

ENGLAND AND VENEZUELA.

The British Said to be Fortifying the Disputed Territory.

CARACAS, Venezuela, Jan. 23.—Michael McTurk, the local magistrate of British Guiana, who has been identified for years with the usurpation of Venezuelan territory, has been relieved of his magistratorial duties in order that he may command an expedition charged with fortifying the entire length of the Cuyuni river lying in the disputed territory. This news has caused a great stir here.

El Liberal, in a leading editorial, calls the attention of the government to the military preparations on the Guiana frontier, which, although London denies it, are actively going forward. On the British island of Trinidad the forts are being repaired and the militia is being drilled in the method of handling the new heavy guns.

In the name of the people of Venezuela this government is asked to fortify Amacuro, Cangrejos and Cuyuni, on the frontier, in order to be ready for war if arbitration fails. The moral strength of increasing the military strength would be to unite the country, it is argued, and command the respect of President Crespo's bitterest enemies.

The English plan is believed to fortify the disputed territory while the American commission is investigating, and if its report is adverse to Great Britain to hold it forcibly.

It Was Steam.

A crowd of citizens gathered on South Main street yesterday afternoon and gazed at what they thought was smoke floating from a corner of the roof of T. J. Broughall's store. Some wanted to sound the fire alarm, but cooler heads prevailed and a committee was appointed to notify Mr. Broughall, who was in the store, that the building was on fire. As the committee was about to start on its mission Postmaster Mellet happened along and explained that the drain pipe running from the roof is connected with a sewer with which an exhaust from the Columbia brewery is also connected and that, occasionally, the steam makes its way from the sewer to the outlet on Mr. Broughall's building.

For a Worthy Cause.

The local school teachers have secured Prof. King to appear in Ferguson's theatre on February 4th, the proceeds to be devoted to charity. Here is what an exchange says of Prof. King: "Notwithstanding the very inclement weather last Friday evening, quite a number of our appreciative town-folk forced their way through the pelting rain to hear that champion American elocutionist and ventriloquist, Byron W. King, in his program of pathos, wit and humor, and we think we are safe in saying they were more than pleased, they were delighted. The selections of Shakespearean characters, his recitals of choice, original and classical poems, &c., were truly wonderful and entertaining."

Gossiping Causes Trouble.

An employe of one of the electric railway lines seems to have got himself into a serious difficulty through gossiping about another employe of the road and connecting the name of a young lady who is the daughter of a very prominent man of one of the places adjacent to this town. The story, like all others of this character, spread rapidly and reached the ears of the young lady's father, who at once commenced sifting the story, but he failed to confirm it to his satisfaction. The story was that the young lady and the party with whom her name is connected visited Shenandoah one night a week ago and were guests at one of the hotels. The investigation has shown that the young man did visit town and was a guest at one of the hotels, and he registered under his proper name, but at no time during that day or night was there a female guest at the hotel. It is also shown by the investigation that the young lady was a guest of friends in town, and it is claimed that the visit of both the parties on the same night was merely a coincidence. The father of the young lady says he does not wish to go into court with the matter, but he intends to push it to a stage, with as little publicity as possible, that will serve as a warning to some that the characters of people cannot be juggled with impunity.

Booked for Shenandoah.

Ye gods, what terrible crime have the unscrupulous haysealers of this town committed that Manager Quirk insists that they undergo the continued penalty of having the sweet remembrances of Ireland's vales, valleys and customs desecrated and murdered by Shenay actors. The latest torture inflicted upon the public was that of last night—"Killarney." The Irish have suffered long and patiently ever in Ireland but it is too much to ask their descendants or those having a soft spot for the inspiring song and brilliant wit of the Emerald gem, to sit patiently while a gang of herring ruffians abuse and destroy those sweet memories. God save the public and Virginia Johnson and Edgar M. c. c. Patsy Maharg's Morea comedians are king-pins when compared with "Killarney's" tarts.

A Tri-Coiny League.

It has been suggested by some that a tri-coiny league be formed including clubs from Shenandoah, Ashland, Mahanoy City, Mt. Carmel, Shamokin, Pottsville and other towns in this vicinity, the members of the club to be semi-professionals. If a league of this kind was formed it would increase the present great rivalry between the above mentioned towns, and large crowds would flock to see their favorite team lay low all comers.

It is the intention to commence building operations in the spring, and will push it to completion as soon as possible in order that they may again worship in a building of their own.

New Pastor for Ashland.

Rev. Morrison, of town, was at Ashland last evening and conducted a congregational meeting in the Presbyterian church of that place. Sometime ago Rev. Mann resigned as pastor of the Ashland church to accept a call from a congregation of the same denomination at Scotchtown, N. Y., and the former congregation has been without a pastor during that time. The meeting last evening was held for the purpose of filling the vacancy, and Rev. F. S. Hart was unanimously chosen. He has filled the charge temporarily for the past several weeks, and during that time has made a strong and favorable impression upon the members of the congregation.

Decided Against the Veteran.

TOPEKA, Jan. 23.—Judge Randolph, of the district court, handed down a decision yesterday which renders the state law inoperative that compels city councils to give preferences to old soldiers in appointments, other things being equal.
