SHERMAN AND HIS BOOK

The Ohio Senator Talks of His Published Statements.

WOULD LIKE TO HEAR FROM PLATT

The Answer of the New York Leader to His Statements Would Interest the Statesman—Author—He Declares That He "Simply Wrote History."

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Senator John Sherman talked freely to a reporter yesterday in regard to his recently published book and other matters. "I would like to read Mr. Platt's answer to what I stated concerning the national convention of 1888," he said in reply to a question. "The fact is, I desire to know just what his explanation would be. It would be interesting to me. Personally, I have nothing against him, and what I stated in my book was without malice, and merely introduced as a matter of history. I felt that in the interest of history I should tell things as they were, and in a dispassionate way."

"Have you seen Mr. Platt since you arrived?"

"I saw him at a distance only." The senator stated that he had met ex-President Harrison and Warner Miller, and had had pleasant chats with them. He added that Mr. Miller came to his (the senator's) room, and they talked over many of the incidents of the convention of 1888. Mr. Miller's recollection of events tallied with the senator's.

"The New York delegation," added the senator, "had a banquet on the Saturday night before the convention of 1888, and after Senator Miller had made a speech they all agreed to support me. I received a telegram to that effect. Sunday intervened, and in the meantime Elkins and other friends of Harrison got Mr. Platt to agree to vote for him on the first ballot on Monday. The result is known."

"I have no charges to make against ex-President Harrison, and our relations are pleasant. Whatever bargains or promises his friends might have made he did not sanction them, because he absolutely refused to appoint Mr. Platt secretary of the treasury. Promises may have been made in regard to federal patronage in this state, and I do not criticize that specially. Mr. Platt's men, I believe, received appointments in the state, notably the collectorship. The name of Mr. Platt's ambition seems to be to hold the portfolio of secretary of the treasury."

In regard to the national convention of 1880, when Garfield was nominated, he said that when he saw the drift was for Garfield he telegraphed to his friends to swing the Ohio delegation for him. "Garfield was an able and brilliant man in some respects," he continued, "but he did not have strong will power. He permitted men of stronger will power to influence him. I well remember that after he was elected president, and had selected Mr. Blaine as secretary of state, he came to me and said that he would like to appoint me secretary of the treasury, but Mr. Blaine thought it would be embarrassing to the other members of Mr. Hayes' cabinet to select one member and not take them all."

The senator laughed at the sophistry of Mr. Garfield, and continued: "I informed him that I did not desire to be appointed secretary of the treasury, and announced my intention to become a candidate for the senate. This announcement was a great surprise to him and his friends, because they had it all arranged to run ex-Governor Charles Foster for the senate. But I would not have accepted the treasury appointment even if I had not been a candidate for the senate. There was no great coldness existing between Garfield and myself, because I remember I wrote to him in reply to a letter, advising him to appoint Mr. Windom secretary of the treasury, which he did."

"Did you hear that General Alger intended to answer you soon?"

"No, sir, I do not believe he has read my book yet."

"He will answer that part which refers to the buying of delegates at the convention in 1888."

"I shall be glad to read his answer. My relations with General Alger have been pleasant. I simply wrote history. It was his agent, who acted for him, that I charged with doing the work."

The senator said he considered Warner Miller a strong man, and remarked that he had made an able senator. He then turned his attention to Secretary Garfield's speech. The basic error of the speech, he maintained, was the secretary's idea that legal tenders could be done away with entirely. It could not be done. He said in substance:

"The great mistake was in the way the Democratic administration had tampered with the gold reserve. It should have issued short bonds of five years' duration, which the people here would have taken up quickly at 3 per cent., and with this paid the expenses of the government. Instead of touching on the gold reserve. These short bonds, of course, would have been paid for in legal tender notes. Instead of doing this the administration had permitted domestic and foreign bankers to clear $11,000,000 by selling bonds for gold at 4 per cent. Cardale's plan proposed last night was impracticable. There are 3,000 national banks, and it would not do in order to have currency to take the gold out of the United States treasury and scatter it around in these banks to redeem money that had been issued by these banks."

"The senator said he did not know when the Republicans would be able to organize the senate. When it came to an issue in regard to money he thought the east would be against the west, irrespective of party. As long as Cleveland was president there would be no silver legislation, because he favored sound money."

TO REDEDICATE A CHURCH

Evangelical German Lutheran Church to be Re-opened.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE EVENT.

Rev. Hausmann, Who was Ordained Thirty Rev. Grubler at Jerusalem Thirty Years Ago, Will Officiate at the Ceremonies.

During the summer and fall the Evangelical Lutheran St. Johns Congregation of town has made extensive repairs and improvements to its church on West Cherry street. Having completed the task the congregation is now ready to re-open it to the service of the Triune God next Sunday with appropriate ceremonies.

The dedicatory service will be held in the German language, at 10 a. m. The sermon will be preached by Rev. C. E. Hausmann, of Philadelphia, who is an old friend of the pastor, Rev. John Grubler, and was ordained with him at Christ Church, in Jerusalem, some 30 years ago. Soon after Rev. Hausmann made extensive journeys all over the east of Africa in the interest of missions, through Egypt, the Sudan and Abyssinia. He is well acquainted with the principal languages of the East, such as Arabic, Amharic, the present language of Abyssinia, and Ethiopic. He was chosen by the English army as its Dragoman, or interpreter, when in 1868 the army went to Abyssinia to chastise the marauding King Theodoros for his outrageous treatment of a number of Protestant missionaries. Rev. Hausmann for a number of years had charge of a German Lutheran congregation at Adrian, Michigan, and was compelled a few months ago, on account of failing health, to come east. He is a thoroughly educated divine and an excellent speaker. His visit to Shenandoah will prove to his old friend, Rev. Grubler, a source of immeasurable delight, as well as of great interest and profit to the general public.

The evening service will be held at 6:30 and in the English language. Rev. J. H. Unbehen, of the Pottsville Trinity Lutheran church, will occupy the pulpit. At 2 p. m. a service for the Sunday school will be held, at which Revs. Bock, of Mahanoy City, and Leopold, of Girardville, will officiate. The congregation and its pastor extend a hearty invitation to the public of Shenandoah to attend all the services.

The church has been excellently remodelled and improved and the congregation may well feel proud of it. The main assembly room has been so much altered that its former identity is almost destroyed. The stairways from the main entrance to the vestibule of the church proper have been transformed with a view to more convenience and better appearance. Instead of two narrow entrances from the vestibule there is now only one, very wide and opening upon the main aisle leading to the chancel rail. There are three aisles instead of two, one in the centre and one at each side of the church. The church is now heated by several coils of pipes extended along the sides of the rooms and heated by steam from a boiler in the basement. The church was formerly heated by hot air.

The main assembly room has been furnished with handsome new pews of oak and walnut, the aisles are covered with rich Brussels carpet and the furnishings within the chancel rail are new and of oak and walnut. They consist of a baptismal font, an altar and elevated pulpit, all of exquisite design. The old pews are used by the Sunday school in the basement. This part of the building has also been very much improved.

The church was dedicated on January 11th, 1874. Rev. John Grubler has been the pastor of the congregation since November 3, 1871, and next year the twenty-fifth anniversary of his pastorate will be celebrated.

REV. NOBLE IS SUSPENDED.

Former Pastor of the M. E. Church, Ashland, Guilty of Immorality.

The Methodist Episcopal church of Ashland has preferred serious charges against their former pastor, Rev. W. F. D. Noble, who is well known here. The charge is immoral conduct in misappropriating monies belonging to the church.

He was suspended from the ministry last summer pending the meeting of the next annual conference. His trial was held at Lewisston on Tuesday, and Presiding Elder Paisgrove was the judge. There were three separate counts in the bill of indictment, to which Rev. Noble entered a general denial. The court of inquiry did not sustain his denial, and found him guilty as charged.

The church was represented by Rev. Charles H. Barnard, S. L. Price and W. A. Phillips.

The Borough Council of Palo Alto notified the Schuylkill Electric Railway Company to remove an old car shed as soon as its new car house was built, and failing to do so would impose a fine of $50 per day for every day after that. By the time the company vacated the ground the penalty reached $4,000. Suit was brought but a compromise was effected whereby the company will expend $600 in repairing the borough bridge dividing Palo Alto and Port Carbon.
