Party Caucus

ANAPOLIS, Jan. 14.—Balloting for a successor to United States Senator Charles Gilson began today without a Republican caucus having been held. Whether it will come later on is a question, but just now the prospects seem to be against it. Congressman George L. Wellington and his friends have been doing some of the tallest kind of work to get enough names to the call for a caucus, but they have not as yet got the requisite twenty one. How many they have seenred is a secret, as this would betray the full strength of the Wellington* following. The situation briefly stated is that Wellington wants a The situation gamens with all his heart as without it his chances for the coveted toga are very slim. tory for the eastern show men.

The next step will probably be an adjournment until Thursday, when a joint ballot will be taken, and then will come the tag of war, unless the Republicans get together and settle in cancus tonight, which seems improbable. To the event that no cancus is held the situation will become very much like that which prevalled in Delaware last fall, and a dead-lock may ensue which might last until the end of the session.

If Wellington has not enough, votes to elect himself it is pen raily conceded that he instenough to prevent the election of any of the candidates from the eastern shore, unless all the representatives from that section units upon one man, which seems impossible. Upon the other band, Wellington may throw his strength one of his opponents, which will satisfy the fight in a short time. Meanwhile the leg-islature is doing.
