JUMPED TO HIS DEATH.

Foolhardy Act of Patrick King Callahan, Bridge Jumper.

A PLUNGE OF TWO HUNDRED FEET.

Suffered a Laceration Which Was Sealed Up by Surgeons, and Lingered in Terrible Agony for Several Hours—Thirty People Witnessed the Feat.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Oct. 28.—Patrick King Callahan, 35 years old, who lived in New York, jumped from the top of the Poughkeepsie bridge into the river yesterday. The distance is 212 feet. At least thirty people saw Callahan's exhibition of nerve. The bridge jumper was seriously injured, and may pay for the dare devil experiment with his life. After the jump he came to the surface moaning as if in great pain, and struck out for one of the boats in waiting, the occupants of which picked him up and took him ashore. During the day Callahan fared rapidly, and Drs. Merrill and Shedy were called. They found him suffering from hemorrhages, caused by a serious laceration of the peritoneum, extending into the bowels. They gave him hypodermic injections and sewed up the wound. Callahan, who had been taken to Bean's hotel, lingered in great agony until 11:25 last night, when death came to his relief.

Callahan and his backers, John E. Eckhart and William Lloyd, of New York, accompanied by a dozen sporting men and reporters, arrived at Highland on a morning train, and were met by several Poughkeepsie sports, the representative of the Associated Press and other newspaper men. Callahan, accompanied by four of his party, climbed up the mountainside to the entrance of the bridge, where they studied the watchman by telling him that they belonged to a party of painters who are engaged in painting the bridge.

They passed out to a point within 175 feet of the west shore, where Callahan prepared to jump. He wore a pair of black trousers and a navy blue woolen shirt over a suit of ordinary underclothing and wore heavy leather shoes. His associates strapped a cork jacket or life preserver around his waist and attached an inflated beef bladder to each of his shoulders. These were calculated to keep him erect in falling. Without a sign of fear Callahan clambered over the railing and hung from the edge of the footpath by his hands. As he neared the water his legs separated and he struck with a noise that sounded like the report of a gun.

Callahan claimed to have jumped from the Brooklyn bridge on July 27 last and from the Black Friars bridge, in London, seven years ago. Had he lived he would have claimed the championship of the world. He did not do his fatal act on a wager, he said.

FLAMES AT A NOTED COLLEGE.

The University of Virginia Loses $300,000 by a Conflagration.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Oct. 28.—The University of Virginia suffered great loss from a fire yesterday. The local fire department was unable to cope with the flames, and assistance was obtained from Staunton and Lynchburg, which, however, arrived too late to save the public hall and the rotunda. The fire started in the former building and a large quantity of dynamite was used on the portico between the rotunda and the public hall, but beyond displacing the large pillars nothing was accomplished. Attention was then given to the buildings known as "Old Chapel" and reading room. These were blown up and the debris saturated with water, and the fire thereby was confined to the hall and rotunda. The library, containing about $150,000 worth of books, stencils, paintings, etc., was in the rotunda. An effort to save these resulted in getting out Jefferson's statue and possibly three-fourths of the books. Everything else was burned. The total loss is estimated at not less than $300,000.

His "Romance" Got Him in Jail.

BIRMINGHAM, N. J., Oct. 28.—The harrowing story told by farmer John Sicker to the effect that he had murdered one of four robbers who attacked him on a lonely road, turned out to be a fabrication of a mind dulled by liquor. Sicker's story was that the men set upon him and robbed him of $25, and were attempting to crawl out of his wagon when he seized a hatchet which was lying in the bottom of the wagon and buried it in the skull of one of the men, instantly killing him. The police department investigated the story and found it to be absolutely without foundation, whereupon Sicker confessed that he had invented it. Mayor Applegate sent him to the county jail as a "drunk" in punishment.

Alarming Epidemic of Diphtheria.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Oct. 28.—Diphtheria and fever is prevalent at this place and other small towns in Fayette county to an alarming extent. At several points in the coke regions diphtheria is epidemic and is carrying off large numbers of children.
