THE BATTLEFIELD PARK!

Chattanooga is Preparing For Its Great Dedication.

MANY PROMINENTS WILL ASSIST

The Executive Department of the Government, Members of the Supreme Court, the Governors of all States and the Veterans are to be Represented.

CHATTANOOGA, Sept. 16.—Under the guiding hand of the secretary of war, acting through the authority of the congress, Chattanooga and the notable battlefields surrounding it have been prepared for a national event without parallel. Great throngs of veterans who fought against each other are crowding into the city to take part in the dedications, beginning on Wednesday, of fields made memorable as a national military park.

As provided in the act of congress Secretary Lamont has invited the attendance of the executive department of the government, members of the supreme court, the lieutenant general of the army and the admiral of the navy, the governors of all the states with their staffs, and the veterans of the contending armies. All are to be prominently represented.

A joint committee of twenty senators and thirty members of the house will be present. Members of twenty-six state commissions who have been at work with the national commission in locating lines of battle of the troops of their respective states will attend. The Society of the Army of the Cumberland, of the Army of the Tennessee, the Grand Army of the Republic and the Association of Confederate Veterans will be present in large numbers. This official concourse is to be increased by a gathering of an army of visitors already known to be so great that it will tax the capacity of the railroads centering here to their utmost capacity.

Lieutenant General Schofield has cordially contributed every substance which could be given from the headquarters of the army and the movements of regular troops from Fort Sheridan, Ford Riley, Fort Thomas, Columbus barracks and Pensacola has presented an instance of rapid concentration of special interest.

The park which is to be dedicated is of unusual dimensions. It extends, with its approaches, from Sherman Heights, in Tennessee, six miles north of Chattanooga, to Glass Mill, in Georgia, a distance of twenty-two miles. The broad boulevard between these two points is in full view to the government as part of the park, and full jurisdiction of the fifteen square miles of the Chickamauga field and over many miles besides of other approaches has been ceded to the government by the states of Tennessee and Georgia.

The central drive runs for eight miles along Bragg's line of battle in the crest of Missionary Ridge. It passes along the fronts of Sherman's army, Thomas' Army of the Cumberland and army under Hooker. It overlooks all the battlefields about Chattanooga, including Lookout mountain, and runs for twelve miles through the center of the fighting ground of the three days' battle of Chickamauga. Of the territory over which jurisdiction has been ceded to the United States for park purposes ten square miles have been already purchased in a single block in the Chickamauga field.

The entire crest about Bragg's headquarters on Missionary Ridge, Orchard Knob, headquarters of Grant, Thomas and Granger during the battle of Chattanooga, a tract eight acres in extent, fifty acres at the right end of the Missionary Ridge being the ground assaulted by General Sherman and defended by Cleburn, and a tract of five acres on another portion of the ridge marking the left of the assault of the Army of the Cumberland from portions of the park, congress has also added an addition to the part of Hooker's, Waltham's battle ground on Lookout mountain. The park and its approaches, therefore, embrace or overlook the fields of five days general battle between the great armies and three days of minor engagements.

The plan of the park is to restore the fields as nearly as possible to their condition at the time of the battle, to close all the roads and reopen and improve those used in the battles and over which the armies moved to and from the fields. The times of battle have all been ascertained and a vast amount of work toward permanently making them has been done.

This is accomplished by historical and guide tablets which point the way to and explain the movements upon every portion of the line. These tablets show the organization of armies, divisions and brigades, with the names of their respective commanders and their staffs on the field and the commanders of all regiments and batteries. Full historical text on each tablet sets forth the details of movement at each point. There is no distinction in the preparation of these tablets between Union and Confederate force nor in any department of the work of establishing the park is there any difference.

Besides the historical tablets which are prepared by the government the states are erecting monuments to mark the position of their troops. Already nearly half a million dollars have been appropriated by states which had troops here, and all the states but two of the twenty-nine who are represented in the battle have commissioners at work marking their positions for the monument.

Over 400 guns of the batteries used on these fields have been obtained from the arsenals, and 160 have already been mounted upon iron gun carriages, which are of the pattern of the carriages used at the time, and are set up and mark the position of each side in the battle. Eventually the whole 600 guns will be in position. Steel observation towers raised above the forest at various commanding positions afford views of the entire battle ground.

The official dedication, under the auspices of congress and the secretary of war, will occupy the 19th and 20th inst., but will be one of a general character and will occupy the whole day of the 18th and the evenings of the 19th and 20th. The dedications of the state monuments will occur mostly on the 18th.

SHOT IN A STREET BRAWL.

"Sim" McHale, the Pugilist, Receives a Painful Wound.

HE WAS AN UNOFFENDING PARTY!

Hurried to the Scene of a Disturbance and Received the Shot From One of the Combatants—The Wound Painful, But Not Dangerous.

James, alias "Sim" McHale, the pugilist, carries a painful wound in his nose, which he received from a pistol shot during a brawl on West Coal street shortly after 12 o'clock Saturday night. McHale may consider himself lucky that he is not at this writing a subject for a wake. Had the course of the bullet been an inch, or a little more, higher it would have entered his brain. The bullet struck him midway between the forehead and the tip of the nose, on the right side, and passed upward, lodging under the skin in the corner of the right eye. McHale accompanied Robert Gibson to the home of the latter's parents, on North White street, and remained there until 6:30 yesterday morning, when he and Gibson hired a carriage and drove to the Miners' Hospital, where Dr. J. C. Biddle probed for and removed the bullet, which was of 22 calibre. McHale then returned to town.

Last evening Policemen Leo and Walatis arrested two Lithuanians residing in the First ward and arraigned them before Justice Williams. One of them, Paul Meloshko, was charged with having shot McHale and the other, Gus Verbovich, was charged with being an accessory. Another man, named Charles Kouker, is wanted for complicity in the affair.

Upon a hearing of the case McHale swore that he was on his way home with Henry Ringheiser, Robert Gibson and William Auspach when they heard the noise of a fight on Coal street. One of the group suggested that they go and see what was going on and they did so. When they turned the corner of Coal and Chestnut streets they saw that a fight was in progress on the former street, in front of John L. Hassler's residence. They walked up to the scene, Ringheiser, Gibson and Auspach being slightly ahead of McHale. When McHale was about 30 feet from the place where the fighting was going on and from Meloshko the latter pointed a revolver directly at McHale and fired with the result already stated. McHale swore that he had nothing to do with the fight and had no trouble with any of the men engaged in it. He could not identify Verbovich.

Henry Ringheiser and Robert Gibson corroborated McHale's story. Gibson said three English men and the three Lithuanians were fighting when McHale and his friends reached the place. He heard one of the English men say "You pulled a gun" and the six men started to fight. The crowd scattered a little and he saw the flash of the revolver. Meloshko fired the shot and Verbovich was with him. Kouker was also there.

After hearing the evidence Justice Williams put Meloshko under $500 bail and Verbovich under $300 bail.

Subsequently Meloshko told his version of the affair through Martin Fedrowski, who acted as interpreter. He stated that while on his way home at about twelve o'clock Saturday night three young men, who have been identified as William Evans, John Curry and Joseph Gorman, stopped him in front of the Hassler residence and Evans asked for a match. Meloshko replied that he had none, and made the same reply when asked for a chew of tobacco. Evans, it is charged, then shoved Meloshko off the sidewalk, saying, "Get out of the way you Hungarian." Meloshko then pushed Evans and at the same time one of the latter's companions struck Meloshko on the leg with a large stone, causing him to fall, and another of Evans' companions jumped upon the prostrate man and tried to bump his against the ground. Meloshko finally regained his feet and claims that McHale and his party ran up and took a hand in the fight. Meloshko says he had no revolver and that McHale must have been shot accidentally by one of his friends, or one of the Evans crowd.

Justice Williams has issued a warrant for Evans' arrest and there will be a hearing this evening, at six o'clock. A heap of stones and dirt on the porch of Mr. Hassler's residence on Coal street yesterday morning showed that while the battle before the shooting lasted it was a hot one. The Lithuanians interested in the case are of very respectable appearance and evidently not of the class that so frequently figure in disturbances.
