President C. A. Griscom and all the here-ident C. A. Griccom and all the bather representatives of the International Navigation company, popularly known as the American line, have taken a decidedly more hopeful view of the situation of the stranded steamer St. Paul. They pince great reliance on the Merritt and Chapman Wrecking companies, who have charge of the pulling off the big steamer, and they hope to have the St. Paul at her borth at the fact of Vescy street, New York, before the end of this work. Passident Griscom remained on board yesterday, and was visited by some representatives of insurance companies and un derwriters, who were interested in the safety of the ship. Two of these gentle men, who refused to give their names, o the companies to which they belongs told the reporters that they believed the accident was due to the mistake of the man who was making the soundings with the lead, having no staken the mark for seven fathous and announcing it as seventeen fathoms.

It is safe to say that there is scarcely a person who resides within twenty miles of this place who has not come to see the big ocean racer lying in her helpless state within a stone's throw of the Grand View hotel yeranda. When the trains arrived from New York yesterday they brought a host of Gothamites who were anxious to see how the big liner looked, and the majority of them wondered how on earth she could possibly have reached the spot in which she is stuck hard and fast.

The press representatives were not allowed to board the St. Paul, but one of their number managed to clude the watch ful officers at the gangway and succeeded in making his way to the captain's cabin. Captain Jamison, he said, looked rather blue when he spoke to him. In response to the reporter's inquiries the captain said:
"It is not true that any of the plates are sprung, and the vessel is all right. There is no sign of leaking. The Chapman and Beer and Porter. bringing off of the ship are sanguine of success, and I am confident that she will move off very soon, perhaps after a couple

President Griscom sent word to the reporters that Captain Jamison had made a statement as to how the accident occurred and he (Mr. Griscom) expected that it would thoroughly vindicate the St. Paul's commander had run aground there. Paul was built as one of the first of two of a fleet of fast first class ocean steamships which should fly the American flag, and with special reference to naval service in case of war. The other, was the St. Louis. Both ships were built in 1894 by the Cramps, of Philadelphia, for the International Navigation company, of Philadelphia. They are the largest vessels ever constructed in America. Each of the vessels carries 320 first class and 200 second class passengers and

The St. Paul has been the victim of several minor accidents. Even before she got into the water she had one. When the launching should have taken place the great ship stuck on the ways, and stayed there for a week or so. Only a week before Christmas last an accident occurred which resulted in the death of several of her crew and delayed her trip across the Atiantic for several days. It was on Wednesday, Dec. 18, early in the morning, when the main steam pipe supplying one of the engines burst in two places, and, died.
