A ROYALIST'S DEATH.

Prince Henry of Battenberg Succumbs to Fever in Africa.

A SON-IN-LAW OF QUEEN VICTORIA

Who Went to the Dark Continent to Study the Art of Warfare in the Bloodless Conflict Against the King of the Ashantes. The Body Homeward Bound.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—News was received at the office of the admiralty yesterday of the death of Prince Henry of Battenberg, who contracted African fever while accompanying the Ashante expedition in West Africa. He was thought to be recovering, but had a relapse while on board the British cruiser Blonde on the way to Madeira. The cruiser returned to Sierra Leone, west coast of Africa, and the news of the prince's death was cabled from there. At Sierra Leone the body was embalmed and the Blonde started at once for England.

The prince, it appears, was greatly upset at the speedy death of his friend, Major von Proben. When the prince reached there his condition was desperate, and the doctors almost despaired of being able to get him back to the coast. Prince Henry, however, rallied slightly before reaching Cape Coast Castle. Once there, although sick unto death, the prince did everything possible to prevail upon his medical attendants and the commanding officers to allow him to remain until the news reached Cape Coast of the entry of the British into Coomassie. But his condition was so desperate that all his appeals were in vain, and he was finally induced, much against his will, to consent to embark on board the Blonde for the island of Madeira.

This, it now appears, was on Friday last. The prince was in a very weak condition when he went on board the cruiser, but the cooler sea air had an invigorating effect upon him, and he again rallied. In fact, on Saturday he became quite cheerful and hopes were entertained of his recovery. On Sunday, however, there was a decided change for the worse. The prince grew weaker until he expired on Monday evening. It is now announced, at 8:40 p. m.

While Prince Henry was unpopular, on the whole, with the people, principally because he was a poor German prince, and therefore considered unworthy of the hand of a princess of the royal house of England, he was well liked by all those who had the pleasure of knowing him personally. He was a great favorite with the queen.

Previous to Prince Henry's departure for Ashante considerable ridicule appeared in the English newspapers over the alleged preparations being made for his departure for the "picnic," as the expedition to Coomassie was called, and as it turned out to be. These reports were wholly untrue, however, as the prince embarked like any other officer on an ordinary troop ship.

He ranked as colonel of an Isle of Wight volunteer regiment, and was attached to the expedition in a special capacity, although his rank would have entitled him to assume the position of second in command. But, in contrast, this would never have been tolerated by the press, as say nothing of the war office authorities, and so the unfortunate prince went to the west coast of Africa, smarting under a storm of ridicule and abuse, probably with the object of attempting to show those who have made a practice of calumniating him from the outset that he was not a drawing room soldier, and that he was not deficient in courage.

The period of mourning by the court for the death of Prince Henry of Battenberg has been fixed at six weeks.

Prince Henry was the third son of Prince Alexander of Battenberg, uncle of Ludwig IV, grand duke of Hesse. He married the Princess Beatrice, youngest daughter of Queen Victoria, in 1885. They have four children. He was born on Oct. 5, 1858, and occupied the complimentary post of governor of the Isle of Wight and of Carisbrook Castle. Until he volunteered for the Ashante expedition he had taken no part in public affairs. He had no special abilities he never had any opportunity of displaying them.

Senator-Elect Wellington on Finance.
ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 23.—George L. Wellington, who was yesterday elected by the Maryland legislature to succeed Charles H. Gibson in the national senate, said in an interview: "I am in favor of a currency that shall be based on the highest standard of value, a currency in which every dollar shall be as valuable as every other dollar, and redeemable in the highest standard of value. I believe the free coinage of silver would be a great disaster, and the American nation cannot afford to adopt it."

After the G. A. R. Encampment.
INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 23.—Adjutant General Robbins, of Commissioner-in-Chief Walker's staff, announced that Buffalo, Cleveland and Philadelphia are the three cities that want the G. A. R. encampment if it is taken away from St. Paul. All the members of the executive committee telegraphed to headquarters here that they would stand by Commander-in-Chief Walker if the railroads refused to yield, and would vote to take the encampment away from St. Paul.

Senator Frank Plimley, of Northfield, Vt., is a man of national reputation. No man today stands more prominently before the people of the state of Vermont than he.

A lawyer by profession, he was elected to the House of Representatives in 1862, is Trustee of Schools, Trustee of Northfield Bank, and Trustee of Norwich University (a Military School under patronage of the U. S. Government), has been Trustee of the Montpelier Seminary, Chairman of the Republican State Convention 1888, Delegate at large to the Republican National Convention in 1888, was United States Attorney for Vermont 1889 to 1894, and is now State Senator.

Senator Plimley is well-known throughout the United States, having been selected by the National Republican Committee as speaker to stump the state of Michigan for Blaine in 1884, and again in 1888 and 1892 he spoke through the West for the Republican presidential candidates.

When he came out of the presidential campaign in '92, owing to overwork he was almost a complete nervous wreck. To our representative the Senator said: "In the fall of 1892 I came out of the presidential campaign with my nervous system almost broken.

"Best ordinary remedies did not assist me. Some of my personal friends advised me to take a course of Dr. Greene's medicine, which I did with entire success.

"I use Dr. Greene's Nervine blood and nerve remedy for that exhaustion caused by long continued mental work, and think well of it."

We understand that Senator Plimley's cure is radical and complete, and while we congratulate the popular Senator on his recovery, we cannot but add that this is a distinct triumph for that marvelous medicine, Dr. Greene's Nervine blood and nerve remedy, which, owing to the high standing of Senator Plimley, and the fact that he is so widely known, will give Dr. Greene's Nervine a great boom.

The remedy deserves it, for it is in truth a most wonderful curer of disease, a restorative and invigorator which stands at the present day without a rival in making people well; a remedy which is always sure to cure, to give health and strength, to make whoever uses it strong and vigorous.

This most valuable remedy is not a patent medicine and should not be classed as such, for it is the discovery and prescription of one of our leading specialists in nervous and chronic diseases, Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th St., New York City. The doctor gives an added value to his great remedy by allowing all who desire to consult him without charge, either in person or through the mail.

PREMPEH'S SUBMISSION.

How the Ashantee King Yielded to Great Britain.

WARFARE DEVOID OF BLOODSHED.

The African Ruler was Completely Overawed by the Show of Force Made by His Captors, and His Surrender Was Most Amicable—Held for Ransom.

CAPE COAST CASTLE, Africa, Jan. 23.—The following details of the palaver between Sir Francis Scott, commander of the expeditionary force, and King Prempeh, of Ashantee, when the latter made his submission to Great Britain at Coomassie, have just been received from that capital.

The troops formed in the principal square of Coomassie at 7 o'clock in the morning on Monday last, preparatory to the great palaver. Sir Francis Scott and his staff were seated in a semi-circle in the square shortly afterwards, and an officer was sent to the palace with instructions to impress upon the mind of King Prempeh that if he did not appear before the British commander within five minutes after this summons that he would be taken from his palace by force.

The king made a show of resistance, but finally accompanied the officer, surrounded by an escort, to the square. Arriving there King Prempeh was introduced to the British governor, who recited at length the negotiations which had been conducted between the representatives of Great Britain and Ashantee, ending by informing the king that he must formally submit to Great Britain and give up immediately 50,000 ounces of gold as an indemnity for the expenses incurred by the British government in sending an expedition to bring his majesty to terms. The king was also informed that he must keep the streets clean and maintain order among the population.

King Prempeh was greatly impressed by the show of force in the square, the Maxim guns being conveniently posted and every yard being utilized by the British and their native allies. Finally the king, through an interpreter, replied that he was ready to submit to the British, took off his crown and sandals and advanced to the seats upon which Sir Francis Scott and the governor were seated, surrounded by their staffs. His majesty then placed his hand between the feet of Sir Francis Scott and those of the British governor, clasping them with his hands and actually groveling in the dust as a mark of his complete submission.

This display of helplessness upon the part of King Prempeh greatly impressed the Ashantes present. They were greatly agitated and talked excitedly together, but they made no attempt at resistance.

The governor finally made the king arise and recalled to his majesty's mind that he had been requested to immediately pay 50,000 ounces of gold to the representatives of Great Britain. King Prempeh said he only possessed 300 ounces of gold, and that he had by means of collecting the 30,000 ounces demanded by the British. To this the governor replied that the demand of the British must be complied with, as the king's ability to pay the amount demanded was too well known to admit of any discussion.

King Prempeh then asked for time, but the governor answered that upon a previous occasion the Ashantes had failed to keep their promises made to the British, and that the latter had no intention of giving them the opportunity of doing the same thing again. The governor then abruptly announced that King Prempeh, the queen mother, the king's father and the other chiefs of importance present would be taken prisoners' under escort to Cape Coast castle.

The governor's words fell like a thunderbolt upon the assemblage of Ashantee natives, and there was an impetuous movement forward which boded trouble. But the troops were promptly ordered to "carry arms," and the marching like precision with which the Martini-Henry carbines were lifted from the ground struck dismay into the Ashantes and probably averted serious trouble, for they fell back as if fearing a volley from the troops.

One of the chiefs, however, rose from his seat near King Prempeh and uttered some shrill words in a loud tone of voice. These were interpreted as saying that the Ashantes complained that the British who had brought their captives back from Great Britain had misled them. The governor said that their ambassadors would also be made prisoners and taken to Cape Coast castle, where they will be charged with forgery in having put their names, apparently, to documents of a misleading nature.

A strong guard of British troops then moved forward and surrounded the king, the queen mother, the king's father, the prominent chiefs and the ambassadors. The prisoners were quickly removed to a large house, which was surrounded by the guard, and then the Ashantes were quietly dispersed by the troops.

The whole affair was splendidly arranged and admirably executed. In fact from the moment the expedition was first organized until it reached Coomassie there has not been a single hitch in the arrangements, and it has not been necessary to fire a shot.

The submission and capture of King Prempeh will ensure British supremacy in that part of Africa for many years to come. His majesty, his relatives and the chiefs captured will be kept at Cape Coast castle until the 50,000 ounces of gold demanded by the British governor are forthcoming and until all the other questions connected with the expedition and its objects have been arranged.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—At the Brazilian legation today it was said that nothing was known regarding the report from Rio Janeiro, printed in London, that a Brazilian corvette had sailed for Trinidad to take possession of that island, which is in dispute between Great Britain and Brazil.
