ARMY OF THE CUMBERLAND

Senator Manderson, of Nebraska, Delivers His Annual Address at the Reunion of the Society, Which is Held Beneath a Big Circus Tent.

CHATTANOOGA, Sept. 19.—If one may judge of the events of the last ten days of the Mason and Dixon line has been wiped off the map. The friendly, brotherly feeling that has been displayed here this week, and that was shown at Louisville last week by the boys of the Gray towards the boys of the Blue, the bitter sectionalism that has so long divided the Union no longer exists.

For nearly a fortnight now, the doors of the south have been open for those who came here thirty-three years ago bearing arms of slaughter and destruction. Not a single incident that would indicate a feeling of hatred on either side has been recorded. "Yankees" and "Johnny Rebs," grown gray with years, have gone over the great battlefield together, discussed the events of those awful days, drank together, and even in some instances slept together without stirring up anything like an angry thought. Generals who commanded armies for the Union have been the guests of the generals of the Confederacy, and each has solemnly declared that there is "no north and no south."

Chattanooga is an enterprising town with 40,000 inhabitants. Both the town and the people have every look of prosperity. The people have done as much for the entertainment of their northern visitors as any one could wish. At early dawn the town and surrounding country awoke. In less than two hours there was a general exodus from town to the battlefield. There were bands of music followed by regiments of militia. There were thousands upon thousands of battle-scarred veterans, and there were thousands upon thousands of men, women and children, who personally never knew what war was. There were carriages, wagons and vehicles of every description in which the people rode.

The cars, electric and steam, were loaded to the guard rail. Many of the vast throng looked over the field of Chickamauga, sadly remembering the awful scenes in carnage and death they had witnessed there thirty-three years ago, but all felt a thrill of joy to know that old wounds had healed and the hatred was no more. Such were the conditions that prevailed yesterday at the preliminary exercises attendant upon the dedication of the historic battlefield and the National park, which will occur today.

It is doubtful if P. T. Barnum in his palmiest days ever saw such a crowd at his circus as assembled beneath one of his old three ring tents in this city last night. The occasion for this great gathering was the reunion of the Society of the Army of the Cumberland. A large number of veterans belonging to the Society of the Army of the Tennessee, who came here from Cincinnati, were present as guests. The veteran, General J. D. Morgan, of Quincy, Ill., vice president of the society and who is now past 80 years of age, presided in the absence of General Rosecrans, the president.

When the meeting had been called to order General Morgan introduced Mayor Debs, who made the address of welcome. Response was made by General H. V. Boynton, secretary of the association. Following General Boynton, Governor Morgan made an address of welcome to the Confederate veterans, after which Senator Charles Manderson, of Nebraska, delivered the annual address to the society.

Robbed Again.

WHAT THE SCHOOLS USE.

Immense Quantities of Paper, Ink, Pens, Pencils, Etc., Consumed Annually. Few people have an idea of the immense quantities of material that is consumed annually in the public schools of this borough and a few items by Secretary Treason, of the School Board, will be doubt be interesting to many. They are based on the consumption during the 1914-5 term.

During the period stated, there were used in the classrooms four tons of writing paper, including tablets. The sheets consumed, if placed end to end, lengthwise, would stretch 244 miles, or from Shenandoah to Pittsburg, by air line route. The pencil tablets alone numbered 3,421 and would more than fill a room 25 feet long, 24 feet wide and 12 feet high. There were also consumed 11,314 lead pencils, 37 gallons of ink, 1,940 penholders, 22,724 pens, 25,899 state pencils and 19,099 sticks of white erasers. These figures give an excellent idea of the great direct saving of expense to the people through the agency of the free text book law.

McHale Improved.

James McHale seems to be making good recovery from the pistol shot wound he received in a brawl on West Coal street Saturday night. He made a trip to the Miners' hospital yesterday and after receiving attendance from Dr. Biddle returned to town. The friends of Paul Meslesko, who is charged with the shooting, will use the trip as one of the grounds for an application to have the accused man released from the Portsville jail. Meslesko was out on bail, but upon a statement by Dr. Stein last Tuesday that McHale's condition was precarious Justice Williams annulled the bail and committed Meslesko. The case against William Evans was not heard last night as expected, on account of the prosecutor, Meslesko, being in jail on McHale's charge, but it will be pushed as soon as a release can be procured.

NEAT TRICK DISCOVERED!

Inside Fireman D. R. James Thwarts a Swindling Scheme.

HOW OROFSKY GOT HIS POWDER.

Secured Employment and Credit For the Explosive at a New Place and After Firing One Hole Quits With the Supplies as Profit.

The old saying that "there are tricks for all trades" is as applicable to mining operations as to other industries, and probably more so in many respects.

Cornellman D. R. James, who is inside foreman at the Cambridge colliery, has unrolled a neat trick. Yesterday morning one Anthony Orofski was given work at the mine and after receiving a bag of powder and five rolls of blasting paper he started work in a burst. He shaped long enough to fire one insignificant hole and then left the place, taking the powder with him.

When James heard the man had disappeared he commenced to figure on the situation and concluded that, as the powder and paper had been sold on credit and Orofski had earned no money and taken the powder away, the colliery was out the value of the explosive. He went before Justice Williams and caused a warrant to be sworn out for Orofski's arrest and C. L. Policeman Daniel Bolen executed it in short order. Orofski, at first denied that he had taken the powder, but craved in after some argument and paid seven dollars to cover the costs of powder and suit, whereupon he was discharged.

From the accused man's statements it became evident that the trick is being worked quite extensively and when successful a couple of dollars can be earned very easy.

For instance a man goes to a colliery and, as Orofski did yesterday, secures employment with credit for powder. After firing a small hole he can leave the place without arousing suspicion, by simply saying that he does not like the brand, can't make money in it, or something to that effect. If he succeeds in getting away with the powder, which has hardly been touched, he carries it home and either sells it to a friend, or starts work at another colliery with powder that costs him nothing. Orofski admitted that he had secured work at another colliery and intended starting there to-morrow with the bag of powder he got from the Cambridge colliery.

A mine official stated to-day that the disclosures in the Orofski case furnish a clue to the mystifying shortages that are frequently found in the supply accounts at the collieries. There are times when powder and other materials disappear and in addition, or other process of figuring, an account for them, although everything appears perfectly legitimate so far as the checks are concerned, and there is no doubt that any man who takes work at a colliery and leaves it under the same circumstances as Orofski did will be watched carefully to see that he does not walk home with a bag of powder, or some other kind of supplies, up his sleeve.

The official quoted said it is almost impossible to keep abreast with the tricks concocted by some miners of the foreign class to which Orofski belongs in order to get the companies out of supplies and mine credit for work that is not performed. It is owing to the dirty work of these people that the companies are obliged to enforce rules that sometimes work hardships on the honest workmen.

PITHY POINTS.

Happenings Throughout the Region Chronicled for Hasty Perusal.

Rev. K. Pickenshill, formerly of town, has been visiting friends in Minersville.

Minersville is experiencing quite a boom and although there is considerable building being done houses are reported scarce.

His many friends will be pleased to know that Dr. T. J. Birch, of Port Carbon, is now able to get out and that he went to Scranton on a visit to-day.

It is reported that Alvin Markle, of Hazleton, expended $18,000 on his base ball club the past year. While base ball comes high some people must have it at any price.

The local political pot is shimmering slightly on the Democratic side of the house, but it is not likely there will be much of a contest a the primaries to be held on Saturday next.

Between the Brucous and Spring heirs of Berks, the Jemesshears of Philadelphia, d Bucks, and Schuylkill's Antrim heirs, the claim lawyers will have lots of fun with rainbow chasers.

J. C. Madinley, who was convicted and sentenced to 15 days imprisonment for forgery on oath of H. J. Hall, of Mahanoy City was arrested by a constable from Slatington yesterday on his release on jail.

An Engine Breaks Down.

The engine that started from town last night at 9:13 with the Lehigh Valley train bound for Shamokin broke down enroute and at Locust Gap Junction, west of M. Carmel, an exchange of engines was made, the disabled one bringing the train bound from Shamokin here, by running tank foremost, and the engine that came from Shamokin returning to that point with the train that left here at 9:13. The exchange caused some delay to traffic. The engine disabled was crippled by the breaking of a part of the mechanism connected with the driving wheels and, while it could not proceed further back foremost without running risk of additional breaking down, it made the trip backwards very successfully.
