorated the standards of the troops with oak leaves. A half hour later his majesty started for the parade ground to hold a review of the veterans of the Franco-Prussian war who had come from the United States to take part in celebrating the German victory.

The parade of troops and veterans on the Tempelhof field was attended with untold splendor. The American veterans were given the place of honor in the right wing, near the Steuerrhaus.

Emperor William and the King of Wurtemberg rode down the first line of infantry, two miles long, and back along the second line, which was formed of cavalry, artillery, and the commissariat, the entire force on review numbering 30,000 men. The emperor then took his position at the head of the parade and led his own regiment, the First Life Guards, past the emperor. When the Potsdam Red Hussars came up the King of Wurtemberg galloped to the front and, placing himself at their head, led them past the emperor on a trot. The king afterwards rode to the position of the American veterans and wished them much enjoyment and prosperity in their new country.

By far the most interesting feature of the parade was the return of the emperor from the Tempelhof field with the colors. The entire route to the palace was lined with people, and every window was occupied, and requisitions were even made on the roofs of the houses. It was a veritable triumphal progress for the representative of the empire and of German unity, and the popular enthusiasm was remarkable for its spontaneity. The 30,000 children lining the route sang the national hymn as the emperor passed.

The day brought vividly before one's mind how many knights of the Iron Cross and possessors of war medals are still alive among the population of Berlin. It was with a just pride that, with the orders conspicuous on their breasts, they mingled with the crowd commemorating the deeds which they shared.

The chief basis of the decorations is the German and Prussian colors, which in every form and size are draped in every conceivable manner, and nearly cover the fronts of the houses at the centre of the capital.

Though many shops were open, and the population scarcely made a complete holiday, enough patriotic sentiment has been manifested to compel the conviction that, if occasion required, the nation would hold firmly together to defend what they won in 1870. It is impossible to believe that thousands made a holiday from a mere spirit of idleness and curiosity, without desiring to give their actions a deeper meaning.

The illuminations last night, on the whole, were more general than the decorations, for those unable to buy flags could afford the luxury of a few candles in the windows to show their good will. It is said that the demand was so great that no candles are to be had in Berlin, and judging from the floods of light the statement is creditable. The emperor drove through the streets at night to see the illuminations and was heartily received.

From all quarters of the empire telegrams announce that the day was joyously celebrated. At Hamburg the socialists attempted to disturb the festivities by circulating pamphlets denouncing the national festival, but apparently without effect.

A DANGEROUS ACT.

Two Cars Started on the P. & R. Railroad Last Night.

Last evening two gondolas standing on the siding of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad at the lime kiln south of the Pennsylvania R. R. depot were started by an unknown person and they made a journey of several miles before they were stopped, but fortunately there were no serious results. The gondolas were started about ten minutes after the 6:45 passenger train passed the point on the way to the local station. One of the gondolas was loaded with lime stone. The other was empty. They ran off the siding to the main line, passing over a tongue switch, and attained a lively speed on account of the heavy grade the railway has to Wm. Penn. The cars ran as far as Lost Creek before an attempt was made to stop them. At that place a young man named Michael Murphy saw them approach and, seeing nobody in charge, and no engine in sight, correctly surmised that they were runaways. At the risk of his life, as the gondolas were running fast, Murphy scrambled on one of them and, after some difficulty, succeeded in applying the brakes and stopping the cars. Fortunately the occurrence took place when there was no traffic over the branch.

A Cool Month Predicted.

Foster, the weather prophet, says September temperature in the great Central valleys will average decidedly below the normal. Draw a line from St. Louis to Dubuque, then by way of Chicago and Toledo to New York, then to Atlanta, and back to St. Louis, and the country enclosed by that irregular circle will average very cold in September.

BEFORE THE BAR OF JUSTICE

Large Attendance at the Opening of the Pottsville Court.

A POLICE RAID DISPOSED OF!

Judge Bechtel Imposes Heavy Penalties Upon the Women Caught in the Raid and the Keeper of the Place. Other Cases.

While yesterday was the opening day of the Pottsville court and attracted many people from this town, to-day was the red-letter day for the attendance of Shenandoahites. A stranger seeing the crowds assembled at the depots this morning at nine o'clock awaiting the arrival of the train bound for Pottsville would have imagined that there was a great excursion on foot. An idea of the rush to the county seat may be gleaned from the fact that the Lehigh Valley and Pennsylvania station agents sold over one hundred tickets each for that train, and there were in addition a large number of people who traveled on mileage books and commutation tickets.

At the present term of court Shenandoah will have more cases on the calendar than for several terms. At least seventy-five have accumulated within the past two weeks and arise out of the raids made by Chief of Police Tosh and his force.

Contrary to expectations the costs in the cases will not amount to as much as they have under like circumstances at previous terms, as the court officials have announced that justices who return two, three and even more cases involving the same litigants in each will only be credited with one case. This means a big loss to the magistrates. Some of the justices, when two or more persons are before them on the same charge, make a separate case for each.

Among the first cases to be disposed of yesterday were those arising from the raids by Constable Gihlon and Chief of Police Tosh and his force upon the house owned by Mrs. Yodkols, at the southwest corner of Centre and Bowers streets. At this raid four women were taken into custody, also Richard Sueddon. All but Emma Haise were sent down to jail to await trial and have been confined there since their commitment. The Haise woman gave bail and will be given a separate trial. Yesterday Ida Crowley, Grace Johnson and Blanche Clark were arraigned before Judge Bechtel on charges of fornication made by the police and they pleaded guilty. Each of the women were sentenced to pay a fine of $100 and costs and serve 90 days. Sueddon was next called to the bar and he pleaded guilty to the charge of keeping a lewdly house. The court imposed a fine of $15 and costs and a six months' term of imprisonment.

The result of this case is to some extent a vindication of the police force, as at the time the raid was made many people predicted that the case would fall through in court, for the reason that the parties arrested would make a fight and the police would find it very difficult to prove charges of the character that were made. The conviction of the offenders will also work to the advantage of the police in the cases that have been brought against them by Mrs. Yodkols, the owner of the premises, charging them with making forcible and unlawful entry.

THE CIVIL COURT.

A number of civil cases in which Shenandoah people were interested also, came up yesterday. Among them were several liquor license matters and the following transfers were made: William Greener to John Mattis; William Chimelewski to Peter A. Pascavage; Martin Boetzer to August Custowski; William Kendrick to Charles Radziewicz. All the saloons affected by these transfers are located in the First ward. The transfer to Mr. Radziewicz consummates the purchase by that gentleman of the property located at the northwest corner of Centre street and Plum alley from William Kendrick, who has moved to Denver, Colorado.

In the motion court an application was made in behalf of J. J. Dougherty to have him discharged under the insolvent law. Dougherty is held on a complaint of non-support by his wife and the application is being contested. The defendant was a prominent cafe proprietor in this town some time ago, but of late has been a resident of Philadelphia. His wife is a sister of ex-Congressman Gaffigan.

Daniel Hesser, a young man of town who is serving three months in the county jail on a charge of betrayal made by Mary Daily, also made an application to the court yesterday for his discharge under the insolvent laws.

The viewers appointed by the court have reported in favor of vacating a road leading from Shepton to Huleo township and recommend the opening of a new road.

The court has been asked to appoint viewers to lay out a new county bridge over the Mahanoy Creek, near Park Place.

Viewers have been appointed to locate a public road running between Mahanoy City and Delano, which has become unsafe by reason of it being undermined.

In a Critical Condition.

James Lench, step-father of Chief of Police Tosh, is in a critical condition and little hope is entertained for his recovery. He is suffering from the effects of injuries sustained by a fall at the Shenandoah City colliery breaker seven months ago, while the new structure was in course of erection. His ribs were injured by the fall.

Eye Injured.

George Auspach, a resident of West Coal street and employed as engineer at Packer No. 3 colliery, had one of his eyes injured by a piece of rusty iron flying into it from a boiler he was clipping. The injury was a painful but not very serious one. Dr. J. Pierce Roberts extracted the piece.

FISHERMAN'S LUCK.

In fishing around the market we found a couple barrels of extra fine Norway mackerel cheap. Very fat and white. Not large. Weigh about 3-4 of a pound. 14 cents a pound. We have the big ones, too; weigh 1¼ to 1½ pounds, for little more money. These are the finest fish caught, and we can not always buy the small ones.
