Chicago's Popular Poet a Victim The True and Real Secret of His Confidence That He Will Seof Heart Disease.

THE END CAME VERY SUDDENLY.

Mr. Field Had Been Slightly Indisposed for Several Days -- Was to Have Appeared Last Night in Kansas City-Found Dead in Bed by His Son.

Chicago, Nov. 5.—Eugene Field, the poet, died in his bed of heart failure about 5 o'clock yesterday morning. He retired at night in usual health and apparently slept soundly till daybreak, when his son, who occupied the room with him, heard him groan, and putting out his hand found that death had already taken place. Mr. Field leaves a widow and five children. Mr. Field has been indisposed for several days. but no serious results were even thought of by his family and immediate friends. He was to have given a reading stock, his father being Roswell M. Field, a distinguished St. Louis lawyer. At 17 years of age he entered Williams college, and subsequently went to Knox college, at Galesburg, Ills. He studied there two years, and afterwards remained for some time at the University of Missouri.

In 1871 Mr. Field went to Europe, where he traveled for six months. He became a newspaper reporter in 1873, being employed on the St. Louis Evening Journal, of which he soon was made city editor. He also worked on a newspaper in St. Joseph for several months, and later became managing editor of the Kausas City Times. About fourteen years ago he went to Denver as a member of the editorial staff of The Tribune, of that city. There within a short time his writings gave him a wide reputation. In 1883 the Chicago Daily News secured his services, and ever since then be had been on the staff of that newspaper

Mr. Field had lately added to his fame by a very pleasant column of chat in the Chicago News and Record, under the head of "Sharps and Flats." His most important work published at Chicago is "Culture's Garland: Memoranda of the Gradual Rise of Literature," with an introduction by his feland, Inlian, Hawthorne, A. tion by his friend, Julian Hawthorne. poem of his that attracted great attention sere and in Europe was called "Looking for Home.'

In one form of verse Mr. Field was a master. His children's poetry has never been surpassed, even by Robert Lewis 329 N. 15th St. Below Callowhill Stevenson in his "Child's Garden of Verses." "Wynken, Blynken and Nod! is as charming a lullaby as has ever been written.

Lynched for Stealing.

WYNNE, Ark., Nov. 5 .- About ten days ago Albert England, a white man who claims Cross county as his home, broke into a store at Vilonia, Ark., and stole $25 worth of goods. He was arrested and brought to Wynne, and afterwards turned over to Marshal Canada, who took him to Vilonia and turned him over to the authorities there. He was bound over to the circuit court and put under guard. At 2 o'clock Sunday morning a mob took him from the officers and shot him to death. England had been in several shady transac tions in this part of the country.

WHY HE GAVE NO TESTIMONY.

The Prisoner Himself Decided Not to Go on the Stand-Detective Geyer Discusses Holmes' Crimes-Museum Managers After Ghastly Relies-Mrs. Pitezel's Future.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 5.—One thing about the convicted murderer Holmes that has greatly impressed those who have had business with him since that solemn scene on Saturday night, when the jury prononneed his fate, is his wonderful display of nerve. There may be signs of physical weakening, but the man's self possession has not forsaken him. He is buoyed up by the hope that he will secure a new

Holmes refuses to see any one but his counsel, but in response to a request for an interview sent out this message: "I do not want to discuss the verdict, except to say again that it surprised me and was not justified by the evidence. I have not quarreled with my lawyers over the advisability of admitting my last statement. which I wrote on Wednesday night, but I still think it might have helped the defense. It was the perfect truth. My law-yers advised me against taking any fur ther part in the case in that way, and I gave in. This is all I have to say, except to ask that you quote me correctly. A great deal has been attributed to me in the newspapers that was neither fair nor

Attorney Rotan, who conducted the greater portion of the defense of Holmes, seems to be confident that he will get a new trial from the supreme court. He talks very earnestly on the matter, and it is impossible in view of his manner not to be lieve him when he says that he has not the least doubt of the convicted man's innocence. He knows that in this the ma jority is against him, but he clings to his opinion, and he thinks he has a better opportunity to judge of the case than many others. It is evident that the convict's lawyers do not expect Judge Arnold to grant a new trial, but they will argue that motion before they appeal. Such a step is necessary to complete the record.

Mr. Rotan says there is not the least foundation for the story that Holmes wanted to go upon the witness stand. He decided that point for himself, and his attorneys had nothing to do with it. "His judgment was, in my opinion, correct," sald Mr. Rotan. "He had made many statements at different times, and he would have been sharply cross examined in many things that, if not evidence, would have had a bad effect.

"Holmes is an innocent man," said Mr. Rotan, "as far as this crime is concerned. But he knew on Friday night that the verdict would be conviction. He said to me: 'Rotan, old man, I am more sorry for you than I am for myself. You haven't had the chance to handle this case as it should be handled.

"I said to him: 'Don't you mind about me. I am more concerned about you than I am about myself,' So you see all this talk about Holmes being confident of acquittal is like much other stuff that has been printed—all bosh. He saw from the start that the case was going against him, and he knew all the time that he was innocent of mucder.

resentations of the Important evidence they would offer—they would be able to show that Pitezel had made at least three attempts to commit suitedde since the alleged murder on Sept. 2, 1894, and for which Holmes now stands convicted."

District Attorney Graham said today hat he could think of nothing new in retion to the Holmes trial that would prove interest, and that nothing new was exceed to transpire until the case comes for arginment for a new trial on the late the declares that in his opinion into the Holmes trial that would prove through not permit.
