EVENING HERALD
 WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 1, 1896.
 AN UNDESIRABLE LODGER.
 A New Year Rounder Causes Trouble in a Store.

At about 9:30 o'clock last night an intoxicated man staggered into the Factory shoe store, at the corner of Main and Centre streets, and in spite of the remonstrances of J. Arthur Moyer, the manager of the establishment, proceeded to make himself at home. "I'm tired," said he, dropping into a chair. Moyer thought that by humoring the man for a while he would get him out of the store without trouble, and decided to let him rest. The intruder fell asleep, and his snoring soon attracted attention from the street. Moyer attempted to eject the man, who showed fight, and two men called into the store from the street failed to eject him. A struggle followed and the two assistants, with Moyer, succeeded in getting the unwelcome visitor down with his back to the floor, where they held him until Chief of Police Tash arrived. The officer marched the man before Justice Williams, who fixed bail in the sum of $200 for trial at court. The prisoner said his name was Thomas O'Malley.

A NOISY NIGHT.
The Tin Horn and Revolver Brigade Out in Force.
 Each recurring New Year's eve seems to be more noisy than the preceding one, and there seems to be no limit to the clatter the fun-seekers can create. Last night was no exception to the rule. Every street in the town was crowded by moving throngs of young people tooting fish horns with a vigor that betokened lungs more healthy than pleasing to the general public, and the shots and rattles that every nook and corner were searched for a weapon and ammunition. The clamor started shortly after dark, and in increasing each hour until midnight, when the climax was reached and the outburst was furious. It was kept up until about four o'clock this morning.

Despite the situation of affairs as detailed above the Grant and Lithuanian bands, several drum corps and a number of choirs succeeded in getting in their semi-weekly work and paid visits to many parts of the town, some of them remaining on the streets until as late as six o'clock this morning. Watchnight services were held in the Methodist Episcopal, Primitive Methodist and United Evangelical churches until 12 o'clock last night and all were well attended.

NEW YEAR RESOLVES.

Many New Leaves Have Been Turned Over Once More.

The cares of politics have been laid away by Col. J. K. P. Scheiffy, and his energies in the future will be devoted to improving the industrial condition of the South.
 Councilman Dougherty has resolved to represent the Fifth ward for three more years.
 The national delegationship is eliciting no resolutions from Hon. D. D. Phillips—the prize is his.
 Postmaster Mellet begins the new year very happy. His was one of only two offices in the state complimented by the department.
 The County Detectiveship causes Jack Toole to avow that no more murderers like the German fiend shall escape in this county.
 James J. Flannery means what he says when he asserts that the new year will see the town with sufficient hotel accommodations.
 Editors Parker and Joyce have buried the hatchet—some time in 1900, perhaps.
 The speaker of the present House of Representatives avows that he will be the peoples' choice for President during the new year—Tom Reed has a say.
 J. J. Reilly has turned the new leaf over, but whether it bears blots or not at the end of the year depends upon who gets the Inspectorship at Philadelphia.
 Manager Fahy has many hopes for the new year, but the principal one is that the Shamokin football team accepts his challenge for $300.
 B. Jefferson Yost isn't saying much, but he knows that many people have resolved that he must be the next Clerk of the Courts.
 Every maiden in the town has said she will do the "popping" this year, and they want to be long about it, either.
 Editor Zeebly will continue to swear by the circulation of his paper.
 P. J. Mulholland will take to the woods until next year has passed.
 The HERALD force has resolved to furnish our readers with all the news, and their new leaf will contain no blots during 1896.

"Burdock Blood Bitters entirely cured me of a terrible breaking out all over my body. It is a wonderful medicine." Miss Julia Elbridge, Box 35, West Cornwall, Conn.

Sunday School Entertainment.
 The holiday entertainment of the Yatesville Methodist Episcopal Sunday school was held in the handsomely decorated chapel at Yatesville last night before a very large audience, of which many residents of this town formed a part. Superintendent Henry Prosser was master of ceremonies and the entertainment was a very pleasing one. The following program was rendered: Singing by the school's prayer; recitations by Ida Brown, Sadie Freeman, Hattie Shilery, John Matthews, Mamie Freeman, Grace and Lottie Matthews, Hannah Brown, Bert, Hooks, Josephine Imindorf, James Shilery, Joseph Watson, Hannah Jones, Benjamin Freeman, Jane Nicholas, Carrie Bolch and Effie Brown; vocal solos by Annie Cowley, D. John Price and Grace Matthews; quartettes by Misses Carrie and Esther Broughall and Messrs. Sampsel and Matthews; Misses Wasley and Bevan and Messrs. Price and Honch; and by the Matthews family; vocal duets by Misses Matthews and Balliet and Misses Wasley and Bevan; mandolin and guitar duet by Messrs. Shoenaker and Lawson, and Rev. J. F. Meredith made an address. Just before the conclusion of the program there was a distribution of candy and oranges to the members of the Sunday school.

Notices to Quit.
 The blank forms of notices to quit were in demand yesterday, and many persons who do not own the premises they occupy were forcibly reminded of the fact yesterday. It is customary among many landlords to serve notice whether they really want the tenant to vacate or not. The majority of leases expire on April 1st and legal notice must have been served before 12 o'clock last night. There were hundreds of these notices served by constables and others yesterday, but it does not necessarily follow that all tenants so notified must quit the premises they occupy.

Beach and Gessley Funerals.
 The funeral of Charles J. Beach took place this afternoon from the family residence at Ellangown and was attended by many leading mining officials of the coal region, besides members of the Odd Fellows, Masons, and Knights of Pythias lodges. The remains were taken to Tamaqua for interment.
 The funeral of Gottlieb Gessley took place this afternoon from the family residence on North Main street, at 2 o'clock. Services were held in the United Evangelical church and the remains were interred in the Odd Fellows' cemetery.

 Remember the Earlier.
 When attending your New Year obligations don't forget the faithful EVERETT than 100 others. They have served you faithfully, in rain and shine, and enabled you to stay at your warm fireside and read the world's happenings while the storm raged round without. Captain Lee had the boys to expect a slight offering to-day and the gift will give them no less respect than if you had sent during the previous year.

A New Year's Bride.
 The marriage of Mr. John Collins, of Ashland, and Miss Bridget Rowland, of Honesville, was celebrated at St. Joseph's church at Girardville, at nine o'clock this morning, the Rev. Father McCullough officiating.

To Lessen Mine Accidents.

At a session of the Pennsylvania Mining Institute held in Pittsburgh last week, Thomas Hall, mine foreman at Van Meter, Pa., read a paper on the causes of mine accidents and their prevention. Concerning dangers from blasting, Mr. Hall said coal dust had become a fearful element of danger. On this point he said: "Explosions from coal dust occur in the most carefully regulated pits where no gas or fire damp can be detected. Coal dust becomes most deadly in an explosion and is an invisible enemy. Machinery in mines makes more and finer coal dust every year." In conclusion he asked: "What are the causes of mine explosions and what are the remedies?" His short answer to the last query was the prohibition of the use of black powder and every explosive used for blasting that generated sufficient heat to ignite fire damp or start a dust explosion.
 "I burned my fingers very badly. The pain was intense. Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil brought relief in three minutes. It was almost magical. I never saw anything like it." Amelia Swords, Saundersville, O.

All Have Applied for Licenses.
 Notwithstanding the notices issued by the Girard Estate and personally served upon them, every saloon and hotel keeper in West Mahanoy township has made formal application for licenses to sell liquor for the coming year. The notices served by the Girard Estate threatened ejection, as, according to the leases it issues to tenants, a clause prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors is contained therein. Many are inclined to the belief that the Estate cannot legally enforce the latter clause of the lease, and in applying for a renewal of their license the tenants are acting upon the advice of their attorneys.
