ECHOES OF THE CAR STRIKE

Another P-ief Season of Apprehension in Philadelphia.

REINSTATED MEN QUIT WORK!

Because New Men Are Given Preference. The Difficulty Quickly Adjusted. Railroad Men Charged With Rioting.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 26.—The street railway trouble broke out afresh yesterday, but was quickly quelled, and cars are again running as usual. While it lasted several cars were stoned and their windows smashed, but nobody was hurt. The difficulty occurred on Girard avenue, the ex-strikers charging that the division superintendent, in sending out cars, violated the company's agreement of Monday last by giving preference to the new, or non-union, help. The old employees got together and after watching the cars going out for some time with impatient motor-men and conductors, started a revolt. Obstructions were placed on the tracks and a mob of 10,000 people quickly gathered and began to stone the cars. A squad of mounted police was called to the scene, and in a short time dispersed the mob. The new men were taken off the cars and traffic was resumed with the regular men.

The Second and Third streets line was also in trouble for a little while, but peace was restored on both branches by the company agreeing to put the old men back to work.

About 9 o'clock in the morning the stables attached to the residence of John Lewis Welsh, president of the Union Traction company, in Germantown, were burned to the ground, entailing a loss of $25,000. The fire started in the stable. Mr. Welsh because of his attitude during the strike leads to a general belief that the fire was of incendiary origin. Mr. Welsh, however, says he does not think so. He believes it was probably due to the carelessness of a servant employed in the stables. The police are investigating the matter.

A significant feature of the strike is the excessive bail demanded for those arrested for riot and the unusually harsh punishment inflicted upon rioters by Judge Gordon. Charles Edwin Ludy, 25 years old, called a Traction employe a "scab" and threatened to fix him. He also threw a toy torpedo, which struck a motorman on the hand, fell to the ground and then exploded. It did no damage, but Ludy was sent to the penitentiary for three years and six months. Max Wilson, who was charged with throwing three stones at a car and swearing at the crews, was sent up for two years. Wilson vigorously asserted his innocence. They were held in bail ranging from $1,500 to $3,000 to insure their appearance for trial.

The undue haste with which the grand jury found indictments against alleged rioters is shown in the case of Conductor W. W. Wetzell, who was indicted for "inciting to riot" and held under $1,200 bail. Owing to the fact that Wetzell's name was misspelled in the printed reports of his arrest, and he had been unable to communicate with friends, his young wife became temporarily insane when he failed to return home. Wetzell is now at liberty, and the "case" against him will no doubt be quashed. Wetzell was standing on Broad street when the police made a dash for the crowd. An old woman had fallen down and Wetzell endeavored to pick her up. A special officer caught hold of him and took him to the central station as a "rioter."

District Attorney Graham declares that President Mahon, of the National Amalgamated Association of Street Railway employes, and Chairman Lutz, of the local committee, have been closely watched, but they were careful not to violate the law. He continued: "I have heard 350 of the strike cases and the majority of the defendants were small boys. As far as I know not one man or boy of the hundreds arrested carried a murderous weapon. There was nothing known to this department to connect any of the strike leaders with the trouble."

When asked to explain the matter President Mahon said:

"As I understand it the officials had taken the names of all the regular men for the purpose of arranging their runs, and on the Girard avenue and Willow Grove branches when the first cars went out they were manned with the imported hands to the exclusion of the association men. It looked to the latter as though bad faith was meant, and that the company was breaking away from the letter and the intent of the agreement. Reports were also brought to me that similar measures had been taken in some instances elsewhere.

"As it stands now the trouble seems to be over, the imported hands have been withdrawn to a large extent and the cars are running again on schedule time."

A Boy Saved Him.

Willie Kincaid, a boy residing on South Jardin street, narrowly escaped being dangerously shot yesterday morning at the hands of the late J. J. Moughan's young son. The latter had received a toy gun of the Flobert pattern for his Christmas present. The instrument discharged small bullets. Young Moughan playfully pointed the gun at Kincaid and it was discharged. The bullet struck the boy on the breast bone, making a mark, but not breaking the skin. It is believed the force of the ball was spent in striking a button.

CHRISTMAS AT THE CHURCHES

Annual Exercises Held by All the Sunday Schools.

THE SCHOLARS RECEIVE GIFTS!

Elaborate Programs Rendered by Some of the Schools and Presents Made to Leaders—A Cantata Given at the Calvary Baptist Church.

The annual observances of Christmas by the several Sunday schools of town were of a very pleasing and elaborate character this year, more so in some instances than during preceding years, and all the denominations report increased attendances. This was especially so in connection with the United Evangelical Sunday school. The distribution of candy took place in the afternoon. The entertainment took place in the evening and the place was so crowded that many people were unable to secure seats. The program consisted of vocal and instrumental music of a religious character, dialogues and recitations, and among those who took part were Hattie Silbert, Katie Reddell, Gertrude Elliott, Annie Cooley, Edith Wood, Nellie Watkins, Mable Gilliland, Little Mayer, Edith Johnson, Annie Elliott, May Akers, Bert, Koster, Edward Horn, Earl Kemmerer, Albert Graf, George Merkle, Howard Stummus, Ralph Kester, Gertrude Couray, Gertrude Eisenhart, William Seltzer, William Amour, Sampson and party also contributed musical selections. The assembly room was beautifully decorated with evergreens and mottoes.

The Christmas entertainment in the Presbyterian church last night was one of the most successful and enjoyable in the history of the Sunday school and there was a very large attendance of friends. An elaborately decorated Christmas tree occupied one corner of the church and there were a number of other decorations. The program was a lengthy one, but very interesting. Both the senior and junior classes of the schools took part in it. There were choruses by the choir and school, an address by Miss Agnes Dodson, vocal duet by Violet Straub and Rachel Kretz, violin solo by Miss Eva Brewer, an address to the infant class by Albert Jones, a medley song by six little girls and a motion play by eight boys and girls, recitations by Margaret Garner, Joseph Ferris, Veradice Stevie, May Dusho, David Watson and Jennie Kincaid, vocal duet by Violet Flanders and Homer Straub, vocal solo by Maggie Reddell, a star exercise by five little girls and a solo by Miss Lizzie Leekie. After the entertainment there was a distribution of candy and fruit.

A very pleasing production of a cantata entitled "Crowning Christmas" was rendered at the Calvary Baptist church last evening. It comprised solos, duets, choruses and recitations. The principal parts were taken by Miss Gwendoline Reese, Harry Reese and Isaac Griffiths. They were ably assisted by the choir. The production was under the supervision of Miss Mattie Price and much credit is due her for the success of the entertainment. After the cantata there was a distribution of presents to the Sunday school and Mr. William Waters, leader of the choir, was presented with a gold watch chain.

The Christmas festival of the Primitive Methodist Sunday school was held Tuesday evening and was a very successful one. The distribution of candy to the children was preceded by a very pleasing program. There was singing by the school, recitations by Bertha Amour, Olive Hares, Thomas Millchap, Lizzie Amour, Jennie Hares and Pierce Ryan, an organ voluntary by Miss Nellie Haugh and vocal solos by Ida Robinson, Thomas Hall and Sarah Haugh. Mr. Edward J. Cooper, leader of the church choir, was presented with a gold headed cane, and Miss Lizzie Jones, assistant leader, and Miss Nellie Haugh, the organist, each received a gold watch guard.

The children of the Trinity Reformed Sunday school received their gifts of oranges and candy yesterday afternoon and in the evening an entertainment was held. M. H. Master, the choir leader of the church, was presented with a pearl-handled gold pen and silver inkstand.

Candy was distributed to the infant and intermediate classes of the Methodist Episcopal Sunday school yesterday afternoon. In the evening there were exercises by the entire school consisting of vocal and instrumental music and recitations, and an address by Harry Preston.

The exercises of All Saints' Protestant Episcopal Sunday school were held on Tuesday evening and those of the English Lutheran and German Lutheran Sunday schools were held last evening.
